Are the college years suspended ones, sheltered, removed, apart from the outside world? As a Durham street cuts across a corner of East campus and the myth of the twelve-foot wall is lifted, so too the myth of the "world-apart" can perhaps be disproved, though the tradition will linger and still contain some truth in its existence.

As a student one perhaps sees Duke in its solidity of Gothic gray and Georgian brick, or as a vast machine feeding on reams of IBM cards, or the every-other-friend in a mass of acquaintances and strangers. At times each of these impressions can come to mind. Yet perhaps the impression is most often a more immediate one: an idea caught, an appointment missed, the fatigue of an all-nighter, the jubilation of a semester of success in one's own terms. This is the stuff that life is made of. But it is not just by extension that these impressions of college life have meaning in terms of the world outside the walls.

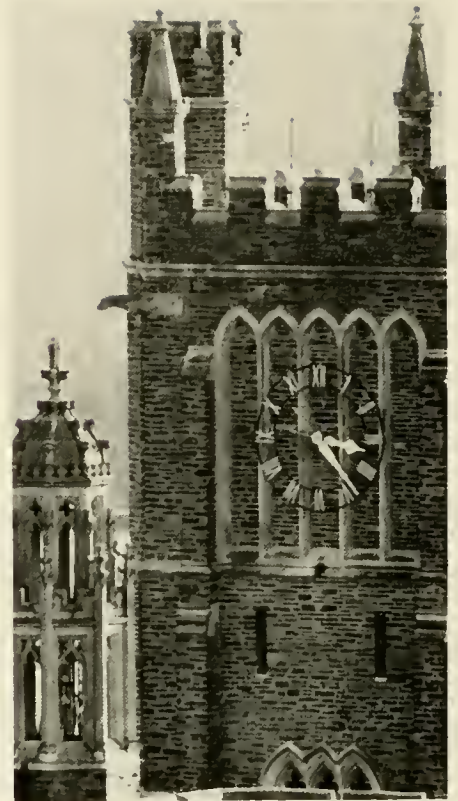

The flow of growth and change in the complex one calls a university is all too evident in just a year's time at Duke. As the individual comes to college he makes a commitment to remain for awhile, to think, to act, and finally to leave. Collectively, this constant flux he is at once confined to an intangible, but certain sphere of life even within the demarcation of the "college world." Trinity College, senior, fraternity man, history major—by number and letter he is departmentalized into his own "world apart." Even in the annual the labels seem instinctively to remain: administrator, beauty, basketball star, Greek, Phi Beta Kappa.

Yet despite these labels, which are perhaps all too indicative of an inescapable situation within or without the walls, the lines are crossed: people act, meet, react, and at the same time they are both actively and passively aware of the "world without."

The individual comes in search of direction—seeking the repeated what, why, how, and where of himself and others. It is the direction of information, advice, and judgment. It is the direction of rebelling against other militant, the direction of goading the passive into action. Most of all it is the direction of change and expansion, the contradiction and agreement of a growing and reaching within and without. Fine, high-flown words, one will say, perhaps meaningless in the abstract. But where, and in what, can these nuances of direction be found?

In the beginning of the year an all-needs direct communication to run smoothly. We have had the problem that students did not know the administration's mind."—Yes. Dr. Knight is reflected in the inner dynamism of the University. The place, the people, and their actions interact upon one another.

It might seem at first that the academic is so mechanically labeled that University convocation marked the way toward a liaison, however tenuous, between the various entities of the University and the plans and expectations of its new administrative heads. Dean Ball was quoted, "An institution mentioned that he would be traveling over the nation for the University a great deal of the time, and he has been. Yet he has kept one Friday afternoon appointment almost without fail: as a professor he has sustained an informal, yet vitally alive three-hour discussion with a "seminar" of fifty students, a class in which the problems of other men and other places are seen as ultimately one's own. Worlds literally far away and long ago are brought to bear on a different time, a totally different place. And this is but one example of the renewed attempt to cross the bridge between administrator and student, one example of the integration of the University within itself and beyond itself.

The establishment of the Forum continued this thrust in a renewed direction of stepping across the lines of university classification and the walls encircling the "college world." The Board of Governors of the Forum was comprised of members of the faculty, Trinity College, the Woman's College, the Engineering, Medical, and Law Schools. Interests and debate topics ranged university- and world-wide: the President's new house, the National Student Association, questions of South Viet Nam and the recognition of Red China. Even a visiting British debating team was asked to participate, bringing the struggle between Labor and Conservative parties to first-hand light for those congregated on the West quad.

On East, the "outside world" seeped in through the program of the visiting scholar in residence, initiated by Dean Ball. Dr. Julia Henderson, Director of the United Nations Bureau of Social Affairs, was first to undergo the harried rush from morning coffee, to luncheon, to afternoon coffee, to dinner, to evening lecture. The pattern was a familiar one in the college day, but the dialogue and meeting of the minds formed a new contact with a person intimately involved with the international scene. The problems of underdeveloped countries and the possibilities of United Nations work for graduates were both explored by Dr. Henderson with the individual and the many groups on campus who met her.

The casual coffee and dinner conversation provided another nucleus during the year, this time for the new Faculty Associate programs in East dormitories. Again the lines were crossed between professor and student in another attempt to bridge the gap of real communication within the University.

As students took on the responsibility for initiating these new programs, they also found themselves given greater responsibilities in the realm of academics. As the suspension-penalty for cutting classes before and after vacations was lifted, more subtle coercions were still available, yet the early exodus for home was increased. If only in a negative direction, the individual decision was registered collectively. Classes continued, and the individual was still responsible for what he chose to miss.

The weighing of values and choices made, deliberately, or without thought—all found their ramifications on the tally sheet. The Honor System was again rejected by the vast majority of classes, an honor system with the almost impossible stipulation of a necessary 100% acceptance in each class. Yet whatever the motives behind the negative votes, the student was still given the collective voice in determining the possible direction of such a University policy.

What is the goal of such changing directions within the University and extending beyond? Perhaps it is ultimately the hope of deserved distinction. In his choice of individual direction the student works toward success in his own terms. The sights are hopefully high, and results may often equal the goal. In a subtle process up through the ranks, the goals attained by the individual are finally reflected by the attainments of the University. Dr. Knight has said, "Much has been given us, and much will be expected. We dare not be satisfied, as a result, until we are a national force in every field which legitimately concerns us. We have the skill for it; together we can find the means for it; and we must live up to the obligation of them both." Ironically, these words have become a matchbook motto, yet as such they are a constant reminder of the coordinated individual effort and the existence of a purpose beyond the self-sufficient university community.

Thus the honors won by each student contribute to the distinction of the entire University. This year seven rising seniors won Duke scholarships, which are usually awarded for the coming year to the five in each class who have maintained the highest average the preceding year. For the first time there was a six-way tie of a straight 4.0 average. By the middle of the year over seventy seniors had been tapped into Phi Beta Kappa, and fifty-seven were chosen as members of Who's Who.

In a different light, the University profited from the distinction of Nobel Peace Prize winner, Martin Luther King. Page Auditorium overflowed to the lawns outside, where speakers were set up, and the crowd gave a standing ovation to the man who has been so active behind the Civil Rights scene. Several letters were subsequently written to Duke in protest to King, including one from an alumnus of 1949. Yet the tenor of campus thought had been registered by the reaction of the audience that afternoon in Page.

This was one of the few times that Page had been completely filled in the past few years for an outside speaker. Whether from curiosity or support, the University community demonstrated its willingness to participate in this program sponsored by the Student Union.

In other ways the element of participation gave an impetus to the growing life of the University. Although Martin Luther King was cheered by a largely sympathetic crowd, the active agitation of the previous year seemed superseded by another Cause. In this year of the national elections, Gold-water buttons interspersed among Johnson-Humphrey ones seemed to replace the black and white "Freedom Now" buttons over the campus.

Literature was distributed by the Duke Young Republicans Club and College Students for Johnson-Humphrey, and applications for voters' registration found their way to desks and doors. As election date grew closer, the West Information Desk received varied requests for a notary public's signature on absentee ballots from wallet-size to map-size. Buses were filled to hear Johnson speak in Raleigh, and the Beanbirds arose at dawn to welcome Lady Bird to the area.

In the ZBT mock election, out of 1745 votes cast, Johnson led 988-757, with 56.7% of the overall vote. Of these, West Campus went 52% for Gold-water, but the East Campus, graduate, and faculty votes swung the balance to Johnson. Besides the poll, the Chronicle and the Forum presented both sides of the issue, and "equal time" and space was a University policy as well as a national one.

On East Campus, WSGA sponsored a three-day seminar on the Presidency, with Dr. Robert S. Rankin, political science professor and member of the U. S. Civil Rights Commission, heading the speakers. Problems of the presidential succession, and party as well as national demands on the President were faced in the academic arena this time.

As political interest extended into the national field of concentration,

Duke also found itself playing a part on the state political scene. A Democratic rally was addressed by North Carolina Governor Terry Sanford, followed closely by a Republican rally for Robert Gavin and Walter Green. These rallies were sponsored by the student campaign groups as election day drew near and advocates of one party or another made even louder noises in favor of their candidates.

The hubbub of the national elections died down, but most students kept an car tuned to events of note. When the Russian coup was announced, the Chronicle carried two evaluations of its meaning, one by Dr. Warren Lerner, professor of Russian history, and another by a student who had spent a summer in the USSR.

Further steps were made in broadening the student's participation in such programs when Duke this year established a study-abroad program for

On East a French Corridor was set up in the expanding language program. Thirty students agreed to speak only French while on the hall and at dinner each evening during the week. While bridge games sometimes lapsed into English, the program offered a much-needed opportunity for students to become fluent in another language here at Duke.

In considering Duke's relationship to outside factors, the student governments took steps in the evaluation of their membership in the National Student Association. West Campus dropped out of NSA, and after a decisive referendum East Campus also withdrew. Though there were some political overtones, the main opposition was based on the opinion that Duke did not actually profit substantially from membership in NSA.

On a more regional basis, the Student Union sponsored a February seminar on "The South in Continuity and Change." Dr. John Franklin, of Chicago, spoke on the role of the Negro in the South while Dr. Allen Carter, of the American Council on Education, spoke on Southern higher education. Professors Knight, Sindler, Spengler, and Thompson also took part in the symposium.

Political rallies, study abroad, student government policies, and seminars—these are only a few of the University activities in which the student participated in organizations and interests which extend over the campuses, across the nation, and even further. Though the activities mentioned above did not directly involve every student, in the mass of "flyers" across the campus, each student could find countless activities which directed his attention to outside interests.

Days of the college year seem to be so filled with meetings, in fact, that one sometimes wonders if he is majoring in extra-curricular activities. Yet in all these activities opinions were challenged, ideas exchanged, and the results were inherent in a new development and growth. But the change could not come about without challenge and counter-challenge, debate and competition. The Forum, various media, and dialogue between faculty and student all provided one area for countering opinions.

In another area, the competition of University sports revealed something of the year's direction at Duke. Even the rare sunny days of the fall could not seem to muster the spirit of the students in the football stadium. Yet the "try one more time" gumption of the cheerleaders was given a boost by a rousing freshman group who came bearing Duke sweatshirts, devil caps, and enthusiastic posters. Homecoming brought defeat by rival Georgia Tech, and the season closed with Duke bringing home in its pocket something less than the expected winnings.

However, taunts painted across the bridge and accusations that Duke had no spirit were soon erased as basketball time, the team and the crowd seemed to disregard the national rankings of first and fifth that Sports Illustrated had given Michigan and Duke. Spirit was sustained through the moments of a tied score and until the last basket of the game. Through subsequent losses came to the fore. Though the days of the one-man hero seemed to be past, Duke swept into the season with the cheers of a packed Indoor Stadium. Although the Michigan game brought Duke's first home-game loss in a long and winnings, students, faculty, and "Durhamites" kept their support of the team at a high pitch.

Competition across the campus also found a rambunctious spirit of support. Displays and the Homecoming Show of the fall put East and West imagination to work. The Greek Follies were revived, this time held in the Indoor Stadium. If the fraternities and sororities could not all claim concert voices for a "Sing," the Follies offered a multitude of ways for entertainment and satire. ZBTs in their campus parody of West Side Story brought down the house and won first place for the fraternities, while the KD skit on the fate of the "East Beast" captured the sorority trophy. Variety seemed to be the watch-word, yet behind it all, the Greeks were busy with planning, organization, and weeks-long effort to come up with a polished show.

This was the spirit of competition, the urge to be best, the identification brought another link between the University and the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior. This identity of "Duke student" brings back the idea of the label or sign one wears during his college years. But the labels are perhaps indicative of just that search for an identity, signs pointing to the what and how and who one is and might be.

If one is a Greek he or she is identified with a particular group of personalities and activities on campus. Through the loosely knit Greek system with one's own team. Granted that the sports, the follies, and the pig-chase are relegated to college days and college years. Yet the contact across the campus in such events seemed to be enlivened this year. Collectively, the whole University felt the disappointment of not living up to potential in one field, and the same fans vicariously struggled with the team to push the national ranking in another field.

As the individual gave his best in skill or support, the sense of identifi-at Duke, the fraternity and sorority students have an added opportunity for contributing to the integral life of the University across the campuses.

In the fall, nurses and East campus freshmen went through rush together for the first time. Two hundred and fifteen pledged at the end of rush, of which 32 were Hanes girls. The nurses joined ten of the twelve sororities, and the tenuous bond between East and Hanes became a definite one in this area of campus life.

West fraternity rush brought 410 "Shake ups" in January, a figure greater than last year's but a two percent decrease in the overall ratio. The continued open relations during the fall had led to several kinks in the system, but fraternity men were optimistic on the whole.

Meanwhile, IFC revamped its program of structure and organization. Committees were used to supervise the scholarship, budgets, and social programs of the various fraternities.

Joining with members from the student governments, the Student Union, and independents, IFC members formed a new coordinating body, the University Weekends Committee. In this cooperative effort, Homecoming was expanded, with the Student Union providing entertainment by Bob Newhart and Peter Nero, and a new Winter Weekend was planned. In April, Greek Weekend and Joe College brought the campuses again together in quick succession for planning entertainment, floats, and parties.

However, Greek activities were not confined to pressures and parties of rush, weekend blasts, and after-the-game open houses. Joint Christmas parties were held for Durham children, a clear Sunday afternoon even bringing the Beta Santa Claus sky-diving down into the field near Wannamaker.

Greeks contributed to national or local philanthropies during the year, and spring brought a revised, voluntary program of Help Week.

The Greek system in these ways gave one means for the student to find his own identification with those he or she felt most congenial with. Independents found similar house, dorm, or group loyalties, and such an identification in relation to others brought something of the answers to the lifelong questions appearing so sharply during the college years.

The fall Symposium brought to the fore ideas on this same theme from others outside the University community. "The Individual in Mass Society" provided the Symposium topic.

Speakers this year included Joseph Fletcher, of Episcopal Theological Seminary; Norton Long, Brandeis professor of economics; and John Roche, National Chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action. These three authorities in their fields expressed their ideas on the freedom of the individual in today's mass society, and the students had a chance to question, challenge, and support the speakers during the panel discussions which followed, and at several coffee discussions on a more personal basis.

As the student seeks his role within the University and his relationship to a larger society, programs such as the annual Symposium widen his perspective to the problems of the age which confront the old and young alike.

It is against the background of such timely and timeless questions that the college student ultimately spends his four years of thought, activity, and effort. Though he spends countless hours organizing, planning, entertaining, and being entertained, when these hours are sifted apart, there remains the valuable core of study, lectures, discussion, and research. Long hours spent on a term paper . . . labs done, redone, and finally completed . . . a heated after-class discussion . . . blue books filled by the score . . . postcards returned all too slowly or none too quickly . . . transcripts, recommendations, and applications sent to grad school, Med school, and Law school. These are the symptoms of perhaps the most vital part of college life.

Throughout the days of classes, study, and activities, the years seem to repeat themselves. Fall brings the brilliant change of the North Carolina forests, the occasional cloudless sky for an afternoon of football—more often a Durham downpour or smells of tobacco across the heavy campus air. With the beginning of the academic year new plans are laid out, for individual, group, and University.

Fall merges into a winter cold, with term papers and exams following closely on the heels of Christmas tinsel and carols by candle light. A semester break is filled with partying, skiing in the mountains, or battles in the usually late, but heavy snow. Then the whisper of spring brings the appearance of wisteria in the Duke Gardens, and suntans are mixed with “booking it” in legal places and otherwise.

Frantic plans are made for summer jobs and trips, a spring vacation spent in Nassau, on Florida beaches, or in the old home town. Then final exams come all too soon, and another year has vanished. This is the cycle for four years—the freshman arrives with credentials in hand, the senior leaves with many more and modified ones. And the classes in between move a step ahead in the college years.

These are perhaps the usual thoughts, whether one looks back over a single year or four. The place and events seem to merge, with flashes of remembered emotions and reactions. Yet look more closely . . . It is more than a cycle. Duke is not what it used to be: new buildings have spread beyond the Chapel, and old ones given an interior face lifting; plans for an expanded library and new medical complex are soon to be realized. Free buses have been provided with the proviso of a car registration fee. Drinking in West dormitories is permitted, where there was none allowed even at registered parties just a few years ago. Judicial rules have been made increasingly lenient, and class attendance has become voluntary. With these changes, new seminar courses, taught by distinguished professors, have been introduced; student government structures have been revised; and a Student Philosophy has been compiled evaluating a multitude of phases in University life.

In all of these changes, the individual has contributed to a growing institution. And the relationship is perhaps reciprocal. As Duke moves into new spheres of change and action, the student who has worked toward his own goals in college is no longer the same. He has moved from freshman enthusiasm to the traditional "sophomore slump," from organization head as junior to the senior who is eager to pass his office down.

Yet there is a more constant change than the yearly shift from class to class. Each day may bring the beginning, or the close of some chapter. Each individual attempt to change or maintain the status quo or to find a new direction, has its final meaning in the tangible issues, events, and people of day-to-day living. When one evaluates the "college life" in these terms, the years at Duke come to mind as something more than those of a sheltered student who enters college green and naive, and after hasty preparation, is thrown to the outside world.

These four years are perhaps a bridge from dependence to standing on one's own feet. Yet a random glance through the substance of just this past year may show that it is also a bridge of constant two-way traffic: the individual and the University are day by day involved in a very real approach and meeting of persons across the campuses and across the walls. This will remain the college life. Yet consider once again: the problems met, solved or still waiting, the accomplishments made and disappointments felt, the protest voiced or support given, authorities heard and ideas exchanged. Each year and each person can find these elements in concrete experience. This is a part of college life. Yet more—it is a part of living.

ADMINISTRATION

"After two years of quite intimate association, I find at Duke two particular qualities of spirit which have much to do with this youth of ours and this uniqueness, this suddenness of our founding. The first is a very high expectation of ourselves, which grows quite naturally from what Mr. Duke himself expected. Although obviously I did not have the privilege of knowing him, I can see enough of the consequences of his life all around me to know what he himself expected and what his standards were. All of us must feel this if we have a right to be here at all. The second quality grows quite naturally from the first: a sense of impatience with ourselves, a feeling that we want events to take place rapidly as well as at a high level of quality. Now, both these are natural, proper, important feelings; but there has been one curious by-product of these two attitudes. What I am going to say about it has a good deal to do with both the past and the future of the University.

Douglas Maitland
Knight
President

"Because we here at Duke have been both ambitious and impatient, we have not always seen the strength that was actually developing. As a result, we may not have assessed with enough accuracy or enough real confidence the base on which we can build and the level of performance which we now have a right to expect of ourselves. There is nothing more important for Mr. Duke's idea and for the present and future of this University than an understanding of the level of performance which we now must reach and which our society has a right to ask of us.

Dr. Knight holds innumerable conferences in his Allen Building office.

"First, these plans that we have, which are naturally the subject of rumor, gossip, debate, and discussion, are designed to fulfill the best in this University: to confirm its quality, to heighten its effectiveness, and to extend its influence. . . . We [must] move from the genuine quality which we have at the moment to equally genuine and recognized eminence in every field that concerns us. Precisely this is the great job for the next ten years, and equally of the years beyond that. Any university that believes it has arrived is done and finished for a generation, until it comes to its senses. This University does not intend to believe that it has arrived. We can do great things which are going to demand beyond them still more substantial achievements."

From Dr. Knight's Remarks, Founders' Day, December, 1964.

"Let me be quite specific about these forty years . . . The Trinity College faculty in 1924 numbered 62. Today, while the enrollment has grown perhaps five times, from 1150 to 6300, the faculty has grown from 62 to 960. The library of 71,000 books is now a library of well over 1,700,000 books, one which is distinguished equally by the quality of its holdings and by their quantity. . . .

"Now, this increase in students and faculty and intellectual resources has demonstrably been an increase in quality, which has kept pace with the increase in size. That, of course, is an absolutely crucial point about us. But the most important single thing for us to realize about this development is that it moves today at a steadily accelerating rate. . . .

"There are now appropriate major steps for us to take. . . . We are now in a position where, with our combined efforts, we can accomplish what Mr. Duke so clearly had in mind—the creation of a University of true national

Mr. Robert L. Thompson, who directs the financial aid available to

Duke undergraduate students, earned degrees from Florence State College, Alabama and Duke. Mr. Thompson is a member of the College Scholarship Service Committee of the CLEB and a charter member of the Southern Association of Financial Aid Administrators. Under his supervision Duke funds, in the form of scholarships, grants-in-aid, and loans, are distributed to capable students who need assistance. The office also directs student part-time employment.

Director, Appointments Office

APPOINTMENTS OFFICE

Located in Flowers Building, West Campus, the Appointments Office facilitates the acquisition of summer and postgraduate work. The Office arranges interviews between students and employers in both business and industry.

Miss Fannie Mitchell, Director of the Appointments Office since 1949, has been with the Office since its beginning. She is recognized as one of the outstanding women in her field by the Southern College Placement Officers Association and the National Association of School and College Placement. She has served with distinction as president of both organizations.

Recently the Appointments Office has expanded its program to make the resources of its Office available to alumni of the University as well as undergraduates. This program calls for approximately six hundred prospective employer visits to the campus each year for student interviews.

ALUMNI AFFAIRS

The Department of Alumni Affairs is active in maintaining close relations between the University and its alumni. The department plays its major role through its services to former students enabling them in turn to serve the campus. The Alumni Affairs Department coordinates the alumni clubs of all the colleges, participates in programs initiated by the class organizations, publishes several magazines, and organizes special campus events for returning alumni.

Incorporated under the Department of Alumni Affairs is the Duke University National Council. The Council is specifically devoted to the advancement of the University's welfare. Its governing body is composed of present faculty, members of the administration, students, parents, officers of the General Alumni and Alumnae Associations, local Alumni Associations, representatives from each class, and representatives from the alumni and alumnae organizations of the professional schools. This council meets bi-annually, in the fall and at Commencement in June.

The General Alumni body is divided into the Alumni Association, composed of former students of Trinity College and the Alumnae Association which is made up of women graduates. The activities of these two organizations and the other groups of a more limited nature are co-ordinated by the Department of Alumni Affairs. The director of the department is Mr. Roger L. Marshall, who works to maintain the complex relationships between the various alumni bodies and the present University community. Anne Garrard is the Assistant Director of Alumni Affairs.

The activities of Alumni Affairs are fairly numerous and diverse. Homecoming is the most widely known event and attracts the most active participation. In the festivities surrounding this occasion, the present students have an opportunity to welcome back alumni and form friendships of a nature not generally open to undergraduates. Besides Homecoming, other alumni-sponsored programs and events include Founders' Day, buffets, and class reunions which tend further to perpetuate ties with Duke.

Publications are an important part of the efforts to keep alumni in touch with their classmates and with the University. The Department of Alumni Affairs and the Alumni Association publish the Alumni Register ten months of the year and make it available to former students and the University. The Alumni News is sent to all alumni four times during the year.

University Librarian

An integral part of the University, the Duke library is the largest university library in the South and 16th in the nation. The library system, which requires a working staff of over 130 people has 1,700,000 volumes and over 4,000,000 other manuscripts, maps, documents, and reels of microfilms. It receives regularly about 7,000 periodicals and 150 newspapers.

This coming year will see expansion of the library in the construction of a larger building. The addition of this much-needed space is being achieved under the guidance of the University librarian, Dr. Benjamin E. Powell, who directs the administration of the University libraries. Dr. Powell is an alumnus of Duke and has served as president of the American Library Association.

The student is most often served by the General Library on West Campus or the Woman's College Library on East Campus. However, there are seven additional libraries: Biology-Forestry, Chemistry, Divinity, Engineering, Law, Medical Center, Nursing, and Physics-Mathematics. These libraries are more specialized in their materials.

TRINITY COLLEGE

JAMES L. PRICE, JR., Ph.D.
Dean of Trinity College

C. Hilburn Womble joined the Duke faculty in 1958 as an assistant professor of Latin. In 1961 he became Assistant Dean of Undergraduate Men. Last spring, in the course of the administrative changes announced by Dr. Knight, he assumed the duties of Dean of Freshmen. Dean Womble graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1954 where he served as a graduate instructor for four years. A classicist and a linguist, he is a member of the American Philological Association and a past president of the North Carolina Classical Association.

In conjunction with Dean Womble's promotion, Dean Dana Phelps Ripley became one of the two new assistant deans of Trinity College. In assuming his new responsibility Dean Ripley is primarily concerned with the academic affairs of sophomores. Well-versed in the instruction of Romance Languages, he was a Fulbright Scholar to France.

C. HILBURN WOMBLE, Ph.D.
Assistant Dean of Trinity College and Dean of Freshmen

Dr. James Ligon Price, Jr. came to Duke in 1952. He presently holds the positions of Dean of Trinity College and Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences. Prior to his arrival at Duke, Dr. Price was an associate professor of Bible for two years at Southwestern U., Memphis. His recognition as an outstanding Bible scholar was further strengthened in 1961 when he published his book Interpreting the New Testament, a standard text for many introductory religion courses at Duke. In addition to his administrative duties, Dr. Price serves as chairman of the Religion Department at Duke.

Dr. Price received his academic training at Washington & Lee U., Union and Princeton Theological Seminaries, and the University of Cambridge. Since acquiring his Ph.D. in 1950, Dr. Price has traveled extensively in Europe. "I have," he says, "an insatiable curiosity to learn about other people whose culture and living conditions are different from those I've known. I love to travel, not as a tourist, but in order to live in a community long enough to come to know it." In keeping with his philosophy, Dr. Price was a residence research student at the University of Zurich, during the academic year 1960-61.

DANA PHELPS RIPLEY, Ph.D.
Assistant Dean of Trinity College

Assuming the position of Associate Dean last spring, Dr. Howard A. Strobel is in charge of all programs for special students. This post is but one of many in which Dean Strobel has made a significant contribution to the University since coming to Duke in 1948. As Secretary of the Undergraduate Faculty Council, Dr. Strobel belongs to that group of administrators responsible for the final passage of voluntary class attendance. In his own field of study, he is a member of the chemical honorary society, Sigma Xi, and the

Having graduated from Duke with academic honors, Dr. Johnson taught in the Durham schools and later at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Va. He joined the staff of the Duke Summer Session in 1952. Four years later he was appointed to the position of assistant dean of Trinity College and last spring received a further promotion to his present title of associate dean. Although becoming associate dean, Dr. Johnson retained his duties as academic dean for Trinity College juniors and seniors and su-

In the administrative appointments of last spring, Robert B. Cox, Dean of Undergraduate Men, was named Associate Dean of Trinity College. At the time of this appointment, President Knight explained that the change in Dean Cox's title had been recommended in order to recognize the important advisory role he had played for many years within Trinity College. President Knight further stated that Dean Cox would continue his responsibilities for the students of the College of Engineering. In his new role as associate dean, Dean Cox

Currently an associate professor in the Department of Education, Dr. Johnson teaches history of education. He is the co-author of "The Elementary Principle in North Carolina," an article which appeared in North Carolina Education. A native of Portsmouth, Virginia, Dr. Johnson earned his B.A. in history and his M.A. and Ph.D. in education at Duke.

has retained his major role as advisor to the male students of both colleges concerning all aspects of campus life.

Dean Cox came to Duke in 1945 following a recommendation by Dr. White of the English Department. He received his academic training at the University of Tennessee and Peabody Institute and taught for nineteen years at East Tennessee State College before coming to Duke. He has since received his M.A. degree and done further graduate study at the University of North Carolina and at Duke.

WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Mary Margaret Ball serves as Dean of the Woman's College and Associate Dean of Arts and Sciences. She received her A.B., M.A., and Ph. D. degrees at Stanford. Miss Ball, before coming to Duke in 1963, was a professor of political science at Vassar and Wellesley. An authority on international relations, Miss Ball has received both national and international acclaim for outstanding literary contributions to her field. Miss Ball's energetically intellectual personality has proven to be a vital addition to the University.

MARY GRACE WILSON, A.M.
Dean of Undergraduate Women

Mary Grace Wilson has served in a variety of positions in the Woman's College of Duke University. At present she is Dean of Undergraduate Women. She received her M.A. degree from Columbia University. Miss Wilson first came to the Women's College as a house counselor later becoming Dean of Residents, after which she assumed her present position of Dean of Undergraduate Women. Her duties include the supervision of all the non-academic aspects of student life and the integration of these extra-curricular activities into the students' intellectual growth.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

Duke's College of Engineering is one of the fastest growing schools in the University. An engineering library of some 30,000 volumes complements the new facilities which include modern drafting rooms and laboratories. The College itself is divided into the departments of mechanical, electrical, and civil engineering. The Dean of the College, Dr. James L. Meriam, is assisted by an executive committee composed of the heads of these departments: Thomas G. Wilson, Chairman of Electrical Engineering; John N. Macduff, Chairman of Mechanical Engineering; and Earl T. Brown, II, Chairman of Civil Engineering. Dr. Wilson succeeds Dr. Vail, who is now the Associate Dean of the College. Dr. Macduff is presently on sabbatical in Scotland. The Assistant Dean of the College is Dr. Edward K. Kraybill.

GRADUATES AND PROFESSIONALS

Dean Ann M. Jacobansky directs the Undergraduate Program of the School of Nursing. The two-fold purpose of the School of Nursing is to provide an opportunity for continuing personal growth and a foundation for professional development. In addition to her administrative responsibilities, Miss Jacobansky serves as a member of the Undergraduate Faculty Council. Her own concepts of nursing provide the guidelines for her policies. "Nursing is not only preparation for a career, but preparation for life."

Prior to her arrival at Duke in 1953, Dean Jacobansky taught for 4 years at Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing, while simultaneously working on her masters degree in education at the University of Pittsburg.

A veteran of thirty-seven years teaching and administrative experience, Dr. Elwood Scott Harrar attended Oberlin College and the New York State College of Forestry before coming to Duke. He is currently Dean of the Graduate School of Forestry. Dr. Harrar is the author of a number of works concerned with forestry study and wood

GRADUATES AND PROFESSIONALS

A specialist in pediatric surgery and surgery of the cardiovascular system, Dr. William G. Anlyan became Dean of the Duke Medical School in 1964. His association with the Medical Center dates back to the years 1949-50 when he came to Duke as an intern. In 1961 he became a professor in surgery and two years later the associate dean of the Center.

A graduate of Yale University, Dr. Anlyan was a Markle Scholar in Medical Science for the years 1953-58. At Duke he has served as vice-chairman of the University Planning Committee and a member of the executive committee of the Academic Council.

Appointed Dean of the Divinity School in 1958, Dr. Robert E. Cushman is a professor of systematic theology. The son of a noted clergyman, he holds degrees from Wesleyan U. and Yale.

Dr. Cushman has a diversified and extensive list of hobbies: painting, book collecting, antique collecting and restoring, tree farming, sailing and photography. When he is not pursuing one of his favorite pastimes, he finds time to be President of the Association of Methodist Theological Schools and a member of the Ecumenical Planning Committee of the National Council of Churches. He was a Methodist Observer to the II Vatican Council last year.

"My idiosyncrasies are many but they all trace back to being a 19th century character in a 20th century society," writes E. R. Latty, Dean of the Duke School of Law. In 1959 Dean Latty took over permanently the administrative responsibility of the School of Law after having been associated with the School for several years in the interim position of Acting Dean. His academic training includes degrees from Bowdoin College, the University of Michigan, and Columbia. Admitted to the New York bar in 1930, he was associated with the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell for three years. Dean Latty has served with the State Department and written several books.

FACULTY

IRVING E. ALEXANDER, Ph.D., Chairman
Department of Psychology

With the rapid advancement of education, the necessity of highly competent department chairmen has become extremely important. Not only is the chairman responsible for co-ordinating and supervising the work of his staff, but he must concern himself with the needs of his department's program as well. The chairman also serves as a liaison between faculty and administration. Through his personal research and interest in his own field, he typifies the endeavors of the University toward academic excellence.

To turn to the chairmen of the social sciences at Duke, one finds outside responsibilities co-ordinated with departmental concerns. For example, Dr. Irving Alexander, Chairman of the Department of Psychology, is presently doing research in the area of Jungian typology. Dr. Alexander succeeded to the chairmanship after the untimely death of Dr. Karl E. Zener in September.

Economics of Latin America is the forte of Dr. Robert S. Smith, head of the Economics Department. He has published two books and has served as a visiting professor at the Universities of Costa Rica, San Carlos, and Buenos Aires. At one time an honorary consul for the Republic of Guatemala, Dr. Smith is serving his first year as chairman.

is co-author of many books on education, and has worked jointly with Dr. James B. Conant in helping the latter compile his book Study of the Education of American Teachers, 1961-1963. Majors often supplement their education studies with specialized work in other departments in order to prepare themselves for a specific teaching position.

The political science major at Duke studies American and European political systems and is urged to elect courses from the theoretical, national, and international realms of the subject. Dr. John H. Hallowell succeeds Dr. Robert Rankin as chairman of this department.

While completing research studies conducted under the auspices of the Ford Foundation, National Institute of Health, and University Research Council, Dr. John C. McKinney chairs the Department of Sociology at Duke. The fields of race relations and the city are but two areas which attract the sociology major.

EDWARD C. HORN, Ph.D., Chairman
Department of Zoology

The natural sciences departments at Duke have two major objectives in their present courses of instruction: first, to expose all students to those sciences which enable them to fulfill undergraduate requirements and, second, to give solid preparation and foundation to science majors, most of whom plan to continue their studies in graduate schools. The somewhat arbitrary division of the natural sciences into biological and physical categories serves as a convenient means of presenting the University's men of science.

The biological sciences at the University are botany, geology, and zoology. Dr. T. W. Johnson, whose special interest is marine mycology, chairs the Botany Department. Under his supervision all aspects of botany are integrated in a course of study which includes field work, lab instruction, and classification. A Guggenheim Fellow, Dr. Johnson was appointed department head in 1963.

Geology is administered by Dr. E. W. Berry, editor of Southeastern Geologist and listed in the 1964-65 Who's Who in America. Upon retirement this year from the chairmanship of the department, Dr. Berry will pass on to his successor a curriculum which probes into the "how," "when," and "why" of the earth, emphasizing its history and structure.

Dr. Edward C. Horn is head of the Zoology Department, which highlights the fields of morphology, physiology, and genetics. Dr. Horn lists his hobbies and special interests collectively as "research."

The sciences of chemistry and physics incorporate the physical aspects of the natural sciences. Dr. J. H. Saylor—whose private interests include fishing and photography, in addition to zoology, physics, and chemistry—chairs the Chemistry Department. The undergraduate program is geared for basic understanding of the fundamentals of chemical science and laboratory techniques and experimental procedures.

DEPARTMENT HEADS

The course of study ranges from analytical to organic chemistry.

Dr. Henry Fairbank, a graduate of Whitman College and Yale, is head of the Physics Department. He conducts, as a special interest, low temperature physics research. Under the departmental program the physics major takes courses which begin at the introductory level and go as far as nuclear physics.

LIONEL STEVENSON, Ph.D., Chairman

DEPARTMENT HEADS

Study of a foreign language serves a double purpose—appreciation of the language and its literature for their own worth and also understanding of the influence of foreign languages and thought on the English language and its literature. Especially in literature can cross-influences and common themes be discovered through comparison of the works of foreign and American writers.

The Chairman of the Classical Studies Department, Dr. Robert Rogers, received his doctorate from Princeton University. Under his supervision the classical studies in Latin and Greek at Duke include not only a basic understanding of the two languages but also the outstanding literature of the ancients.

In recent years Russian has become increasingly important because of the growing scientific and political stature of the USSR. In response of this contemporary challenge to the universities, Duke's Russian Department offers studies in both language and literature. The department is chaired by Dr. Bronislas de Leval Jezierski, who has greatly increased the number of books of Russian literature available at Duke, largely through his own efforts.

Dr. Lionel Stevenson is the new chairman of the English Department. Of Scottish birth, Dr. Stevenson enjoys the distinction afforded him as a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, and presides over a department which boasts a unique system for the instruction of freshmen in English. In the past Dr. Stevenson has been a visiting lecturer at Oxford University and at several American universities.

The Chairman of the Department of Romance Languages is Dr. John Fein.

HERMAN SALINGER, Ph.D., Chairman
Department of German

In addition to class work in literature and conversation, informal dinner meetings, the French play, and the French Corridor provide opportunities to develop fluency in spoken French or Spanish. Intensive study in Italian and Portuguese is also offered through the department.

Dr. Herman Salinger is Chairman of the German Department, which has now increased the number of German natives on its faculty to one-half of the staff. Duke's new summer program provides study and cultural opportunities in Germany as well as in France and Spain.

CHARLES A. BAYLIS, Ph.D., Chairman
Department of Philosophy

Religion, history, and philosophy are all manifestations of those things which men consider vital in their daily world, and they provide, with language and science, the means by which man deals with his world. In a similar fashion the worlds of art and music demonstrate man's relationship with both the mundane and the spiritual partments aptly illustrates this point.

The History Department at Duke is one of the largest with 326 declared majors. Dr. Richard L. Watson, Jr., who chairs the Department, says: "History is related to any discipline depending on how the discipline is taught." The diversity of history courses offered at Duke provides a wide range of associated disciplines for the student.

Dr. Charles A. Baylis, whose particular field is the study of ethics, heads the Philosophy Department, in which the interest allotted to each individual is the highest concern.

In keeping with the intent of departmental relation, the Religion Department, under the direction of Dr. James aspects of his existence. In giving instruction in these fields, the University realizes a need to inter-relate its subject matter. The overlapping in the content of numerous courses in the History, Religion, and Philosophy De-

Price, stresses religion as an element of culture and the humanities, offering courses which compare world religions.

The Art Department is unique among similar departments in other colleges around the nation in that there are six Ph.D.'s on the staff. The program of the department is basically one of art history and is capably supervised by Dr. Earl G. Mueller, who has worked in both studio art and art history.

Dr. Allan H. Bone came to Duke twenty years ago and has since seen the Music Department, under his supervision, establish itself as a department of consequence in the University curriculum. Dr. Bone is accomplished both as a conductor and as a performer.

DEPARTMENT HEADS

The instruction of physical education at Duke seeks to balance the forces of thought and action that are involved in the performance of each sport. Although both the men's and the women's physical education programs serve as part of the regular curriculum for freshmen and sophomores, the two programs differ somewhat in their stated aims. The East Campus program, under the new direction of Betty F. McCue, is designed to broaden the students' educational background and understanding of people while at the same time acquainting the coed with a wide range of sports and activities. In addition to fulfilling men's undergraduate requirements, the West Campus program seeks to develop

Dr. John Friedrich, Chairman of the Men's Department of Physical Education, and his staff have modified the curriculum of the freshman program during the past year. Under this new system, the student not only learns to develop his skills, but he is required also to learn the theory behind this development. Consequently, three-quarters of the courses is based on theory while the remaining quarter is actually based on the development of skills. In this manner the freshman is introduced to those sports which he may pursue in further detail as a sophomore.

Jeremy North, proprietor of the Gothic Bookshop, is a bearded Englishman with a ready sense of humor. His name is a pseudonym, adopted while writing for a magazine. During the war Mr. North was a colonel in the British intelligence.

Full of southern charm, Robert F. Durden challenges and teases his students with a light touch and informal manner. Students can count on his pipe, his vest, his bowtie, and his boutonniere, as well as his concern for them as individuals.

Dr. Richard Leach, Associate Professor of political science, also appears as a familiar figure in student life as Chairman of the Publications Board, Faculty Advisor to the MSGA Senate, and Chairman of the Honors-Masters program. His easy-going manner coupled with a dislike of long-winded tediousness, often cuts through the verbiage of these organizations to achieve a definite solution to a problem. He teaches his specialties, state and local government, and city planning, with informal "lectures" and class discussions ranging from Durham politics to lively free-for-alls.

Reynolds Price is a brilliant, darkly intense young man with an accent crossed between North Carolina and Oxford, England. Students of his creative writing class describe him as "extremely articulate" and possessing "insight."

The student who first enters Dr. Kremen's Psychology 100 class is at the beginning of a new academic experience. Throughout the semester, the class explores subjects which hold a mysterious intrigue for most college students. The difficult concepts of personality structure and development, and the theories of Freud and other psychologists are made interesting by Kremen's use of personal examples and case histories and his sense of humor. Throughout this, at times, light treatment, however, the student must sense the intensity of the man's interest and the overall seriousness with which he views the field of psychology.

Mr. Pickett is a familiar figure to all East Campus girls who visit his office often. The student's first impression of this friendly postmaster is one of amazement as he greets all of his patrons by name. His cheerful word usually comes at a time of mail-delivery disappointment and so is doubly appreciated. Beyond this, he is known for his golfing ability, prompt deliveries, and postcards deposited in boxes face down. His contributions to the coeds' contact with the outside and his cheering attitude make the praise which he receives well deserved.

Intellect, humor, and conviction—these are three outstanding characteristics of Dr. Peter Klopfer, zoology professor. His class lectures are brilliant, though difficult. With scientific curiosity he runs numerous zoological experiments, but a humorous vein runs through his seriousness. Who can forget the day Klopfer brought a goat to class?

The reason—to prove that he was conducting zoo experiments, but not raising buffaloes, of course. Klopfer has demonstrated the courage to uphold his personal convictions by taking part in civil rights marches.

Dr. R. M. (Nurmi) Shears is noted for his ability in track, his tutoring in five languages and his punctuality. Although not attached to the University, his familiar figure is seen year

The rotting away of civilization since the days of World War I is a constant preoccupation of Dr. William Bush, outspoken member of the Duke French department. Stereotyped too conveniently in the role of the classroom iconoclast, Dr. Bush attacks, among other things, students' unwillingness to think for themselves and to come to grips with their society in meaningful terms. His French classes therefore tend to provoke student reaction to society which extends beyond the class period. Within our ivory tower existence, Dr. Bush reminds us of the responsibilities which lie ahead.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Phi Beta Kappa, founded on December 5, 1778, at the College of William and Mary, is the oldest honorary scholastic society in the United States. There are now 177 local chapters. The Duke chapter was chartered in 1919. Phi Beta Kappa's emphasis is on the liberal arts and sciences, and it leaves to other organizations the recognition of academic success in other fields.

To be considered for election, undergraduate students must have a 3.30 quality-point average for six semesters.

These standards are currently being reconsidered. Elections are made in October, February, and during Commencement Week. Officers for 1964-1965 are Dr. Louise Hall, President; Dr. Paul Welsh, Vice-President; Dr. William F. Stinespring, Secretary; Dr. Louis J. Budd, Executive Committee; and Dr. R. M. WHO'S WHO

Conceived and inaugurated thirty-one years ago, Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities has a dual purpose; the publication provides recognition for students who have served their schools, while compiling excellent academic records and participating in extra-curricular activities, and serves as a valuable reference guide and file for employers. Committees of administrative officers, faculty, and students in institutions across the country nominate the candidates. Selection is ultimately based on scholarship, citizenship, leadership, participation in campus activities, and general service. The fifty-seven students, whose names appear below, have been selected to represent the Duke campus in the ranks of the "collegiate aristocracy." They have indicated that they may be assets to their communities after graduation.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

Omicron Delta Kappa, the national honorary for men who have excelled in leadership, character, and service to the University, was founded at Duke in 1926. The purposes of ODK are: to recognize men who have attained the status of leaders, to mold sentiment on important matters of Duke University, and to provide a structure of communication between students, faculty, and staff. This year, in addition to the regular meetings and committee work for the tapping of new members, the group held periodic meetings with members of the faculty and administration for discussion of major campus trends, problems, and developments. Coupled with this activity, ODK prepared a pamphlet entitled, "Guide to the Administration."

PHI KAPPA DELTA

Phi Kappa Delta, the leadership fraternity of senior women, honors Woman's College students who have exhibited scholastic excellence, given service to the University community, and been leaders in campus activities. It was founded in 1944 by the members of Omicron Delta Kappa, the senior leadership honorary on West Campus.

Requirements for membership include a grade average which is higher than the all-women's average and a demonstration of leadership in at least one campus activity plus participation in several other activities.

This year, Phi Kappa Delta, together with Omicron Delta Kappa, held an evening of informal discussion with Dr. and Mrs. Knight, and met every Sunday evening for supper and discussion.

SANDALS

Founded in the 1930's, Sandals recognizes twenty rising sophomore girls who meet the group's high standards of personal character, attitude, leadership potential, willingness to co-operate with others, intellectual curiosity, and service to the University. This group of outstanding girls is an auxiliary of WSGA which serves the Duke community in many ways: by assisting during Orientation Week and at Homecoming, by conducting campus tours for prospective students, and by ushering at WSGA assemblies.

Sandals feature regular seminars, speakers, and topical discussions treating a wide variety of subjects and areas of interest. The proceeds from the girls' fund-raising projects are incorporated in the Sandals Scholarship awarded each year to an outstanding rising sophomore co-ed.

BETA OMEGA SIGMA

Organized forty-seven years ago to recognize leadership potential, Beta Omega Sigma taps men from the rising sophomore class each spring who have excelled in scholarship, leadership, and service to the University. The honorary attempts to arouse student interest and participation in campus affairs and to develop individual responsibility.

Beta Omega Sigma members work "behind the scenes" during Homecoming, assisting in the election of the Homecoming Queen and her coronation. They also serve as representatives of the University, welcoming returning alumni and visiting educators. BOS is also prepared to serve, when called upon by the Administration or by the Men's Student Government Association. This year, with the Sandals, the group sponsored a car wash, and held a banquet.

Founded in 1937 by the Woman's College Class of 1940, Ivy encourages scholarship and intellectual achievement among freshmen women. Membership requirements are a 3.5 average either for the first semester or for both semesters of the freshman year. Members are, accordingly, tapped after the first semester of their freshman year or in the fall of their sophomore year.

With its West Campus counterpart,

Phi Eta Sigma, Ivy sponsored a banquet honoring all freshmen with a 3.0 average at mid-semester. Other activities included serving as hostesses for girls interviewing for Angier B. Duke scholarships and presenting the scholarship cup—won this year by Addoms House. Ivy girls also provided tutors for freshmen who had trouble with their courses.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Setting by example, high standards for academic leadership, Phi Eta Sigma, national sophomore honorary for men, recognizes and encourages excellence in scholarship. Freshmen who attain a 3.5 quality point ratio for the first semester or a 3.5 average for the entire freshman year are eligible for membership. The honorary publishes a list of tutors, both student and professional, for the benefit of the undergraduate student body. An annual banquet, sponsored by Phi Eta Sigma and Ivy, its counterpart on East Campus, honors all freshmen who have earned a "B" average at mid-semester. This year twenty one Duke men qualified for this scholarship honorary. Dean Hilburn Womble served as Faculty Adviser and Secretary-Treasurer of the Duke Chapter.

ORDER OF ST. PATRICK

The Order of St. Patrick was established on campus in 1945. Its open purposes—the society is a secret order—are to inspire pride in the College of Engineering, to stimulate student interest and participation in the extra-curricular activities of the college, and to foster better student-faculty relations. Since its inception, the order has recognized those men who have demonstrated definite leadership ability. The group bases its membership qualifications on a point system, which considers achievement in the classroom and laboratory and in the activities program.

TAU BETA PI

Tau Beta Pi honors those undergraduates who have shown distinguished scholarship and character in engineering or alumni who have shown comparable attainments in the field of engineering. Selection of members is made from engineers in the top eighth of the junior class or the top fifth of the senior class. The primary goal is to foster a spirit of liberal education in colleges throughout America. The organization sponsored a series of lectures on the correct use of a slide rule and highlighted the year with capping ceremonies held in the spring and fall.

CHI EPSILON

Founded in April, 1959, by eight senior civil engineering students and a representative of the engineering faculty, Chi Epsilon received its charter February 28, 1964. Its purpose is to maintain and to promote the status of civil engineering as a profession, and to encourage the development of individual character and the exercise of technical skills. In order to qualify for membership in the fraternity, a civil engineering student must, as a junior, rank in the upper fifth of his class, or, as a senior, rank in the upper third of his class.

PI MU EPSILON

The North Carolina Alpha Chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary, was founded in 1932 for the purpose of creating new interest in mathematics and recognizing achievements of students in the field. In order to join, one must meet national standards, a 3.0 average in mathematics, and a 3.0 overall average. Induction ceremonies for new members are held twice a year. At these times, faculty members present developments in mathematics and career opportunities in the field.

TAU PSI OMEGA

In 1932, "Le Salon Francais" was established on the Duke campus through the efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Neal Dow. Six years later, this informal group was chartered as the Alpha chapter of Tau Psi Omega, the national honorary French fraternity, whose purpose is to stimulate interest in the French language and culture. This year the group worked in conjunction with the program of the French Corridor in sponsoring speakers and planning a picnic. The fraternity assisted Mme. Dow in the production of an annual French play.

SIGMA DELTA PI

Sigma Delta Pi, the Spanish honorary fraternity, was organized to foster interest in all aspects of Spanish studies, striving to improve linguistic ability and to broaden knowledge of Spanish people and culture. The requirements for admission are an overall 2.8 average in Spanish. Freshmen are not allowed in the fraternity.

This year the fraternity held a banquet to initiate the new members and went on a spring picnic. The President had the privilege of dining with Sènor Sabicus, the famous guitarist.

KAPPA DELTA PI

The Duke chapter of Kappa Delta Pi, a national education honorary, was founded thirty-eight years ago. The organization encourages high personal, professional, and intellectual standards for prospective teachers, while recognizing the contributions made by those planning to teach. To be eligible for membership, juniors, seniors, and graduate students must rank scholastically in the upper fifth of their respective class and must maintain a 3.0 average in education courses. This year emphasis was placed upon gaining an understanding of the North Carolina State Department of Public Instruction—its organization, functioning, and its special programs.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

In joining Alpha Kappa Psi, business, accounting, and economic majors have the opportunity to share common problems and to augment classroom learning with practical experience. Chartered in 1929, the society was one of the first organizations founded at Duke. The aims of the fraternity are to promote better faculty-student relations, to gather a practical knowledge of the business world, and to apply theory learned in the classroom to actual business situations. To qualify for membership, declared majors in economics, business administration, or accounting must have a grade average of 2.0 or better.

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY

The William A. Sally Squadron of the Arnold Air Society, national AFROTC honorary, was established at Duke in 1960. Membership is limited to cadets who have demonstrated outstanding leadership ability and high academic standing.

The objectives of the Society are to develop Air Force officers and to further the traditions of the United States Air Force. The Society recruited AFROTC cadets during Orientation Week, provided instructors for the Durham Civil Air Patrol, and participated in projects with the Durham Boys Club. The Society also organized an Angel Flight, a co-ed auxiliary.

PI SIGMA ALPHA

The goal of Pi Sigma Alpha is to promote excellence in political science and to stimulate an interest in the subject among society members and on the general campus. Accordingly the group includes both faculty and students who have shown excellence in the field. Membership requirements include a 3.0 average in at least ten hours of political science courses. Pi Sigma Alpha annually sponsors both lectures and seminars which are of interest to the entire University community.

This year the members published a booklet containing information for the political science major on summer job opportunities, graduate schools, scholarship opportunities, and government work.

ETA KAPPA NU

Generally, the purposes of the society are to promote and reward scholarship in electrical engineering. Juniors and seniors at the head of their respective classes, and of proven character and ability, are considered for election to Eta Kappa Nu. With its ideals of leadership, scholarship, and integrity, the organization works to achieve better student-faculty relations and to assist the College of Engineering and its student body where and when possible.

PI TAU SIGMA

Pi Tau Sigma, a national mechanical engineering honorary, was founded at Duke in 1944. It accepts for membership only those in the top 17% of the junior class or in the top 33% of the senior mechanical engineering class. The goals of the group are three-fold: to stimulate interest in departmental activities, to develop co-operation among the various branches of the College of Engineering, and to foster the high ideals of the engineering profession. This year, the members sponsored review lectures for the E. I. T. examinations and presented an award to the senior who submitted the best paper in class work and one to the outstanding sophomore.

DELTA PHI RHO ALPHA

Delta Phi Rho Alpha, the local athletic honorary for women students, was founded on the Duke campus in 1921. Each year several rising junior and senior women who have shown interest, good sportsmanship, and ability in women's athletics, are tapped into membership. The purpose of the organization is to promote student interest and enthusiasm for the athletic program. In the spring, the organization presents a gold key to the senior woman who, in their estimation, has most actively promoted athletics on East campus. The members of the honorary participate in the various intramural and individual sports sponsored by the WRA.

Eta Sigma Phi, the national classical studies honorary fraternity was established at Duke in the spring of 1950 for the purpose of fraternal relationship and the promotion and development of interest in the classics. Requirements for admission are a 3.5 in Latin 91-92 for two successive semesters or a 4.0 in Greek 63-64 for two successive semesters. In December, the fraternity held a combination Christmas party and meeting in the home of its sponsor, Dr. James Settle. At this time, Dr. Ullman, an expert in the field of classical studies, spoke to the group. In the spring new members were inducted by President Gay Williams.

The Order of Hippocrates, honorary society of the Duke University Pre-Medical Society, was founded in 1955 to honor those students who have been active in extra-curriculars and who show promise of going on to successful careers in medicine. Requirements for induction are membership in the Pre-Medical Society, an overall 3.0 quality-point ratio with a minimum of 75 semester hours, and a "B" average in

DELTA MU TAU

Delta Mu Tau was formed in the spring of 1962 as a music honorary independent of national music honoraries. Its purposes are to recognize those who have made significant contributions to music on the Duke campus and to serve the cause of music through ushering and other service activities. To be eligible for membership, one must have a recommendation from a member of the music faculty and acceptance by the membership of the fraternity. This year the fraternity ushered for over fifty musical functions and sponsored a Christmas party for the music department at the Villa Tempesta in Chapel Hill.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The Men's Student Government Association is an organization composed of all male Duke Undergraduates. The purpose of this organization is to function as the supreme instrument of government in regulating the affairs of all west campus students. Student Government strives to promote the best interests of the University while advancing the welfare of the individual students at all times.

The MSGA functions within the limits of its Constitution and within the powers granted by the administration. The organization is divided into three main branches: executive, legislative, and judiciary. The executive branch is responsible for organizing all proposed legislation and, after the approval of the bills by the Senate, for seeing that the approved statutes are carried out. The judicial power of the Association is vested in a Judicial Board and a Court of Appeals.

The Constitution of the MSGA places great emphasis on the office of the President, who is the official representative of the Association to the University administration and the only one to whom they may look for immediate responsibility. The President's Cabinet, which includes primarily the Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, Secretary of Education, Secretary of Student Life, and the Attorney General, meets to discuss matters of policy and formulates plans for the future. Cabinet meetings are open to all students and any student may present his ideas at these meetings.

The legislative powers of the MSGA are vested in a Student Senate consisting of two representatives from each of the four classes and the MSGA executive officers. The Senate discusses matters of campus-wide interest and has the power to regulate, supervise, charter, and determine the status of all men's campus organizations.

The judicial branch is represented by the Judicial Board, composed of nine student Justices, including a Chief Justice. The Board handles all cases of misconduct involving students of Trinity College and the College of Engineering.

This past year was an active one filled with many MSGA projects. A Major Speakers committee was appointed to co-operate with the efforts of the Student Union; the political student organization, ASGUSA, was formed; the Senate approved the idea of a Consultant to the Senate; there was a substantial increase in the number of date tickets available to undergraduate students for home football games and also for home basketball games. In cooperation with the Athletic Department, arrangements were made so that the Duke-Army football game came to the Indoor Stadium via closed circuit television; arrangements were made at the opening of school for settling personal property damage claims that were incurred over the summer. An increase was made in the funds available for major speakers; to provide for instances in which the three student governments each contribute to an activity, a co-operative committee was set up composed of representatives of WSGA, NSGA, and MSGA; and the entire intramural program was effectively reorganized with the aid of the Physical Education Department, to mention only a few successful projects of MSGA. In addition, individual Senators and committees were assigned to certain problems: a new robot room similar to the one in House I, desks and study facilities in dormitory rooms, and overall student parking facilities.

JUDICIAL BOARD

Instituted at Duke 13 years ago, the nine man Judicial Board is responsible for all cases of misconduct involving students of Trinity College and the College of Engineering. The nine justices, who serve a one year term, are appointed by the President of the MSGA.

All cases of the Judicial Board are conducted on the Due Process method. A student, if he is to be tried by the court, is given a written notice of the charge against him and is allowed time to prepare his case. After the case has been fully aired, the Board makes its decision privately. The decision must be approved by the Deans before it is passed to the student; the Board and the Deans co-operate fully, but in the case of a deadlock the deans have the final decision.

The power of the Judicial Board is very similar to that of the Supreme Court of our national government. The Board has the authority to interpret the Constitution and acts of the Senate.

Ken Bass, chairman.

It further has the authority to question the constitutionality of any bill passed by the Senate upon request of the President. The Board may also try persons impeached by the Senate and Association members accused of violation of the Constitution, the by-laws, or the rules of the University.

Clockwise: D. Petty, T. Fillette, D. Garr, D. Whalin, B. Goodwin, J. Alden, J. Waldo, P. Chikes, R. Gerbe, R. Fuller.

FRESHMAN JUDICIAL BOARD

One freshman from each of the freshman houses form the Freshman Judicial Board. They are chosen for this position by their house presidents, with the approval of the House-master. This group, responsible for enforcing the "Code of Responsible Living" as it regards the Freshman Class, makes an offender aware of his offense, and, should the offender continue his actions, summons him to a convocation of the entire Board for a hearing.

The Freshman Judicial Board has the authority to try any freshman who transgresses the "Code." Upon conviction they may assess penalties ranging from a warning to a ten dollar fine, and in the case of an extremely serious offense or any third conviction they may send the defendant directly to the MSGA Judicial Board.

J. Cawley, J. Jones, P. Lader, R. Pfizenmayer, J. Brick.

COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals maintains jurisdiction over the affairs of undergraduate men in many areas. The Court primarily reviews cases which have been appealed to it by students themselves. Most prevalent of this type are appeals in regard to violations of the traffic, dormitory, and safety regulations of the University. The Court also reviews cases referred to it by the Dean of men, the Judicial Board, and the MSGA Attorney-General. These hearings, in which the Court exercises original jurisdiction, include any infraction of the Code of Responsible Community Living, as determined by the appropriate Dean, the Judicial Board Chairman, and the Chairman of the Court.

The Committee Chairmen and Auxiliary Officers of MSGA complete the executive branch of the Men's Student Government. The Attorney General and the Newsletter Staff of the Auxiliary Officers group serve as executive aids, while the Committee Chairmen are concerned with the details of the MSGA program.

TRADITIONS BOARD

The purpose of the Traditions Board is to encourage the men of the freshman class to become acquainted with the traditions and history of the University.

The Board publishes a booklet annually, and during Orientation Week the freshmen are tested on the history and traditions of Duke.

ENGINEERING STUDENT COUNCIL

The Engineering Student Council, an arm of the MSGA, co-ordinates the activities of men's student government within the College of Engineering. Through the services of the Council, engineering students are able to benefit from a closer working knowledge of their various activities and are able to avoid conflicts. The Council also represents the engineering students in relationships with the public, the faculty, the administration, and other groups. Responsibility for the student lounge, Homecoming display, Engineering display, and other activities also rests with the Council, as it acts in the best interests of the engineering students in all areas of campus life.

WOMAN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

Working for the second year under a system of legislators from each dormitory and with a newly revised committee system, the Woman's Student Government Association sought to determine and to effectively express the needs of the Woman's College students. Newsletters and dormitory bulletin boards served to put legislators in closer contact with students whom they represented; wider student participation in a variety of WSGA activities was important in the year's work; and close contact with the Administration and with other campus student governments helped to increase the effectiveness of WSGA.

An important direction taken by the Legislature this year was the work done by temporary committees, composed of students from the campus at large and usually led by a member of the Legislature. The work of these committees was not only of great value to the Woman's College, but it also involved a greater number of students with diverse talents and interests in the work of student government. For example, one such committee begun last spring sponsored a program on the American Presidency; another temporary committee continued sponsorship of the International Relations Forum, a dinner-lecture-discussion group; still another special committee initiated a Distinguished Speaker series on East Campus, in which professional women of the area were invited to speak at dinner meetings to interested Woman's College students.

The Constitution of WSGA was further revised this year to make election procedures more efficient. The committee system was revamped, so that the areas of committee work might be more clearly defined, and the work of the Secretariat was expanded. This year the Secretariat attended the

Heather Low, president

State Student Legislature as observers and participated in a Leadership Training Program.

A campus-wide referendum was used on two occasions to determine student opinion on important issues. In one referendum Woman's College students voted to discontinue membership in the National Student Association, and in another referendum held on all three campuses, the Honor System was reconsidered.

In other areas, the Legislature was able to bring about improvements in East Campus life in a variety of ways. Absentee voting facilities were made available. An Educational-Travel-Information center was opened in the spring to aid students in planning summer travel or study, and a scholarship for summer programs which would benefit the entire campus was made available for individual students. A student art show was planned, and a student art-crafts room was considered. Other matters of legislation included such programs as the continuation of "Dead Week," a week's period before final examinations in which all extra-curricular groups were asked to suspend meetings, in order to give students more time to study for finals. Class rings of a new design were made available to meet student requests for a more feminine version of the Duke class ring. Current events boards were placed in the dining halls, and library hours were extended on both East and West Campuses.

This expanded program of the Legislature was possible not only because of student interest and Legislative work, but also because of the receptivity and cooperation of the Administration. This year, for the first time, the Legislature co-sponsored a visiting lecturer with the Dean's office. The coordination of student government with the Administration extended to various committee levels as well. Dean Ball's presence at the meetings of the Legislature as an ex-officio member was also extremely valuable for WSGA.

WSGA Legislature also expanded its work with MSGA through such cooperative efforts as sponsorship of a Teacher Evaluation, work with a faculty committee in planning a Duke Summer Study Abroad program, consideration of the Honor Code, and planning for a Student Exchange with other universities. In addition, plans were begun for an Inter-Campus Council composed of representatives from each student government to consider questions of interest to all three student bodies.

STUDENT WELFARE COMMITTEE

The Student Welfare Committee of WSGA, chaired by Jane Montgomery, forms a liaison between students, administration, and faculty. The committee investigates problems in the practical aspects of campus living, and consequently instigates action in the most worthwhile areas of interest. During the year, the group was concerned with such projects as an extension of library hours, the installation of a stamp machine in the East Campus Post Office, the publication of a Woman's College Calendar, and suggestions for improvements in Dope Shop inventory. In all its activities the committee has attempted to improve relations and existing situations wherever possible.

EDUCATIONAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

The Educational Affairs Committee of WSGA is concerned with the curricular aspects of student life and the intellectual life of the campus in general. Headed by Cynthia Gilliatt, Chairman, and Sky Williams, Secretary, the group is in charge of maintaining the exam file of the East Campus Library.

This year the committee's activities included departmental evaluations by declared majors and the revision of the faculty-course sheets. The Educational Affairs Committee also co-sponsored student art shows with the Social-Cultural Committee. In addition, the group was responsible for special lectures and panels, which were of academic interest to the University as a whole.

SOCIAL-CULTURAL COMMITTEE

The Social-Cultural Committee of WSGA was formed this year to replace the Social Standards Committee. In addition to publishing the Social Calendar, several major functions were sponsored by the Committee. These included the Student Government Banquet, a luncheon for the Trustees, the Co-Ed Ball, a Christmas program with Dr. Knight reading Dickens' Christmas

Carol, and various coffees for visiting professors and guests of the University.

During Spring semester, the group co-sponsored a student art show and conducted a travel seminar.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENT COMMITTEE

The various goals of the International Student Committee of WSGA include sponsoring international students on the Woman's College campus, working to increase communication between international and Duke students, and investigating the possibilities for study abroad.

As a special project this year the Committee held an International Bazaar during December. Various articles from other countries were on sale as Christmas presents, and an International Dinner was served in the Union.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat, an auxiliary of WSGA, originated two years ago under the revised WSGA constitution. Eleven freshman girls, selected early in the fall, make up the Secretariat and work in each dormitory as assistants to their legislators. The Secretariat gives freshmen a chance to work in student government and to learn by helping with administrative work. This group also aids the WSGA secretary by communicating between the Legislature and the student body through a weekly newsletter.

The Secretariat trains girls who are interested in student government at Duke, but the members also attend the State Student Legislature to see student government at work in a larger way. In addition to attending weekly WSGA meetings, the group is responsible for mimeographing a weekly calendar of current events, writing a report of activities for the Chronicle, and keeping records and the WSGA scrap book.

JUDICIAL BOARD

The Woman's College Judicial Board seeks to maintain the standards of personal honor, self responsibility, and cooperation which are vital to the community living situation. The Board is also concerned with the enforcement and revision of the Woman's College regulations. Throughout the year, Judicial Board worked toward more effective policy formation and rule revision through research committees. Each committee, composed of Board members, house counselors, deans, legislators, and members - at - large, studies a particular area of concern, compiling a report of its findings for the Board, which then made specific recommendations for rule revision to the administration. Judicial Board also published a guide for rule presentation for the FAC's, and carried out a program of upperclass reeducation.

NURSE'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

Alice Kern, president

The Nurses' Student Government Association is responsible for regulating all matters pertaining to the undergraduate student nurse, except those problems with which the faculty is concerned.

All members of the School of Nursing actively participate in the working of NSGA since it is the only one of the three student government associations which is truly democratic. All legislation is voted on by the entire student body of nurses in their monthly meetings, and the success of NSGA can be attributed to this active participation of the nurses as well as to their support of specific programs and activities.

The NSGA officers, working as an instrument of the entire student body, try to create a sense of individual responsibility among the members of nursing classes. They also co-operated closely with the faculty in creating and maintaining high ideals for the School of Nursing.

The Executive Council co-ordinates and supervises the diverse activities of NSGA and is also responsible for enforcing the NSGA constitution. Through the Nurses' Honor Code, the Council also endeavors to instill in each student nurse a sense of professional and personal responsibility. The Council is composed of NSGA officers, the chairman of the various NSGA committees and auxiliaries, and the President of the Freshman Class.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE. Sitting: M. Sawyer, corresponding secretary, J. Appleyard, L. Kennedy, vice-president, A. Kern, president, M. Alexander, recording secretary, C. Snyder, treasurer, K. Grimm. Standing: G. Cardona, S. Turner, S. Peterson, A. Kimel, M. Robertson, T. Price, F. Mount, S. Kunz, H. Nagel, P. Crothers.

NURSE'S HONOR COUNCIL

The Honor System has become a tradition and a way of life in the School of Nursing. The Honor Council secures the co-operation of the entire student body in assuring honorable conduct in all areas of student life—academic, professional, and social. Each freshman formally becomes a member of the Honor System by signing a pledge of acceptance in the presence of the entire student body.

It is hoped that living under the Honor System will promote in each student an increasing awareness of individual freedom and responsibility. This awareness, it is hoped, will also help each student nurse to contribute constructively to the School of Nursing during her stay at Duke as well as to help her to lead a more profitable personal and professional life later.

The council consists of a Chairman, the Vice-President of NSGA, three representatives from each class, and three faculty advisors. Recognizing that an Honor System demands a certain maturity, the Council, in trying breaches of the Honor Code, encourages students to govern themselves responsibly. The Council, therefore, bases its decisions on how the growth of the individual and the interests of the School of Nursing will best be served. Thus the Council grants each nurse a maximum amount of freedom while still ensuring that this freedom is used responsibly.

STUDENT-FACULTY

The Nurses' Student-Faculty Committee seeks to unite student and faculty opinion. The committee tries to ascertain and understand both student and faculty thinking on issues and problems confronting the School of Nursing. This hopefully creates an atmosphere of understanding and cooperation in which differences can be reconciled, or at least in which the points of view of each group can be understood.

Through several student-faculty coffee hours and discussion groups, a Christmas party, and an annual spring picnic, undergraduates and professionals are brought together in informal situations. By providing the opportunities for these two groups to get together, the committee hopes that both students and faculty may be able to appreciate a mutual need for constructive student-faculty relations and that an atmosphere of cooperation and understanding may be secured.

RELIGIOUS ACTIVITIES

The Religious Activities Committee fosters the development of the religious life of the student nurse. During the year, the committee sponsors an orientation week service for freshmen, services at Thanksgiving and Easter, and a caroling party. The highlight of the program of special services is the Christmas Choral Communion, a joint project held with two other local nursing schools, for the patients in the hospital.

In its concern for the patients' spiritual life, the committee conducts weekly vesper services, which offer the patients an opportunity to continue their spiritual development while in the hospital. For the younger patients, a Sunday School program is conducted.

The committee encourages the nurses to participate in religious activities sponsored by the University and local churches, and directs religious activities specially for the School of Nursing.

PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE

The publications staff, adding more and varied projects, extensively revitalized its efforts in the areas of student publications. The staff extended the coverage of its traditional annual publications, Boys 'n' Beaux, the freshman booklet introducing the class members to each other and to extra-curricular activities on campus, and The Charge, the School of Nursing handbook, to include a triannual newspaper, Nurses' Notes. This publication included administrative notes and editorials pertinent to the women of Hanes and served simultaneously as a greeting and news-letter to parents of student nurses.

Two other new publications were undertaken and the committee assumed responsibility for all School of Nursing publicity. With the public relations committee, a history of the School of Nursing was published, and the staff worked with the Medical School to publish a joint annual, the Aesculapian.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

Hanes' Social Committee began functioning officially at the tea held in April '64 in honor of the newly installed NSGA officers. Once in office, the committee began planning the summer functions. The first of these was an open house held on Hanes Patio. Later, an evening swimming party was held.

During the academic year, the biggest and most successful social function held by the nurses was the annual Hanes Christmas Dance, attended by over two hundred couples. The theme, " 'Twas the Night Before Christmas," was carried out in decorations, and music was provided by the Rick Vance Combo. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Cheryl Kinsley, as the Hanes Beauty for 1964.

For the spring, the Social Committee decided upon another party to replace those which had previously been held during the summer months.

JUDICIAL BOARD

The judicial body of NSGA, or "Judi Board" as it is better known to the student body, is responsible for trying infractions of the rules legislated by NSGA. Each student is responsible for reporting her own offenses, and the Board, in its punitive action, tries to aid her in supervising phases of her own conduct. This in turn helps the student to see her responsibility as a member of NSGA.

The Chairman of the Honor Council, Chairman of the Social Standards Committee, Recording Secretary of NSGA, and the vice-presidents of the four classes represent NSGA on the Judicial Board. The rest of the twelve-member board is composed of the Chairman and an additional representative from each of the classes.

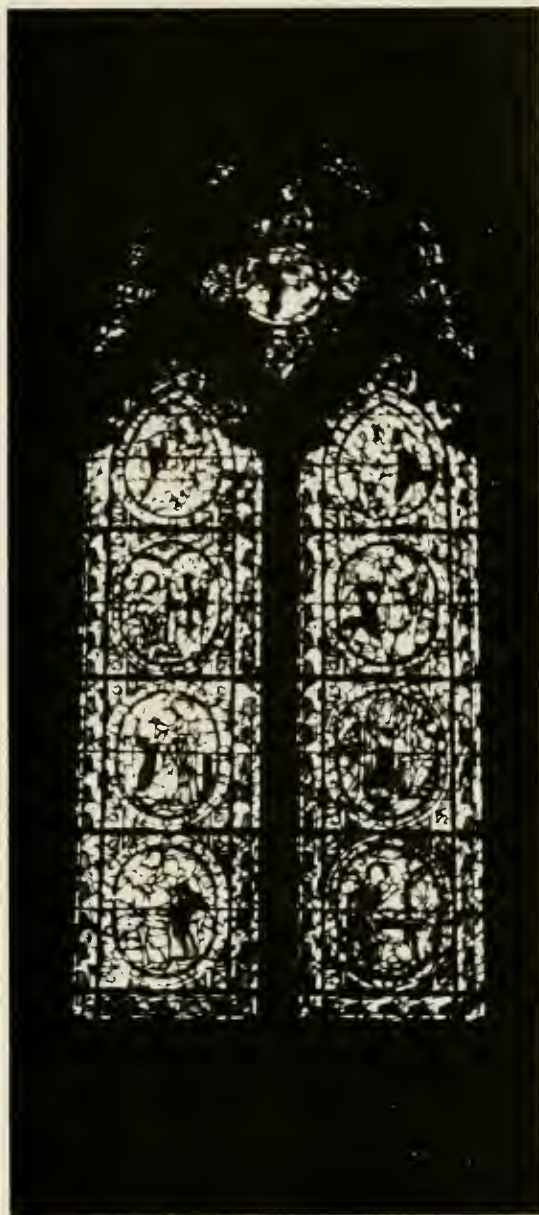

SOCIAL STANDARDS

Hair off the collar . . . Remember to take that jewelry off when you wear your uniform. These reminders are often heard throughout Hanes House and the hospital. The Social Standards Committee exists to give these phrases a purpose and meaning that is useful and necessary in the training of a professional nurse.

The rules of the committee concerning dress, as well as behavior, both in and out of uniform, are considered as guide-lines for the conduct of each student as she represents her school and profession during her four years at Duke and later in life. Emphasis is placed on the responsibility of each student to use her discretion in interpreting and practicing the guide-lines set forth by the committee. Meetings are held twice a month to discuss business and to hear cases. The committee works closely with the Nurses', Men's, and Woman's Student Government Associations.

GUIDANCE

YMCA COUNCIL

The Duke University Young Men's Christian Association is a group of men dedicated to serving the needs of others. Motivated and guided by the basic precepts of the Christian religion, the YMCA is an organization concerned not only with the students at Duke but also the University community and Durham. Each of its committees is conscientiously devoted, not just to passively discussing the principles of Christianity, but to actively incorporating them into one's life as he meets and serves others.

With such a wide scope, an interested student can be certain of finding an area that matches his talents and capabilities. The activities on campus range from ushering in the chapel to sponsoring a "Dad's Weekend," from showing guests the campus to providing "Y-Men" for freshmen. The "Y" also publishes the University Handbook and the official Student Directory. In Durham it works with economically deprived and mentally retarded children.

The Duke YMCA covers almost every facet of university life and affects every undergraduate student. Through its numerous, active committees, which present "ample space for personal development and self-appraisal," the "Y" aims for various programs to benefit all.

The committee chairmen, along with the President and other officers of the YMCA, form the Y-Cabinet, overall governing body of the YMCA. Meeting once each week, the cabinet members formulate policy and plans of action. When these broad ideas are set forth, the achievement of concrete goals is left to the numerous individual committees.

The Freshman Council, composed of freshmen chosen on the basis of interviews, works to provide a liaison between the freshman and senior YMCA's of Trinity College and the College of Engineering. This work involves helping freshmen adjust to university life through various programs and projects, and providing and opportunity for interested freshmen to give important help in the functioning of the YMCA.

The Youth Welfare Committee is mainly concerned with two projects, the Lakewood Boys' Club and the John

B. Umstead Hospital. These two projects are aimed at aiding troubled boys and mentally retarded children. The National-International Affairs Committee provides the University with "Quick-Action" seminars as well as lengthy seminars during the vacation periods.

Another group, the Campus Co-operative Committee, provides interested groups or individuals with Chapel tours and extensive tours of the university. A second phase of this committee's work is to provide Chapel ushers for all events in the Chapel and to maintain the bulletin board in front of the Union.

The Dad's Day Committee arranges for the football weekend when fathers of students visit Duke. The Community Development Committee serves the Durham community by working with underprivileged children, and the Religious Life Committee promotes Christian ideals. The last committee, Public Relations, is involved with all the internal work of the "Y," from distributing flyers to working on the Student Directory.

YMCA

YWCA

The YWCA Cabinet returned to campus in the fall eager to assume some of the responsibilities awaiting them and anxious to utilize the rewarding experience which their end-of-the-year meeting had proved to be. There were new people to meet, new concerns to express, new directions to take, and even a new "Y" advisor. Miss Ann Rowe took over her job as Director of Religious Life on East Campus with much enthusiasm.

A pre-Orientation Week retreat, during which various reactions to summer readings were shared, helped to prepare members of the "Y" Cabinet for their role during Orientation. The spirit generated at Camp Chestnut Ridge carried throughout the week of freshman activities, as Cabinet members, dressed in white, greeted freshman parents with cokes, left nightly meditations on the pillows of weary frosh, sponsored dorm discussions, and held a panel on Student Responsibility, led by President Heather Smith.

With the return of the upperclassmen, things took on a more settled pace. Freshman "Y" was organized under the leadership of advisor B. J. Albers and President Abbie Doggett. This group, consisting of a freshman representative from each dormitory, soon began their own program. Freshman "Y" explored many areas in their activities, from an excursion to see "One Potato, Two Potato," followed by a discussion and a thought-provoking newsletter, to a Lost and Found sale with such fantastic buys as ribless umbrellas! Chief among campus services was their publication and distribution of a Christmas Devotional Booklet. They also had their separate series of encounter groups, while upperclassman "Y" offered five seminars to Woman's College students.

YWCA Cabinet began its first semester with a study of several of Paul Tillich's sermons from his collection, Shaking of the Foundations. Meanwhile, the dorm delegates began programs in each house, some sponsoring weekly devotionals and a few entering new areas by showing movies.

Foremost among the new programs of the YWCA was the weekly Vesper Service held in East Duke Chapel, throughout the year, the "Y" carried on its social services at Edgemont Community Center, Duke Hospital, and the V. A. Hospital. They also worked with the Y-Teens and the Girl Scouts. An expanded tutoring program with several Durham junior and senior high schools provided a way for Duke students to realize a concern which many felt.

As the second semester began, the Cabinet reevaluated its efforts and planned to stress ideas of community consciousness and involvement rather than the more introspective direction of the first semester program. Chief among ideas for realizing this new concern was participation in Operation Breakthrough, a program new to Durham and Duke students. Through Saturday afternoon trips for a first-hand exposure to Durham's problems, and a continued program of encounter groups, the "Y" looked forward to progress on the campus and throughout the community.

Y-FAC

"Ask a Y-Man" was a common phrase heard on West Campus by all the freshmen. The YMCA Freshman Advisory Council, a group of 81 Y-Men and 12 alternates, held a program in the spring of 1964 to prepare for assisting the freshmen. In the fall they helped the freshmen make an easy adjustment to the university community, encouraging them to participate fully and to make their own contributions in their own way. Carrying luggage, assisting in freshman registration, proctoring placement tests, arranging mixers with East Campus—these were just a few of the various jobs of the Y-Man. During that first critical week the helping hand of individual and collective counseling was indispensable. Throughout the year the Y-FAC continued to offer advice and assistance to the freshmen, with emphasis upon a friendly, enthusiastic, and concerned relationship. The Y-Man was always ready to help whenever needed.

WOMEN'S FAC

As the freshman class descended upon the Woman's College campus, the class's anxieties and fears were met by the Woman's Freshman Advisory Council. Chosen from rising juniors and seniors who were characterized by responsibility, leadership, and a desire to help, each advisor was given the job of bridging the gap between high school and college for the freshmen. She was to be a counselor and close friend throughout the year.

During Orientation Week, presentation of Judicial Board regulations, library tours, and arranging mixers with the freshman boys kept the advisors busy.

NURSES' FAC

Orientation week, the beginning of a new, important experience for each freshman nurse, starts in the spring, with the election of the Orientation chairman and the FAC's. The Orientation Committee, chosen from the sophomore class on the basis of scholastic ability, leadership, and interest, acquaints the new class with the regulations and ideals of the Duke community, and establishes healthy relations between freshmen and upperclassmen in the School of Nursing. Although the main job of the FAC is completed during the first week, the committee continues to function informally throughout the year.

Another aspect of the work of the committee is the Big-Little Sister Program. Each junior nurse, acting as a "Big Sister" to one or two freshmen, helps her "Little Sister" to feel at home at Duke and in the School of Nursing. The highlight of this program comes when each senior Big Sister caps her sophomore Little Sister.

ENGINEERING GUIDANCE COUNCIL

Operating under a new system which was put into effect in 1962, the Engineering Guidance Council is one of the freshman engineer's most helpful assets. The Council aims toward a goal of high scholarship and is especially helpful during the first weeks of an engineer's enrollment at Duke. The freshman engineering student is encouraged to meet the challenges confronting him, to face the demands of his required courses, and, at the same time to survive the additional pressures caused by extra-curricular activities.

The work of the Council, however, does not cease after the first few weeks of school. As a part of its year long program, the Council sponsors review sessions in preparation for hour quizzes, and individual tutoring program is provided for students in the problem areas of calculus, descriptive geometry, and physics.

The Council consists of forty-two members who are chosen each spring. The basis for selection entails standards of academic achievement, maturity, and responsibility. Each member is assigned two or three freshmen, who are under his personal guidance for the year.

Under this system the aims of the Council are given a personal application, since each freshman can be helped in areas of difficulty which might possibly apply only to him.

The members of the Engineering Guidance Council pay periodic visits to their groups throughout the year, thus establishing mutual friendships in addition to the main purpose of the Engineering Council, guidance and academic help.

CAMPUS CHEST

The YMCA Campus Chest committee held its annual drive during the week of December 7-11. The major emphasis of the drive was conveying to the student body the real purpose of the campaign rather than the mechanics of fund-raising. Through individual contact with students, representatives sought not only contributions, but realization on the part of contributors that their generosity helped to make life more full for people less fortunate than they. Contact within residence halls provided an opportunity for students to ask questions and to show a real concern in the Drive. Funds raised this year went to The World University Service, the American Foundation for the Blind, The American Cancer Society, The American Heart Association, The Durham County Association for Mental Health, and the Edgemont Community Center.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, brings together college men in the spirit of leadership, friendship, and service. Serving both the University and the Durham community, the Duke chapter of the fraternity provides a constructive link between the two.

Early in the year, Alpha Phi Omega sponsored a leadership conference for the officers of all Alpha Phi Omega chapters in North Carolina. Service projects during the rest of the year included the second annual Lost and Found auction, a spring rummage sale, and ushering at Duke basketball games. A new project was the establishment of a scholarship fund to aid an incoming freshman.

Community service projects included donations from the Lost and Found auction to the Lion's Club and helping with a program to build a camp for crippled children.

The Duke University Religious Council, established as a successor to the old Duke University Church, was organized in 1955. Since that time, it has served as the center of religious life on the Duke campus. From the various committees of this interdenominational, student-faculty group come the plans for campus-wide religious programs and events.

The responsibility for supervising the planning of special religious services and events lies with the Special Observances Committee. Leaders in many fields are asked to share their knowledge with the University Community. In the fall of the year two speakers of particular note were invited to be on campus. These were Dr. Samuel Proctor, Associate Director of the United States Peace Corps, and Dr. Benjamin Mays, President of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Georgia, who spoke to a Duke Conference on the Ministry.

The Interfaith and Fellowship Committee aids in planning events for students of diverse religious, racial, and national backgrounds. The major activities of the Committee are the sponsorship of an international, interfaith group of students from Duke, the University of North Carolina, and North Carolina College, the annual international reception, and the Interfaith Dinner.

Edgemont Center, originally established by the Duke University Church, is still another concern of the Religious Council. The Center has the dual purpose of providing leisure activities for Edgemont residents and providing Duke students with the opportunity to develop leadership skills, learn program planning, and gain some appreciation of the value of social service.

Another program sponsored by the Religious Council is Project Nicaragua, in which Duke students have spent the summer teaching in the mission school in Managua and building a medical clinic for the Nicaraguans.

RELIGIOUS LIFE

The University Chapel, the focal point of Gothic West Campus, is also a concrete symbol of the University motto, "Eruditio et Religio." For just as the Chapel towers above the educational facilities which surround it, so life at Duke combines academic pursuits and religious purposes.

The Religious Life Staff is responsible for stimulating these pursuits and purposes. The Staff is composed of the Chaplain to the University, the Associate Directors of Religious Life, and the chaplains of the various denominational groups.

The interdenominational Sunday Service of Worship is a central part of religious life on campus. Sermons this year were given by Chaplain Howard C. Wilkinson, Dr. James T. Cleland, Dean of the Chapel, and various members of the Faculty. In addition, several distinguished guest preachers participated in the Chapel services during the year. These included Dr. J. Russell Chandrin, President of the United Theological College in Bangalore, India, and Dr. Franklin C. Fry, Chairman of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches.

This is a typical Sunday noon scene in front of the chapel as the interdenominational service ends.

Through the work of the Religious Life Staff and various student groups, undergraduates are encouraged to understand and to share their religious experiences. The YMCA and the YWCA, advised by the Associate Directors of Religious Life, offer one opportunity for this phase of college life. The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes also aid in emphasizing the religious approach at Duke through dinner meetings and programs which extend beyond the University.

In other areas of student life, the Nurses' Religious Activities Committee, the Cabot Society for Medical Students, and the Law and Religion Group offer opportunity for religious insight and service in relation to academics.

In its central position, the chapel with its Gothic tower dominates the Men's Campus.

STUDENT CENTERS

Through services of worship, social activities, dinner-discussions, and recreational and service outlets members of the various Student Centers are united in bonds of fellowship. Lecture series, dramatic productions, and film programs also contribute to the program during the year. The organizations represented are the Baptist Student Union, the Christian Science Organization, the Episcopal Student Fellowship, the Society of Friends, the Lutheran Student Association, the Methodist Student Movement, the United Student Fellowship, the Westminster Fellowship, the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, and the Newman Club.

CHANCEL SINGERS

The Chancel Singers, a group of forty members, represent the most highly skilled singers of the various University choral organizations. Directed by Professor Paul Young, the group primarily strives for an increased skill, through intensive training and practice, simultaneously seeking to master difficult musical works.

New members are chosen on the basis of previous experience, demonstration of ability in another of the choral groups, and performance in auditions. Both undergraduate and graduate students are eligible for membership.

Rehearsals of the Chancel Singers are open to the public, since the group usually works purely for the pleasure of singing, rather than for formal performances. They do present official programs on a few occasions, however.

In the past they have participated regularly in the YWCA Vespers held each week in East Duke Chapel. This year they performed at special Vespers programs, such as the Christmas service.

In the spring the group presented a concert of their own, at which they sang selections from various works in their repertoire. These included several impressive works, such as the "Second Mass" by Haydn and the "Coronation Mass" by Mozart. Brahms' "Motet" and two of Poulenc's works, "Exultate Deo" and "Videntes Stellam," were also included on the program.

CHAPEL CHOIR

Director Paul Young

One of the most tangible traditions on campus is that inherited each year by members of the Chapel Choir. As Director Paul Young often reminds them, it is necessary to be more than "just good" in order to live up to the fine record established by past choirs.

The most outstanding part of the program of the year is the performance of Handel's "Messiah" in December. Members of the University community and persons throughout the state share an interest in this traditional program.

This year the choir, with performing soloists from New York, gave two programs of the "Messiah." Afterwards the group gathered for a banquet and sang Christmas carols together.

The Choir also presents a concert each spring, but its major work is providing music each Sunday for the Chapel Service. To maintain a constant "concert pitch," all members are required to participate in one other choral group.

CONCERT BAND

The Duke Concert Band included a variety of events on its calendar for this year. A lawn concert was presented in October. For its winter concert the group gave a program of music from Imperial Russia, featuring works of Rimsky-Korsakov, Liadov, and Mousorgsky. Some of these works were also part of the program for the "Kiddies Konzert" in January, along with several light pieces. The Band's spring schedule began with a tour during spring holidays. Then came the spring concert featuring "Three Commentaries on War" by Meyerotzy. The season ended with a pops concert and later a beach trip for the band members.

MADRIGAL SINGERS

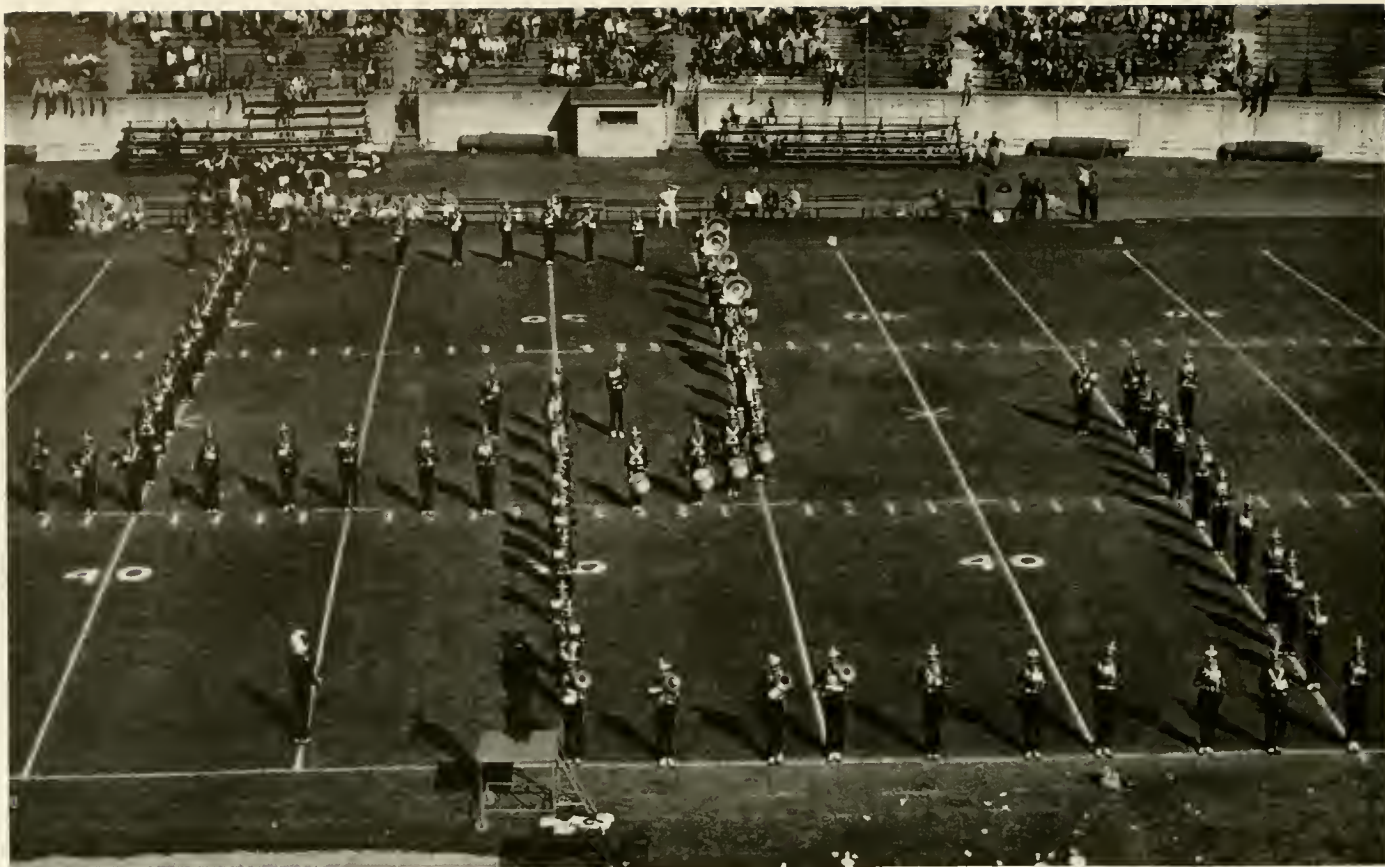

Mrs. Eugenia Saville, Director

The Duke Madrigal Singers are chosen and sponsored by the University Department of Music. This group is fairly small, for it is one of the most select of the vocal groups on campus. Under the capable direction of Mrs. Eugenia Saville, the members perform some of the most difficult music studied here. Its repertoire, consisting mainly of vocal chamber music which is beyond the scope of the larger chorus, comes, as implied by the name of the group, from the "classical" madrigal and song literature of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The fifteen-voice mixed chorus is an all-student group which has been in existence for over twenty years. During this time, the efforts of the Madrigal Singers have been primarily devoted to the mastery of such difficult music, rather than to actual performances, but the group does present occasional concerts.

The highlight of their program this year was the annual Christmas Concert. Several variations in presentation made this concert unique. The latter half of the program, "Historia von der Geburt Jesu Christi" by Schutz, was directed by a guest conductor and accompanied by violins, trumpets, recorders, bassoon, cello, and harpsichord. The selections during the first part of the program also demonstrated the linguistic versatility of their repertoire. Latin works predominated, including "Gloria" from "Missa de Beata Virgine," Byrd's "Beata Viscera" and "Beata Progenies" from the fifteenth century Old Hall manuscript.

MARCHING BAND

"Want a free trip for one to the Navy game? Join the DUMB!" This offer appeared on a poster at the beginning of the year, and it mentioned only one of several advantages enjoyed by the members of the Marching Band.

This organization has entertained Duke football fans for fifty years, the last five under the direction of Mr. James Henry. The 1964 band, under President Jack Abbott, performed at all the home games, and away games with Wake Forest, University of North Carolina, and Annapolis. Half-time performances included show tunes, jazz tunes, and "Du Mar Number 2," an original composition by the band's musical arranger, Richard Trevarthan.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The Duke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Professor Allan Bone, is a university-community alliance. While its woodwind and brass sections are mainly composed of students, the string sections include faculty and townspeople from the surrounding area. This year, two full orchestra concerts were presented in November and March, featuring violinist Giorgio Ciompi and pianist Ronald Fishbaugh. In October and February, a small orchestra was selected from the larger Symphony for several concerts. In April a similar program was held for the American Guild of Organists. For this occasion Iain Hamilton was commissioned to write a Concerto for Organ and Small Orchestra. Marilyn Mason, head of Organ Instruction at the University of Michigan, was featured soloist.

Paul Young, Director

The Musical year at Duke began before the academic one for members of the Men's Glee Club as they returned early to rehearse for a performance at vespers on Freshman Sunday. Their efforts had at least one immediate effect. An assembly was held at which music students and prospective participants in the Glee Club were introduced to various aspects of Duke's musical program. The response to Glee Club auditions was unusually enthusiastic. This enthusiasm increased membership to seventy-four, and carried over through the rest of the year's performances.

The first of these was a joint fall concert with the Women's Glee Club in November. The program for this performance included selections with a wide range of variety. The Men's Glee Club began with two songs in German, "Der Jäger Abschied," by Mendelssohn and "Gute Nacht." They continued with "Maiden Fair," by Haydn, then changed to a Spanish selection by Mejia. Their last four selections consisted of popular ballads such as "Shenandoah," "The Foggy, Foggy Dew," followed by a lively "Wait for the Wagon." In conclusion, they joined the Women's Glee Club to

Shortly after their fall concert, the group travelled to Raleigh to sing at the dedication of the new State House. Most of the members also participated in the Chapel Choir's presentation of the "Messiah," making their pre-Christmas season an unusually busy one.

During second semester, the Men's Glee Club made its thirty-seventh annual Spring Tour. Each year the group has alternated in making a trip north, or to Florida, during the spring holidays. This year they gave concerts in such cities as Richmond, Washington, Norfolk, Philadelphia, and New York.

Practice sessions such as this are held twice a week.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Until more than a decade ago, the Women's Glee Club was not a performing organization, but functioned only as a rehearsal group for Chapel Choir. Since Professor Paul Young has been Director of Choral Activities, the organization has become a renowned group in its own right. It seeks "to provide a varied and stimulating musical experience to the inexperienced as well as the experienced singer."

On Tuesday and Thursday evenings the Glee Club gathered in the Baldwin Auditorium to rehearse for three annual programs which were scheduled. The music performed ranged from sacred to secular, from baroque to modern.

Good examples of the variety in its repertoire could be found in the selections presented during the fall at a concert with the Men's Glee Club. These included Kodaly's "Ave Maria," cluded a very different group of selections, ranging from Brahms to the very modern "Caroline Million" by Fine. The spring portion of Britten's "Ceremony of Carols" was also included on the program.

These same selections, along with others, were part of the repertoire used by the group on its programs for various out-of-town engagements in the North Carolina area during the spring semester.

Mr. James Young served as Assistant Director under Professor Paul Young in carrying out the year's program.

HOOF 'N' HORN

Hoof 'n' Horn has justly won fame, not only on the Duke campus, but in the entire area. It is the oldest musical comedy organization in the South, tracing its history back to 1936. The club has proven its ability to adapt to changing demands for entertainment, and at the same time it has maintained an identity of its own. It was first founded to produce original plays written by students; however, the self-supporting organization now presents one well-known musical comedy each year.

In accordance with tradition, the performances this year were given during Joe College Weekend, and on Saturday and Sunday nights of Commencement Week.

These shows were completely produced, directed, and staged by students. This policy supports one of the basic aims of the group: to provide an opportunity for students to develop special talents in areas ranging from painting scenery to all phases of production, direction, and acting.

The executive council of twelve members was busy throughout the year selecting a production and designating those who would serve in administrative positions. This year the group chose Cole Porter's Out of This World. Doc Clay was chosen as director, and Sally Hall as producer. Carol Jennings was in charge of publicity, Camille Combs headed choreography, and Larry Misenhiemer served as technical director.

In February plans were presented to the entire membership in a general meeting. In order to give newcomers a better idea of the club's work, old members presented four scenes, including a small ensemble, "Never, Never Be an Artist," and a duet, "C'est Magnifique," from last year's show, Can-Can, and "The Telephone Hour" from the previous year's musical, Bye-Bye Birdie. Afterwards the audience was invited to an open house and to tryouts. A cast of about forty was selected, launching Hoof 'n' Horn on another successful production.

DUKE PLAYERS

Mack the Knife's gang show their ferocity.

Duke Players this year held one of the most thorough orientation programs presented by any campus organization. During the first week, the campus theatrical season began with two performances of the one-act play, "A Phoenix Too Frequent." The director of the Duke Players took this opportunity to invite all interested freshmen to an open house after the performance. A memo was later sent to all those who had indicated an interest during Student Activities Night. This memo described the Duke Players' view of themselves: "happy slaves of opening nights and Fresnel lights, who regard Branson building as home and mother, and who manage, somehow, to produce drama acceptable both to audiences and critics . . . a dedicated bunch of slovenly gung-hoers, neither very beat nor extremely formal."

In a more formal description, the Duke Players form an organization which has existed as long as the University has, responding to a basic need for dramatic appreciation and accomplishment on campus. They are presently sponsored by the English department, with Mr. Kenneth Reardon and Mr. Victor Michalak as faculty advisors and directors. Mr. John Amari serves as Technical Specialist for the group. An executive council selects the season's bill, which is subject to the approval of the directors and general membership. A prospective member of Duke Players must have participated in two productions in any capacity.

This year, for the first time, the group expanded their season to five formal productions. Three of these, "The Maids" and "The Bald Soprano," on a Theater of the Absurd bill, "Harvey," and "Threepenny Opera" were produced in Branson's theater-in-the-round. In contrast of staging, "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Queen and the Rebels," were held in Page Auditorium. The group also assisted the music department in performing a Studio Opera in the spring.

THE HARLEQUINS

The Harlequins began singing together in the spring of 1961. Through a process of rearranging songs off records, rewriting other groups' material, and writing their own songs, they have built up a repertoire of over sixty numbers. The purpose of the Harlequins is not merely to sing for their own benefit, but rather to entertain others. With two record albums to their credit, they have ventured from South Carolina to Pennsylvania singing for audiences. The songs vary from old favorites to modern jazz, with folk songs, barbershop arrangements and joke tunes along the way. This past year has been a rebuilding one for the Harlequins, as they lost over half the group due to graduation in 1964. The new group gave several East Campus concerts, sang for conventions in Durham, and performed regularly at Balentine's Rebel Room. The highlight of the year was a program at Turnages Barbecue Place for a doctors' conclave.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

Publications Board, a body composed of administration, faculty, and student members, acts as the publisher for all official undergraduate publications. These include the Chronicle, the CHANICLEER, Peer, Playbill, Archize, and DukeEngineer.

Chaired this year by Dr. Richard H. Leach, the board met monthly to formulate policies, air problems and grievances, and enforce regulations of the various publications represented.

The Playbill, which went defunct last year due to lack of student interest in publishing it, was revived this winter with the election of Phil Graitcer as editor and Doug Bischoff as business manager.

One problem of Pub Row, photographic equipment, was solved when the Board authorized and purchased a new enlarger and a Crown Graphic camera for special use.

The Bassett Lecture Series Committee, which was established two years ago, and had started several things last year—the annual lecture series for publications, the award of a prize for the best story appearing in the South Atlantic Quarterly magazine, and the bust to John Spencer Bassett, was dissolved this year, since no one on the Board had sufficient interest in the committee. The lecture series portion will in the future be sponsored by the Student Union Educational Affairs Committee. The winner was chosen for the South Atlantic Quarterly story, and it was decided that in the future it would be better to give awards to students publishing in Duke undergraduate publications.

The Finance Committee, headed by John Freeman, handled all financial matters coming before the Board. Budgets, monthly statements, subsidy requests, and other financial questions were reviewed by the committee.

In April, the Board held elections of new editors and business managers of the publications. Each candidate submitted a petition to the Board and appeared for an interview with the Board.

Each college year has its own personality, resulting from multitudes of unique, meaningful experiences. By capturing, as accurately and thoroughly as possible, these experiences and compiling them annually, the CHANTICLEER serves to reflect college life at Duke. Not only does it record the organizations, the classes, and the school's activities, but it captures the spirit, emotions, and reactions with which members of the student body faced this myriad of campus happenings.

Such a plan is accomplished only through the constant efforts of the CHANTICLEER staff, which is composed of two main sections, the Editorial and the Business staffs. Photography, writing copy, and drawing lay-outs, are done by the Editorial staff, while the Business staff takes care of the "behind-the-scenes" jobs—balancing the budget, conducting the beauty contest, and planning the class sections. Both of these staffs, composed of members from all four classes, work for thorough coverage of every activity with which members of the student body are concerned.

The final task of coordinating the two staffs is the duty of the Editor-in-Chief and the Business Manager.

THE DUKE CHRONICLE

The Duke Chronicle, as the only University-wide news organ, attempts to keep the students and faculty informed of campus activities and controversies. Most of the space on the news pages is devoted to developments on campus or to broader issues that have direct relevance to the University, since the Chronicle feels that an eight-page bi-weekly cannot adequately cover national news.

The function of the Chronicle is not only to inform, but to comment upon current campus events. The editorial pages reflect not only official editorial position, but also provide a forum for the expression of various student opinions. Signed editorial columns are a means for student leaders to explain the activities and aims of their organizations, and for interested students to express an opinion on the place of the individual in the University community. Letters to the editor also form a regular feature of the editorial page.

Comments and quips of a lighter nature came this year from the editor's office, "308-A." More humorous and biting comment was known to infiltrate the editorial page from an anonymous source named Dak.

Editorials throughout the year praised and attacked both students and administration. Criticism of library hours was instrumental in a longer schedule for both East and West libraries. The proposed revision of the academic year met strong editorial comment, and student health services were examined in a series of articles. The Chronicle praised administration planning and the search for academic excellence.

Editor Michael Peterson continued the traditional student support of liberalization in various areas of student-faculty relations. Editorial comment throughout the year not only approved real steps; it planned for future progress. Students in various fields contributed to the work of the Chronicle. Much of the actual writing was assigned to freshman reporters under the supervision of several news editors. Organization and planning of the news pages fell within the responsibilities of the Managing Editor. Occasional features, reviews, and coverage of off-campus activities came from feature writers and other staff members.

Most of the actual writing and all of the planning occurred on Wednesdays for the Friday issue, and on Sundays for the Tuesday issue. Space was set aside for expected news breaks, and late-breaking stories occasionally caused an unexpected change in page one. Because of the printing schedule, the editorial page was also changed from time to time to reflect news breaks.

Sports coverage was also "second-run," with the flexibility of the last of two printing shifts. The last page covered minor as well as major sports, intramural competition and league standings. Features on well-known student athletes added to the overall sports picture, while the regular column, "Time-Out," gave the reader a unique view of campus sports.

Advertising was necessary for the Chronicle to maintain its standard of operation. Under Business Manager Patrick Fox the financial staff supported the school subsidy with a regular set of national and local ads.

The Archive has one of the most diverse and interesting histories of the publications at Duke. Originating in 1887, when Duke was still Trinity College, the Archive has undergone a long series of changes, adopting nearly as many formats as editorships. For many years it was published eight times a year, and was described as "a humor and literary magazine." In 1938, the Archive defended itself against accusations of fascist tendencies and of being an organ of race-discrimination propaganda.

In 1949, the magazine was changed to a literary quarterly. Since becoming a literary periodical, the Archive has provided one of the best means by which the Duke student body and faculty could receive recognition for their creative literary efforts.

This year's Archive activities were primarily centered upon encouraging young artists at Duke. Monthly workshops were held at the Ivy Room with poets Jim Applewhite and Richard Kelly offering criticism. The Archive also sponsored readings in the Green Room and the Freshman Writing Contest. Another opportunity giving writers a chance to express themselves was the annual Archive Festival in April, featuring a visiting panel of well-known authors who discussed and criticized student writing.

The Editor, Kaye Vale, decided the activities and the format of the magazine. The staff consisted of ten persons, each concerned with a particular area of the magazine's publication. Seven editorial positions were filled by persons responsible for the literary and artistic work in the magazine: fiction, poetry, essays, art work, interviews, and reviews. Three other positions were managerial, primarily concerned with finances and circulation of the Archive.

THE DUKENGINEER

"This publication is strictly a student venture, and as such it will act as a medium through which the students can keep in contact with the functions and activities of the various engineering organizations. It will also serve to promote greater interest and initiative in extra-curricular activities by giving recognition for work done in this field. Lastly it will tend to bring about a better relationship between the faculty and students."

With these objectives as quoted from the first issue, the DukEngineer has grown from its original form to one of the nation's superior college engineering magazines. The magazine derives most of its material from the work of the student body of the College of Engineering and from industrial advancements in the fields of electrical, civil, and mechanical engineering.

John Walden as Editor, directed the ten member staff responsible for the DukEngineer's publication this year. The Editor and Business Manager are chosen each year by the Publications Board, and these two officers then select the remaining eight members of the staff.

PEER

Surviving its eleventh year of publication, Duke's own humor magazine, Peer, once again served as an important step in the University's Rise Toward Greatness.

Five issues of Peer, packed with ubiquitous satire and diabolical spoofs, appeared at regular intervals throughout the year. The publication was an excellent medium for writers and photographers to air their grudges against humanity, and also provided subscribers with quickie flyswatters and gifts for future mothers-in-law.

Peer staffers racked their brains in order to produce articles, editorial comment, and cartoons reflecting and interpreting everyday, on-campus situations. In fact, the flow of ingenious ideas and materials was so great that it spilled over into a "university extra," or parody on the campus newspaper.

Despite chronic indications of mental turmoil which perennially trailed from the quaint little office on third floor Flowers, the magazine was branded a general success when factors such as I. Q., psychotic tendencies, and blood

RADIO COUNCIL

The Radio Council, which came into being shortly after the founding of WDBS, almost seventeen years ago, continues to serve as the Board of Directors of the radio station. The Council is composed of five administrative and faculty persons, the managers of WDBS, two elected representatives from West campus, two appointed representatives from East campus, one appointed representative from the School of Engineering, and one appointed representative from Hanes. Each school of the University is thereby allowed a voice in determining the broadcasting format of WDBS.

Along with making major policy decisions, the Radio Council is responsible for the election of student officers for WDBS and for approving the budget for the station. The majority of the Council's business is handled at the five regularly scheduled meetings throughout the academic year, but call meetings are held whenever a problem of immediate concern arises.

ENGINEER'S RADIO ASS'N

Since its organization in the early 1930's, the Engineering Radio Association has grown to a position of prominence in the field of amateur radio operations. During its history on campus, it has won numerous local and national awards.

The principal objective of the Association is to provide a ham radio station where engineering students can gain practical experience in radio-electronics. Through the use of the radio station's facilities the students acquire both the necessary hours and the experience required to obtain a federal license for ham radio operators.

Although all engineering students are allowed use of the facilities, Doug Cotter has been in charge of the operation and maintenance of the ham radio facilities for this year.

WDBS

WDBS, "First on the Dial" (560ke), serves a dual purpose in the Duke Community; not only does it provide the best in music, news, sports, and features to East and West Campuses, but it also reflects the student life on the Duke campus to the surrounding area. WDBS, through the continued efforts of its forty-eight members, has achieved these goals with great success. Simultaneously, the members have gained for themselves experience in the announcing, sales, advertising, accounting, engineering, and managerial fields of radio communications.

The story of successful broadcasting has marked WDBS since its organization in the fall of 1947 by a group of students who then operated the station for an hour a day. In 1951 the radio station was officially organized by MSGA as a student activity, and with this blessing, WDBS was able to purchase professional equipment and studios and begin full operations. In 1957 WDBS became the first college radio station to broadcast twenty-four hours a day, and the following year it was voted the outstanding student station in the country. This came as no surprise, since WDBS had just that year originated the Duke Sports Network, feeding the Duke football and basketball games to a network of twenty-six stations. Numerous awards have followed since that time, and WDBS continues to grow. This fall, WDBS moved into brand new air-conditioned offices on East Campus, providing the staff with broadcast facilities comparable to the best commercial stations in the area.

Making good use of its new facilities and guided by Station Manager James Boughton, WDBS continued as in the past to broadcast twenty-four hours every day of the academic year. Coverage of campus elections, basketball, baseball and freshman basketball games, as well as special speeches and events in the area, only highlighted what was already an excellent program. Each evening at 7:00 p. m., there was a World News Roundup which consisted of United Press International and local newscasts. Beginning at 7:15 and lasting until 9:00, the "University Hour" was devoted to classical music; this was followed by two hours of jazz and folk music. Thus, since the afternoon hours were filled with songs from the "Top fifty," all musical tastes were satisfied.

The staff, divided into the fields of announcing, engineering, and production, has maintained high quality broadcasting and remained almost entirely self-supporting. The station derives a substantial part of its operational expenses from local and national advertising. It also receives a student organization allowance, which helps to meet the numerous expenses of such a complex activity.

SYMPOSIUM

Dr. Long lectures on "The Myth and the Reality of Mass Society."

Dr. Long discusses a point with students after the panel.

The addition of a pre-symposium program, cooperation between various campus organizations and individuals, and efficient planning all contributed to the success of the 1964 Symposium, "The Individual in Mass Society."

Three well-known speakers aired their views on varied aspects of the place of each individual in the pattern of society. Dr. John P. Roche, Chairman of the Department of Politics at Brandeis University and National Chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action, delivered the initial address of this year's symposium. Having written several books, including Shadow and Substance, and numerous articles on the topics of politics and freedom in our society, Dr. Roche was well qualified to begin the symposium with his address on "Freedom in Mass Society." The following evening, Dr. Norton Long, presently Professor of Political Science at Northwestern University, spoke on "The Myth and the Reality of Mass Society." This topic closely paralleled Dr. Long's interests in public administration and community organization. "Leviathan Society and Lilliputian Men: An Essay on Discontent and Self Renewal" was the topic of Dr. Joseph Fletcher's address. Dr. Fletcher is currently Professor of Pastoral Theology and Christian Ethics at the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Cambridge, Massachusetts. There have been numerous books and articles by Dr. Fletcher concerning such topics as The Church and Industry and Morals and Medicine published in recent years.

In addition to the three major addresses each evening, there were short panel discussions by the speakers. During this time, each speaker expressed his opinion concerning the issues raised in the evening's speech. To complement the evening programs, there were more informal morning seminars and an afternoon coffee held.

Through the carefully planned program of this year's symposium, led by Chairman Craig Worthington, the purposes of the Symposium Committee were completely fulfilled. The expressed goal of this committee is "to stimulate the campus to think seriously about topics which are vital to, though divorced from, their regular course work, and often too, their concept of the nature of a university community." The committee tries to prolong the effect of the Symposium by working to prepare the campus for the program and trying to maintain throughout the year an atmosphere of intellectual excitement. Its members hold positions in many groups whose influence they find helpful.

The tremendous responsibility which rests with the committee is the motive for the diversity and selectivity of its members. Each spring the graduating seniors choose the eighteen at-large members of the committee. Three faculty members and representatives of the major contributing organizations are then selected by the committee.

DEBATE TEAM

The Duke Debate Team, active since the days of Trinity College, provides an opportunity for students to improve speaking ability and become efficient in logical persuasion. Under the leadership of Captain Drew Colelough, the debaters enlarged their general program and launched an all-out recruiting campaign. Guest speakers and demonstration debates highlighted regular meetings and more emphasis was placed on coaching.

At all national or conference tournaments, the team, coached by Dr. J. C. Wetherby, debated this year's topic, "Be it resolved: That the federal government should establish a national program of public work for the unemployed."

Debating in the fall included participation in the Carolina Forensics, the Wake Forest Novice Debate Tournament, and the Dixie Classic Debate Tournament. January brought the annual A.C.C. Debate Tournament, and in the spring, Duke participated in invitational tournaments at Richmond, Navy, and West Point. In March, the team sponsored the Duke Invitational Tournament at the University.

Scenes such as this are typical of the weekly debates presented on Thursday afternoons in the main quad by the Duke Forum.

FORUM

Chartered in October of this year, the Duke Forum serves to acquaint the Duke student with controversial issues of importance—whether they be Vietnam, Red China's admittance to the U.N., birth control, or protecting the campus from elephant invasion. Approximately bi-weekly on the Main Quad students are invited to express their opinions in open-air sessions. More formal debates are also held among members of the Forum who then express resolutions concerning the topic. Both the open-air sessions and the formal debates provide an opportunity for members to present articles, Honor Papers, and other writings of merit.

All members of the University Academic Community are invited to participate in the Forum, although the fundamental responsibility for the program of the organization rests with the Full Members.

RECREATIONAL

STUDENT UNION

After ten years of service to the campus, the primary purpose of the Duke Student Union remained to provide extra-curricular educational opportunities for the students. Through its seven committees and Board of Governors, the Student Union was able to carry out a wide number of social and cultural activities, in order to create the widest possible appeal.

The Social Committee began the year with a Combo Party honoring the Class of '68 during freshman week. This committee was also responsible for the after-game open houses during football season and cabarets after home basketball games. For the UNC football weekend, the Social Committee sponsored a dance featuring the Shirelles. An open house was also held for Dad's Day Weekend.

The Union Major Attractions Committee brought major talent to the University as special features or as part of existing big weekends. This year the committee brought Peter, Paul, and Mary for Dad's Day; two Broadway plays, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf and Beyond The Fringe; the Platters for Winter Weekend; the Bitter End Singers for a concert after the Virginia football game; Peter Nero and Bob Newhart for Homecoming.

Under the heading of Educational Affairs fell two major activities: the Major Speakers Program and the Student Union Seminar. The Speakers' series included such names as Juscelino Kubitschek, former president of Brazil, Vladimir Dedijer, former Yugoslavian official; and John Kenneth Galbraith.

This year's three-day symposium, was entitled "The South in Continuity and Change." Speakers included President Knight, Dr. Edgar Thompson, and Dr. Allen Sindler, representing the University; Dr. Allen Cartter, Dr. Joseph Spengler, and Dr. John Franklin also spoke on the issues involved: Negro and white militancy, education, economic conditions, and political and social development in the South.

The Special Activities Committee was concerned with orientation for foreign students, a major fields program, Visiting Professor Series, and Last Lecture Series. They also arranged for such events as Las Vegas Night and showing of away-football movies.

The Fine Arts Committee sponsored a series of six art exhibitions in the Union gallery, a Sidewalk Art Exhibit, and a Fine Arts Film Festival. The Young Artist Series this year featured the American Ballet Theater, flamenco guitarist Sabiacas, and other outstanding talent.

Finally, the Publicity Committee was in charge of publicizing Student Union events through posters and flyers. The year's activities were climaxed in the spring by a Union banquet honoring new and old officers and Committee chairmen.

Formed at the suggestion of last year's Joe College Weekend Committee in conjunction with the Interfraternity Council, the University Weekend Steering Committee began to function as policy-making body for major university weekends.

The chief purpose of the Committee was to coordinate the scheduling and programs of major weekends. This year the Committee included only Joe College and newly formed Winter Weekend Committees, although the Homecoming chairman was also a member.

The student body elected this year's chairman, Carl Lyon. Operating funds, formerly donated to the Joe College Committee by Shoe and Slipper, were passed on to the Weekend Committee.

Winter Weekend was given the theme of "Mardi Gras," and independent commons rooms and fraternity chapter rooms were decorated accordingly. Friday night featured a blanket concert with the Platters, sponsored by the Student Union. On Saturday night an IFC dance with Martha and the Vandellas was held at the Stallion Club.

Joe College Weekend in April featured the annual parade, lawn concert, and individual parties. Floats were decorated at a warehouse party on Thursday night, with entertainment provided by the Orlons. On Friday Hoof 'n' Horn presented "Out of This World" for its annual musical. A Friday night blanket concert and the comedy-folk music of the Chad Mitchell Trio at Saturday's lawn concert completed the lineup of major attractions for the weekend.

The Platters performed on the Friday night of Winter Weekend in the indoor stadium.

Stan Getz and his jazz group provided the Friday night indoor stadium entertainment for Joe College Weekend in the Spring.

On Saturday night of Winter Weekend, Martha and the Vandellas entertained at the IFC dance.

The SAE open house won top honors for the Mardi Gras theme of Winter Weekend.

The International Club functioned this year as an informal forum in which American and foreign students were able to talk, exchange views and opinions on a wide variety of national and world topics, and cultivate better international relations. A large step toward these goals was taken this year as the club found itself with a home base, the International House. Meeting rooms and kitchen were available downstairs to international students and sleeping accomodations were provided upstairs for visiting lecturers and professors.

One goal of the organization was to arouse interest in the project among American students. Peter Jones, graduate student from New Zealand and club president, emphasized the importance of American participation in the club so that it might be truly international.

About seventy-five persons took part in the club's weekly open houses. Each open house featured refreshments and a special program. On one occasion, representatives from campus organizations sponsored a program describing club activities and purposes. Other speakers during the year included Dr. Bush, who gave a talk on "Limitations of American Intellect," a Japanese student who spoke on art, Dr. Roberts of the Triangle Theater, and the Editor-in-Chief of the Durham Morning Herald. The group also sponsored several swimming parties and picnics.

The club's new Flying Junior tacks out of the bay, Pete Newman at the helm.

To those students with a special interest in sailing, the University again offered the opportunity to join the Duke Sailing club. Although in existence for several years, the club enjoyed a rise of popularity as membership grew and the variety of activities increased. Classes of instruction were offered for beginners to gain skill and experience in sailing techniques, and advanced classes in racing were also available.

The organization this year brought to the campus several hobbyists and sailing experts to share their ideas with the group. Members were also able to see a variety of films dealing with sailing.

An official racing team was organized to represent Duke in intercollegiate regattas. Three such regattas were held during the autumn months, and in the spring a home regatta was sponsored by the Duke club.

On most Sundays at Satterwhite Point, there were informal regattas, in which anyone interested was welcome to participate. Weekend sailing trips to Oriental were held in the spring and fall. Over thirty members under the leadership of Judi Rudolf actively participated in the club's events. Dr. Walker served as Sailing Club advisor.

WOMAN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

WRA sponsored dorm and sorority tournaments, Nereidian and Terpsichorean, and other special events this year. Tournaments in swimming, basketball, volleyball, softball, bowling, badminton, tennis, and table tennis were held. Participants and winners gained points toward awards given at the annual spring banquet.

The club expanded its program of inter-collegiate competitions, and sponsored entries in inter-collegiate and national tournaments. Holding a picnic during Orientation Week, keeping the gym and pool open throughout the year, and sending delegates to the national WRA convention were special projects.

TERPSICHOREAN

"We are amateurs who participate in the group because of interest in and a love of dancing," summed up Patricia Hughes, President of Duke's modern dance club, Terpsichorean.

Each semester tryouts were held and new members chosen as has been done for over ten years. Sponsored by the Woman's Recreational Association, the club provided an opportunity for girls to become skilled in techniques of contemporary ballet. At weekly meetings, under the direction of Mrs. Wray, members worked together to learn modern dance methods. They also took modern dance classes to improve their technical ability.

Among numerous activities and programs presented this year, Terpsichorean gave a demonstration for freshmen girls during Orientation Week, a Christmas concert, and a concert in the spring.

Nereidian, women's synchronized swimming group, again offered the chance for interested swimmers to perfect their skills in water ballet. At the WRA picnic in September, members performed a routine for the freshmen. The annual water show was held in March, with the theme of "Magazines." Routines were based on such popular magazines as Holiday and New Yorker. Later in the spring the Club performed at the South-Eastern Collegiate Swim Meet.

The Pre-Medical Society is designed to give the prospective doctors of the University community an insight into their future roles in medicine and to assist them in gaining acceptance into medical school. So that the members will receive the greatest benefit from the organization, the program of the Pre-Medical Society is structured to include many different activities essential to the various areas of the students' plans for the future.

On tours of the Duke Hospital and the University Medical Center, members of the Society received a comprehensive view of medical techniques.

BENCH AND BAR

Furnishing counsel to undergraduate students who are preparing for a career in the legal profession is the major concern of Bench and Bar. This organization strives to give students a better idea of the study of law and the complications attached to it, so that they can judge more effectively whether law is the profession of their choice. Many students come to college with little knowledge of, but many misconceptions about the law and its purposes. Through its informative program Bench and Bar hopes to remove this defect.

In the fall, the deans of Duke, Harvard, and Columbia Law Schools spoke to the members, who were addressed in the spring by lawyers engaged in various aspects of law. With such presentations the students received a broad base upon which to judge their own interest in the legal profession.

The Duke Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers is designed to introduce the undergraduate civil engineer into the engineering world. The Society is organized so as to promote a balanced growth and advancement on the part of the student civil engineer. ASCE gives the student some insight into the opportunities, new developments, and problems in various fields of civil engineering, while demonstrating the practical applications of knowledge acquired in the classroom and laboratory.

At the meetings this year slides, movies, and discussions were employed to relay current information to the students. The group was also provided with opportunities for association with professionals through the Society's program of monthly speakers, who came from the North Carolina area and other Middle Atlantic states. This past year, in order to receive further knowledge about research and achievements in civil engineering, thirteen students attended the National convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers in New York.

ASME

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers was originally founded to keep abreast of technical and theoretical advancements in the field of mechanical engineering. In addition to being "mechanically minded," however, the Duke chapter of ASME tries to encourage interest in student projects. The group was led by President Bob Reed this year in the pursuit of its objectives.

The members of the society met monthly for dinner to hear outstanding speakers from the surrounding area. At one of their meetings Dr. Merriam, Dean of the Engineering College, spoke to the group on technical problems of the Liberty Ships during World War II.

A Regional ASME Conference held in Raleigh this year was attended by a Duke delegation, which met with other delegates from schools throughout the Southeast for conferences, seminars, addresses, and an essay contest.

NROTC

The Department of Naval Science offers the midshipmen of the unit the basic naval courses which, in addition to providing credit for a Bachelor's degree, will qualify them for a commission in the Navy or Marine Corps. It also strives to instill in its future officers a real interest in the Navy as well as a basic understanding and appreciation for Naval customs, traditions, and practices. Through practical experience and classroom activities, the department endeavors to develop leadership abilities and to introduce to the midshipmen the Navy way of life.

The midshipmen of the unit are of two types. The Contract Student, who receives a subsistence allowance for the Junior and Senior years, is, upon graduation, commissioned for an initial three-year tour of duty as a Naval Reserve Officer. The Regular Student receives all tuition, books, and fees from the Navy in return for a commitment of four years as an officer in the Regular Navy. After four years the officer may leave the service or continue in a Naval career.

DRILL TEAM

Relatively unknown the Duke Navy Drill Team last spring marched in the National Drill Competition in Washington, D. C., and ranked second among the Naval drill teams represented. Because of this growing reputation, there were more offers for performances than could be accepted. Invitations to President Johnson's inaugural parade and to Mardi Gras in New Orleans had to be turned down.

The group is composed of four squads of four men each, flag bearer Alex Umstead, and commander Hal Wright. During the year, the team drilled on Wednesdays and Fridays, with additional practices when a performance was being polished. Early in the fall they marched at halftime during the Homecoming game and in January drilled for Governor Dan Moore's inaugural parade. The team also served as an honor guard for the visiting Chief of Naval Operations, participated in the Washington Cherry Blossom Festival, and again ranked high in the National Drill Competition.

AFROTC

Established at Duke in 1949, the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps gives the carefully selected cadets a firm basic foundation which will prepare them to assume their role as officers in the space-age Air Force. The program consists of two years of basic air force study and military drill, after which the interested cadets must go through a careful screening process to pass on to the advanced stage. The cadets' real officer training begins with the advanced phase of the program, lasting two years during which he is paid a monthly stipend. Upon graduation from the University with a baccalaureate degree, the cadet is commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Air Force Reserve, with an obligated tour of service of four years for a non-flight trained officer and five years for one who has gone through flight training. The young officer may then leave the service for civilian life or continue in an Air Force career.

The corps of cadets is managed by cadets under the guiding supervision of the regular staff officers. As the cadets advance from cadet airmen to cadet officers they are given increasing responsibilities and attendant authority. This system of cadet responsibility allows the cadets a chance to put into practice the principles of leadership which they are taught in the classroom.

Among the extra-curricular activities sponsored by the AFROTC Unit are the corps newspaper, Contact, published by the cadets, and the Duke Chapter of the Arnold Air Society, national AFROTC honorary fraternity. Interested cadets may join the Precision Drill Team or participate in one of the few MARS amateur radio stations in the nation. All cadets are members of the Duke Air Force Club, the unit's social organization, which sponsors parties, picnics, and co-sponsors with the NROTC unit the annual spring formal dance, the Combined Military Ball.

Duke football began 1964 with colorful and potent promise but trailed off to record one of the Blue Devil's few losing seasons. Undeclared in the first five games, Duke played power ball in victorious tradition. The Blue worked to overcome a number of factors that entered and contributed to a 4-5-1 mark.

Though rightly so, academic rigors hamper concentration on football interest; and scholastic stress intensifies by midseason and, as for all students, does not cease. Of major importance in 1964 were excessive, crucial injuries. By season's end the Blue Devils were playing without the services of the top four linebackers, three fbs, two guards, two tackles, and two halfbacks. A decrease in vital experience also came with the intermittent loss of three other guards, a tackle and three fbs. Such cutbacks in personnel seriously impaired Duke's powerful running attack and tenacious defense.

Another obstacle was that the opposition seldom failed to be immensely keyed-up for the Duke game: witness USC, Wake Forest, and UNC. To continue for ten successive weeks to rise to the peak of emotional determination and high spirit is an arduous task indeed. In dealing with these difficulties and in performing with admirable efforts can be found a source of pride; the praise from Coach Bill Murray: "The fact that we do as well as we do is a tribute to the players."

Duke utilized a tight, new "flap-jack" defense and a powerful running game with later emphasis on an accurate passing offensive. This effective combination began by providing such highlights as a 30-0 win over a strong Virginia team, a 35-3 shellacking of N. C. State, and the first victory over Army. In the loss to Ga. Tech, Duke amassed nearly 400 yards, including Scotty Glacken's ACC record for pass-completions; though Navy's Staubach had his most productive collegiate day, the Devils made it close; against UNC the Blue Devils staged a tremendous second-half rally.

Among the Dukes to excel were Captain Danny Lonon, awarded The Senior Who Contributed Most to Team Spirit, and J. V. McCarthy, both well representing the Blue Devils in post-season bowl play. Biff Bracy and Sonny Odom were drafted by professional football teams, as was Most Valuable Player Mike Curtis (first choice of the Baltimore Colts). Most important to the football program is that Duke possesses one of the outstanding coaching staffs in the country.

DUKE 9 S. CAROLINA 9

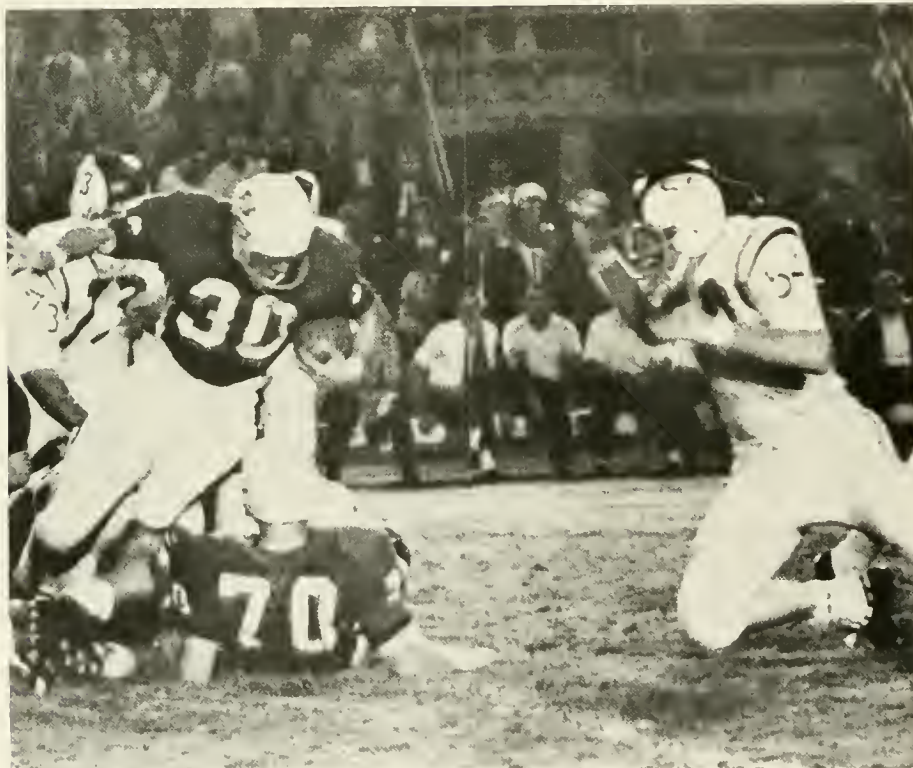

The Blue Devils were driving for victory in a rugged defensive clash at South Carolina, when a Duke fumble led to a Gamecock FG to tie the score at 9-9 in the closing seconds of play.

Beginning slowly, the Devils went behind early 6-0; fortunately Duke broke through and safety Mike Shasby blocked the extra-point attempt. When the underdog hosts menaced again, the stubborn Duke defense held and the Devils came to life. Combining sideline passes to swift Jim Scott (one 35-yarder nearly a TD) with slashing sweeps and line thrusts by the powerful Curtis, Bracy, and Odom, the Blue Dukes marched 80 yards in 11 plays for a FG by Stewart.

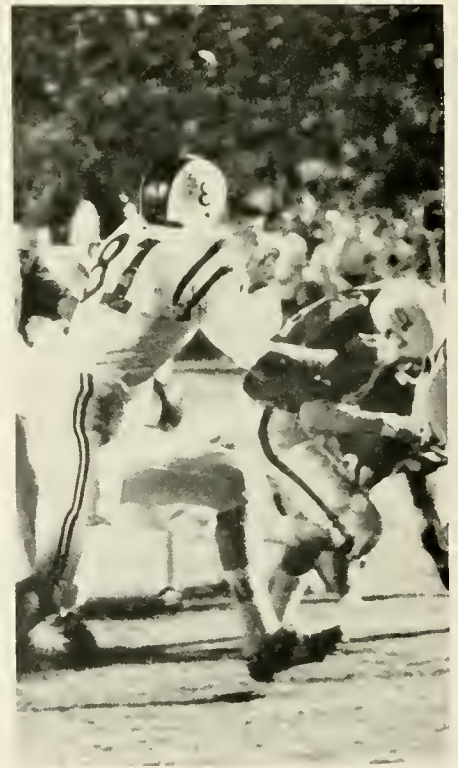

Behind 6-3 in the third period, the Devils found momentum. With success on crucial 3rd-down keepers, Glacken guided Duke in for 6 points, Curtis ramming over from inches out. Then the Blue pushed towards another TD, but the Gamecocks forced a fumble and booted the FG.

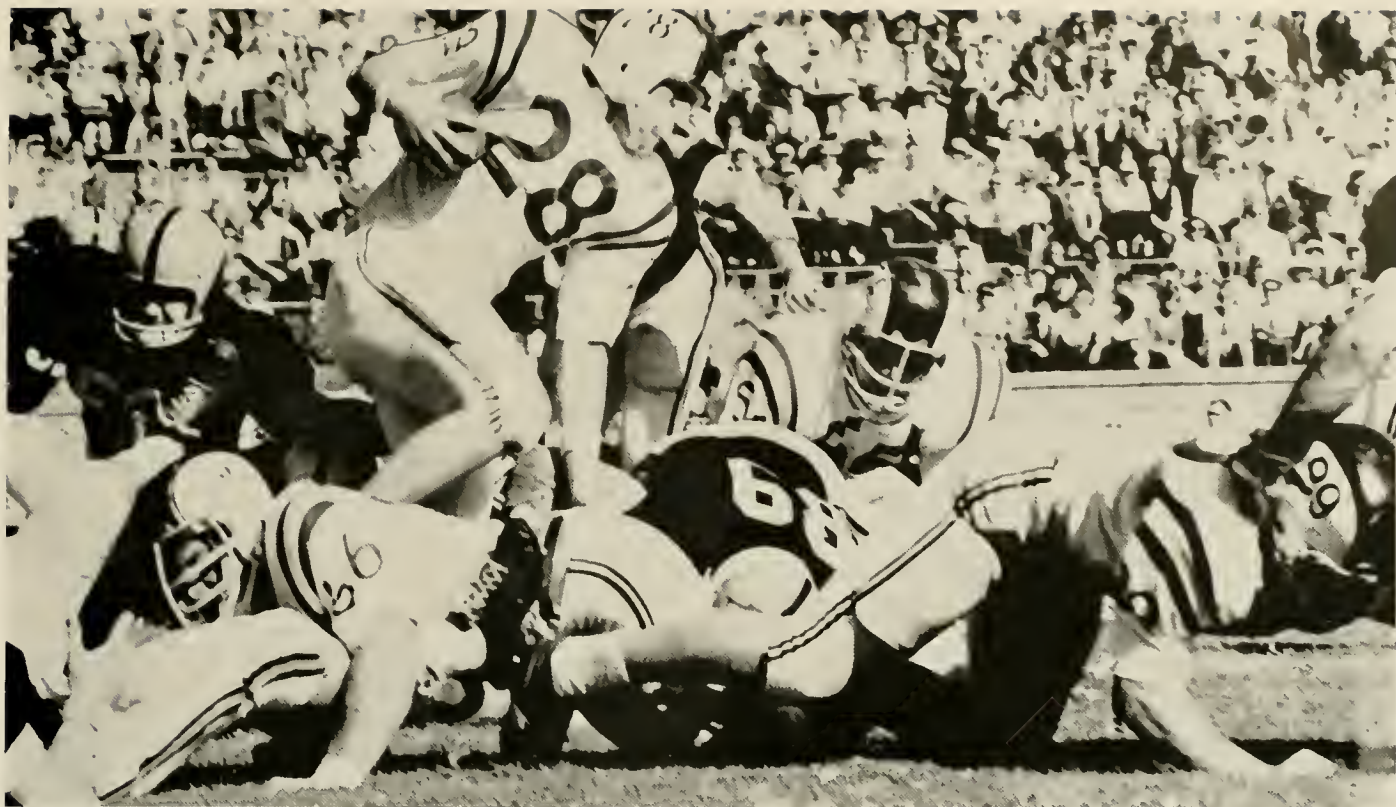

A Gamecock runs into a stone wall formed by Mike Shasby (16) and Mike Curtis (33).

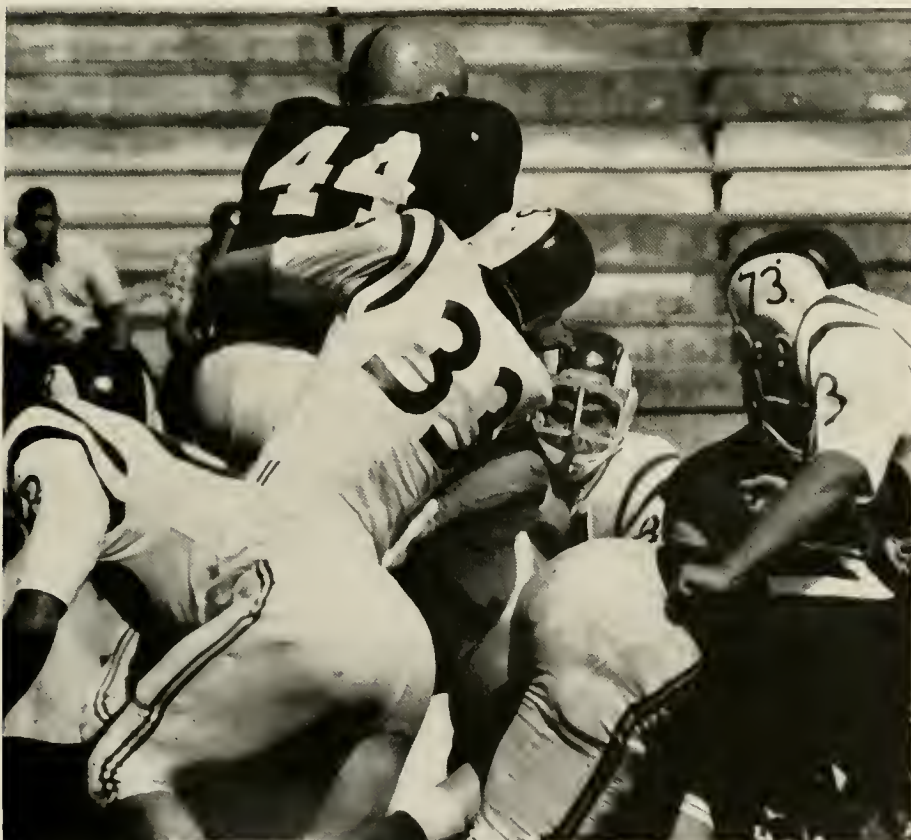

The Devils' Bob Davis plummets into a South Carolina runner tripped up by Danny Litaker.

Chuck Drulis lunges for a USC back.

Behind the blocking of J. V. McCarthy and Dave Burdette, sophomore power back Bob Matheson picks his way through the Cavalier line.

The host Devils rudely treated Va.'s star QB, permitting one-fifth his previous week's record-production of over 330 yards. Here Curtis and Yates manhandle the celebrated guest.

DUKE 30 VIRGINIA 0

Duke's sterling defense halted Virginia's strong attack as the Blue and White overwhelmed the Cavaliers 30-0.

The Dukes threatened from the start, but were denied two early FG efforts. Then Glacken struck for the Blue Devils, firing a 65-yard beauty to swift Jim Scott. Applying further pressure, Duke backed Virginia to the wall. A Cavalier aerial snared by John Carlo set up Glacken's short TD pass to split-end Chuck Drulis. Later, with only seconds remaining in the half, the Dukes rushed in to block a pass which Bill Jones intercepted on the goal line to complete a 21-point second quarter.

Aggressive defense brought the Devils a safety and continually harassed the Cavalier's record-breaking quarterback, stopping the scoreless Virginians twice within 10 yards of a TD. The Duke reserves added the final 7 as Denton moved the Blue in and Curtis burst over to finish the rout.

DUKE 24 MARYLAND 17

The Blue Dukes subdued the challenging Terrapins of Maryland with hard-charging backs and fine defense maneuvers to earn a 24-17 win. Overcoming a 10-3 deficit, the Devils swept for the equalizer as Glacken (7 for 10) passed to the excellent Drulis and Scott outside and linebusting Curtis and Odom gained ground up the middle. Before intermission, work-horse Mike Curtis shoved across the TD from the 1-yard line.

On first possession with Odom and Matheson booming through the line and around the ends, Duke reeled off 5 straight first downs, but were detained at the Terp's 22 by inches. But after Sonny Morris' recovery of a fumble, the Blue shot 57 yds. in 6 plays, Odom hustling over for a 17-10 lead.

With Maryland moving deep on the Devils, the incredible Curtis galloped 60 yds. with a sensational interception. Then Rich Kraft churned 9 more to the 21 where ace Glacken, on his only pass of the half, lofted one to end Chuck Drulis going into the end zone alone. Down by 14, the visitors scored on a long drive and were threatening again. The determined Blue Devils dug in and secured the victory.

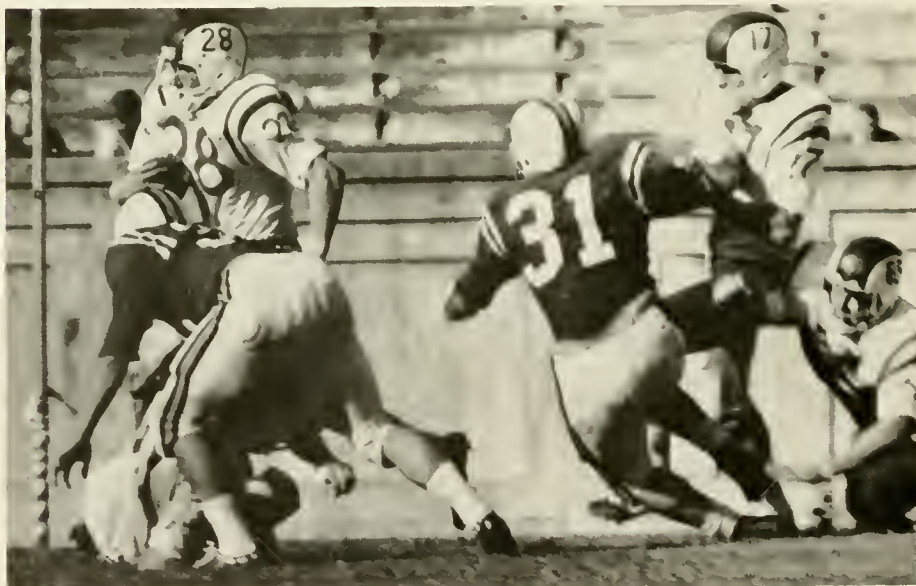

Duke's flajack defense throttles another Maryland runner with stalwarts Carlo (22) and Gutekunst (44) bringing down the Terp and ends Morris (85) and Drulis (81) closing in.

Glacken blazes upfield and Jones eyes a block.

Big Matheson steams around end as backs Curtis and Glacken dispose of two Terrapins.

DUKE 35 N. C. STATE 3

Duke's surging Blue Devils unleashed devastating ground forces and an awesome defense in a 35-3 conquest of N. C. State. The Devil's powerhouse backfield romped 224 yards in the first half, while Duke's hard-hitting defenders allowed the opposition only 26.

The mighty Blue had to overcome State's early 3-pt. lead, after Caldwell's short FG and an intercepted pass had delayed the Blue Dukes' first penetrations. Again the Glaeken-directed Devils pounded out 70 yds. only to have a short TD throw batted away.

After NCS was forced to punt, Glaeken guided the Devils in for the first score, sending Odom the last 11 yards through a massive hole opened by Fred Cromartie and Captain Dan Lonon. Hit at the 5, Odom blasted into the end zone carrying a trio of would-be tacklers on his back. Mounting another drive, the Dukes ran 56 yards in 11 plays with husky Bob Matheson bounding over State's line for long gains. Curtis hurdled over the goal line from the 3, securing a 13-3 halftime advantage.

The eager Blue Devils returned to continue their mastery and started rolling from 70 yards out when Lonon pounced on a fumble. Glaeken brought the Blue and White upfield with pile-driving Mike Curtis rambling through the center of the Wolfpack secondary and a key 17-yard pitch to Matheson.

The Blue Devil dynamo: Iron Mike Curtis rampages through the Wolfpack line and into the secondary.

The fourth-down TD pass from close range was knocked away, but the fired-up Blue Devils forced a fumble and Odom (his third score) cracked over for Duke's 20th point.

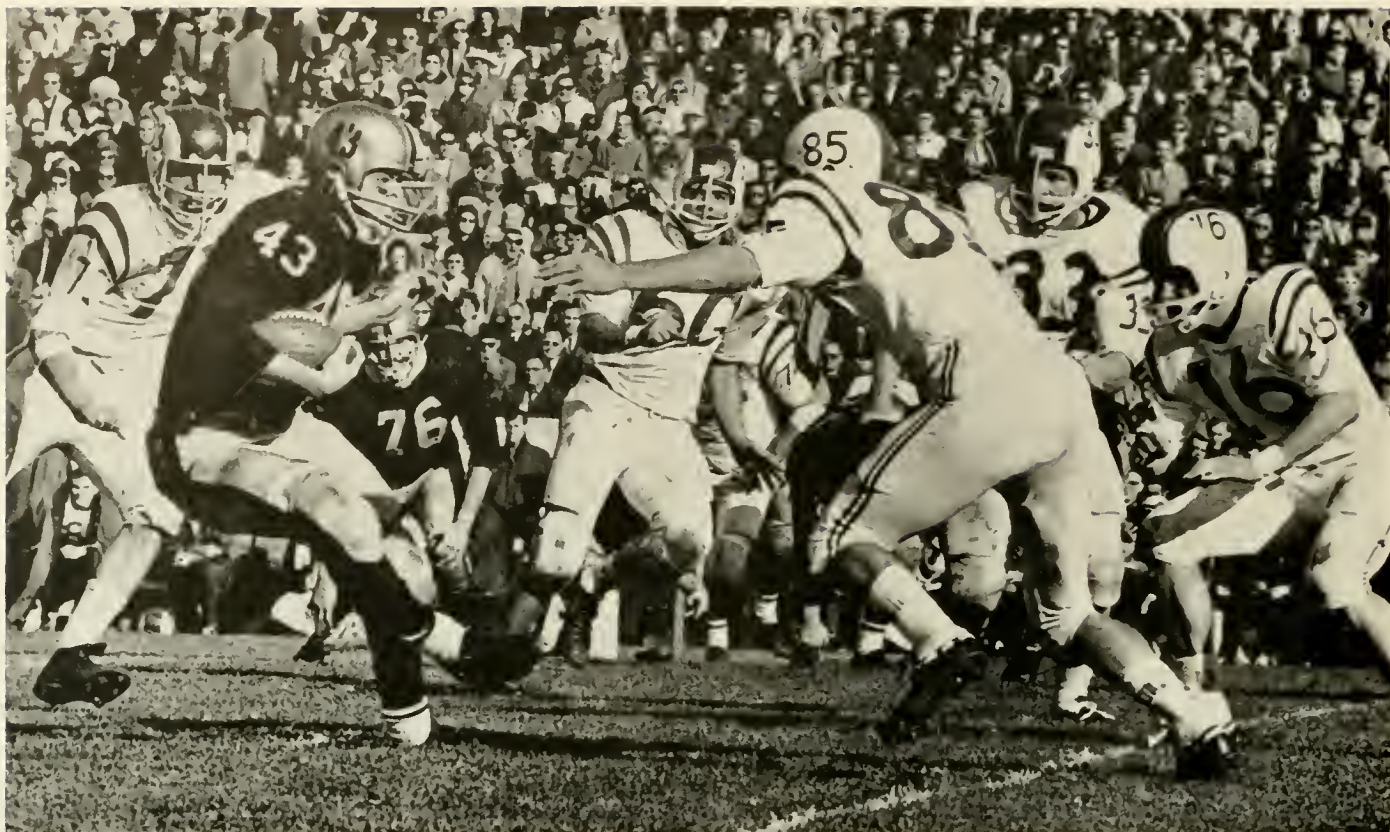

State's next attempt was shattered when speed-demon John Gutekunst intercepted and streaked 83 yards past bewildered opponents. Denton's clever two-pointer made it 28-3.

Still the Dukes could not be stopped, as a steal by Weisley completed the Devil Domination. With Denton at the controls, Kraft cruised up the middle for 10 and then over for the final TD in the 4th quarter's 22-pt. scoring spree.

An elusive Sonny Odom cuts sharply for part of his first-half ninety yards and third TD of the day. His right hand removes the last NCS grasp.

Duke's Sonny Morris (85), backed up by Curtis (33) and Shasby (16), leads the charge against Army's quarterback; Duke slashed six yards off Stichweh's average carry. The surrounding Blue Devils move in from behind (Danny Litaker-73) and in from the middle (John McNabb-60).

DUKE 6 ARMY 0

The Blue Devils' two field goals and impregnable defense repelled Army 6-0 at Michie Stadium for Duke's first victory over the U.S. Military Academy.

Starting the spirited Dukes, Glacken heaved a 45-yard pass to fleet Dave Dunaway, to bring the Big Blue in range for Caldwell's FG. Traveling to Duke's 15, the Cadets met a sturdy defense anchored by Matuza and Curtis. The Devils repeated with spot passes to Curtis and a 2nd FG by Caldwell to lead 6-0 at intermission.

The Cadets initial 2nd-half penetration carried to the Blue 14 before Morris' jarring tackle of an Army pass-catcher caused a fumble. An ensuing Stewart punt downed on the 1, and John Carlo's key interception and 18-yd. return to midfield halted the Black Knights' next drive. Later traveling to Duke's 33, the USMA was thrown for a 16-yard loss by rugged Al Matuza.

The Cadets' final threat came on a busted running play with ineligible Army blockers in the end zone. A stalwart Matuza had Stichweh falling to the turf when the Cadet lofted one to an open receiver, but the penalty put the USMA back to the 19. The Blue Dukes fended off Stichweh's remaining desperation passes and captured the deserving win.

Hefty soph halfback Bob Matheson comes barrelling through the center of the Black Knights.

DUKE 8 GA. TECH 21

Georgia Tech downed the fighting Blue Dukes 21-8 with a lightning onslaught before 45,000 Homecoming fans.

The Devils started well but fumbled at midfield. Sparked by a 22-yd. pass, the Yellow Jackets were deep in Duke territory. The Devils' defense was strong but the Rambling Wrecks scored from close range. Then the fired-up Dukes sped 60 yds. with short flare passes and fullback draw plays, only to have a FG blocked. Ga. Tech used long option runs for a 2nd TD. Despite producing 375 total yards, the Blue were prevented by two crucial interceptions from scoring until the 2nd half.

Returning the kickoff 55 yds. to Duke's 34, the Engineers then quickly notched another TD. Behind 21-0 the Blue Devils repulsed Tech on the 1-foot line and the Dukes marched the length of the field. The first 34 yds. went to swing-end Scott, and after 45 more, again through the air, to Sonny Odom, the deceptive Drulis latched onto the 8-yd TD throw. For the 2-pt conversion Odom tossed one to Dave Burdette. On the move, the rallying Devils were stopped on Tech's 25 by a 3rd interception.

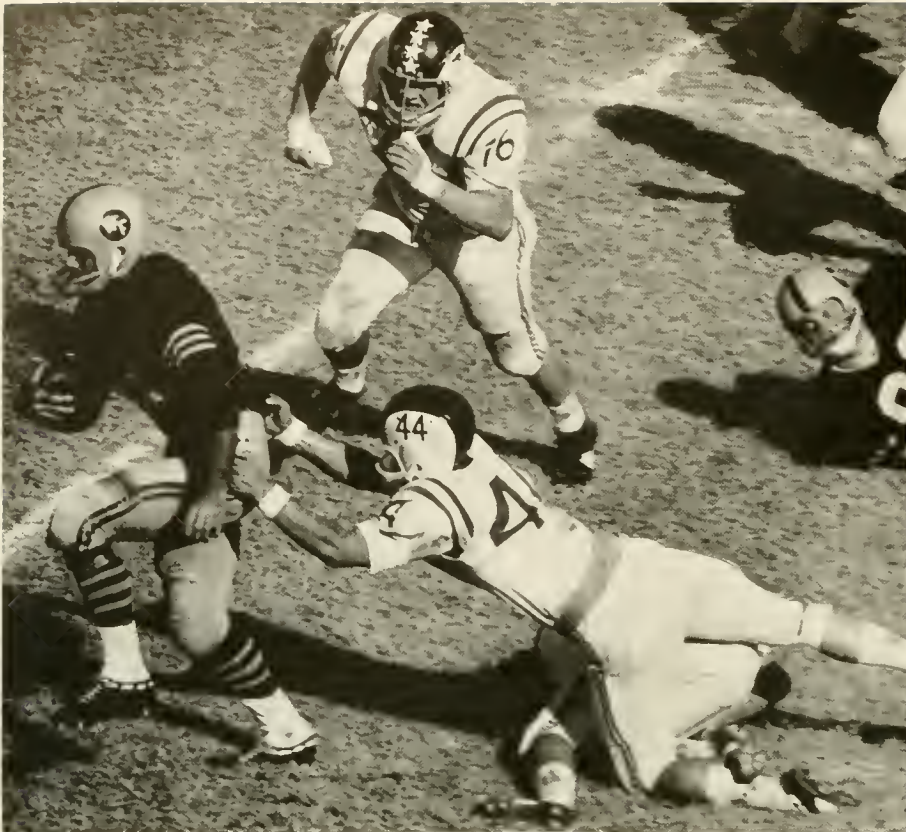

With precision passing Scotty Glacken sets an Atlantic Coast Conference record for completions, (24 of 38 for 263 yards). Captain Lonon blocks for the Duke ace.

Drulis overtakes the Tech QB for the Blue.

Curtis rushes across to help Al Matuza and Don Lynch level an Engineer as Wiesley pursues.

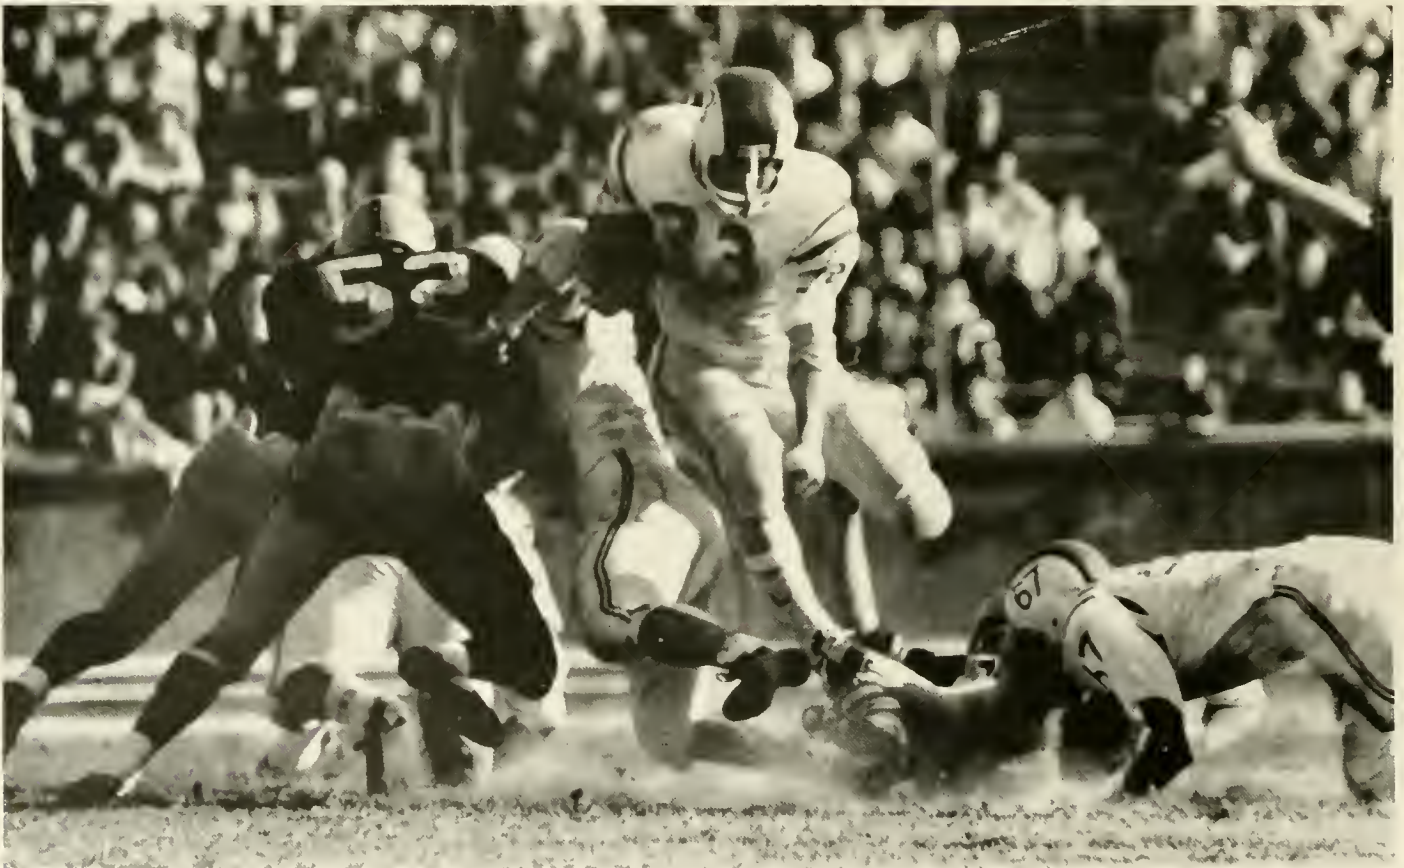

The nation's leading rusher and scorer, Wake Forest's star halfback Brian Piccolo pulls John Gutekunst while Danny Lonon charges up to finish off the Demon Deacon.

DUKE 7 W. FOREST 20

Using a running barrage Wake Forest stunned the Blue Devils 20-7 and ended a 12-year losing spell.

Following a standoff 1st quarter, the Deacons took the lead at 7-0, going 46 yds. in just 5 plays. Duke came back strong after Gutekunst churned 33 yards with the kickoff. The Devils hammered towards paydirt with Glacken passing to Scott and Curtis charging straight up the middle. Then Gutekunst sprinted around end for the last 16 yds. to even the score. But before the half, Bracy picked off a WF pass, reversed his field and went 44 yds. to the Baptists' 30. The Blue sent Curtis storming through the line, but Caldwell's FG was wide.

The 2nd half belonged to WF who executed twice as many plays as Duke. After a Blue fumble, Wake scored from the Devils' 23. Clinching the win, the keyed-up Deacs ground out 80 yds. in 14 strikes, 10 efforts by Piccolo.

Duke's Mike Curtis thunders over Wake's line. The Blue Devils thrust the Baptists aside: Lynch and McNabb combine on the hosts with Bob Astley (67).

DUKE 14 NAVY 27

Duke nearly overcame a 6-pt. deficit but finally succumbed 27-14 in the hard-fought battle at Navy.

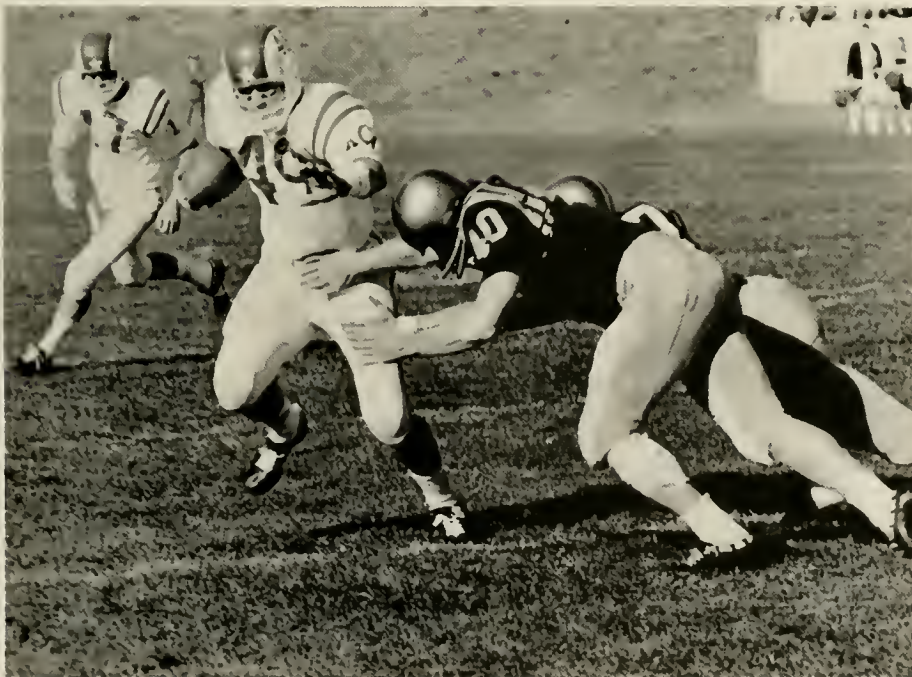

The Devils scored shortly after Shasby's fine 26-yd. runback of a stolen pass. From 5 yards out Bracy blasted over and Odom flipped one to Burdette for 2 more points. But Navy's Staubach passed the Middies to a tying TD.

The Blue Devil defenders gave yardage grudgingly for the USNA'S pair of field goals: one after an interception and Duke yielded only 6 yds.; another when the Blue stopped the hosts on the 12. In the third quarter Navy went to the Devils' 6 where Curtis broke through to block the FG. Adding a TD, Staubach (responsible for 308 yds—the most in one game by a Midshipman), steered Navy to a 20-8 advantage.

Then the fired-up Dukes streaked 89 yds. in 7 plays, Glacken spearheading the quick (2:44) drive with a 36-yard pitch to Scott. On the TD Dunaway was free for an 18-yd. ross. Ahead 20-15, Navy controlled the ball until 3 mins. remained; Duke's chances sank with an incomplete pass on last down and Staubach's 9-yard scoring jaunt.

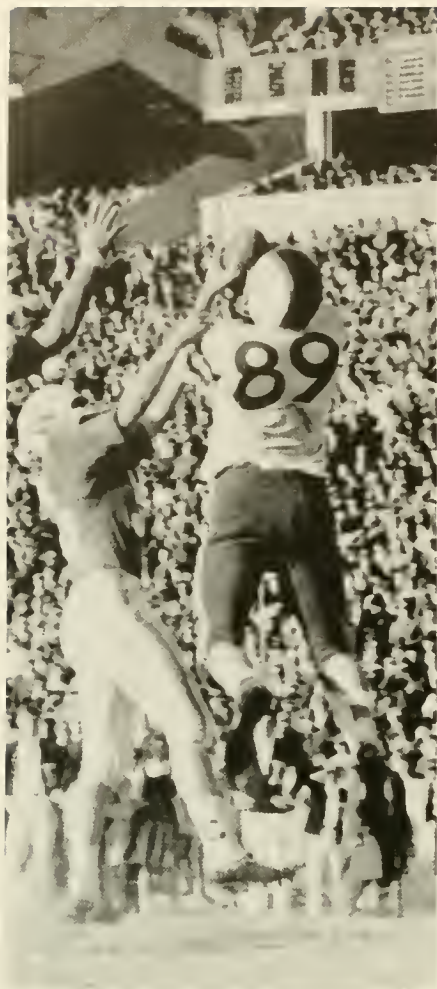

Blitzing ends Matuza (80) and Wiesley pressure Navy's expert pilot, Roger Staubach.

An explosive halfback, the injured Biff Bracy weaves away from Navy's defense as Glacken trails.

DUKE 15 UNC 21

Duke's Jim Scott executed this amazing catch of Glacken's 33-yard bomb.

The Blue Devils' explosive passing attack almost wrested victory from Carolina's potent ground battery, but the Tarheels took the 21-15 thriller.

UNC opened with a long kickoff return but the battling Dukes held. Later NC ran over a TD. After Stewart's booming 65-yd. kick to the 1, the Heels punted and Gutekunst darted 18-yds. to set up Caldwell's FG. Then UNC scored again to lead 14-3 at half.

Igniting the aroused Dukes, Glacken quickly hit Odom with a 31-yd. toss and threw 38 more to Drulis for 6 points. But Carolina followed with a long trip to set up another TD. Down 21-9 the Battling Blue ended UNC's next move on the Devil 6. Pinpoint passing to the elusive Dunaway, Burdette and Odom and vigorous rushes by Curtis spurred Duke to the UNC 20 before an interception delayed the Devil's momentum. Starting again, the valiant Blue Devils swept 83 yds. for the TD, 33 on Scott's dazzling shoestring pickup of Glacken's aerial. The pay-off pitch was a sharp strike hauled in by Burdette. But the Tarheels held on until :24 remained and Duke passed to midfield at the final gun.

DUKE 0 TULANE 17

Duke was defeated by Tulane's capitalizing offense, 17-0, in New Orleans. The injury-ridden Blue Devils were hampered by fumbles, penalties, and swarming Green Wave defenders.

On the slippery field the Dukes' efforts to move after interceptions by Drulis and Gutekunst were nullified by a rash of fumbles. In the 2nd period the Blue spurred upfield on Glacken's short passes to dependable Scott and Drulis and Johnny Johnson's quick-gainers up the middle. But Duke had to kick and a 75-yard punt return lifted Tulane into a 7-0 halftime margin.

Duke's defense bulwarked by McNabb, Shasby, and Hughes held the hosts at the 3, and later moved Tulane to its goal. But a kick put the Devils back deep; recovering a fumble Tulane scored from 23 yards. Prior to a 53-yard FG, the pressing Green Wave had kept Glacken from passing for Duke.

FROSH FOOTBALL

The Blue Imps achieved a winning 3-2 record by defeating N. C. State in the final game of the season. Only Clemson managed to halt the explosive Devil offensive, paced by quarterbacks Larry Davis and Al Woodall and fast, hard-running Joe Bussey, Don Brannon, and Jake Devonshire.

The Baby Devils nipped The Citadel 7-6 in the home opener. Slowed by bad weather, penalties, and fumbles, Duke cashed in on only one scoring opportunity. Davis passed 10 yards to swing-end Andy Beath and Lee Reese booted the crucial conversion.

After absorbing a sound 26-3 defeat at the hands of Clemson, the Devils rebounded with a smashing 21-0 victory over Wake Forest. The powerful Duke defense limited Wake to only 49 yards total offense. A well-balanced rushing attack ground out 220 yards while Woodall and Davis added another 100 through the air. Tackle Bob Lasky led the forward wall, which played brilliantly. The Duke line allowed Wake only 6 yards rushing in the first half.

In the season's big game, the Blue Imps saw a tremendous last quarter effort fall short as undefeated UNC hung on for a 30-28 victory. Behind 30-7 in the fourth quarter, Duke bounced back on two touchdowns by John Krimmel, one a 97-yard interception return. The Devils scored again after a nifty steal and run back of a Carolina pass by halfback Jim Hysong. But the clock stopped Duke's comeback drive short of victory.

The Blue Imps closed with a narrow 21-15 win over State, as Bussey scored what proved to be the winning touchdown on an 88-yard kickoff return. Reese completed Duke's scoring by kicking a 32-yard field goal.

The Blue Imps were slow in developing continuity on offense and defense, as they practiced with the varsity and not among themselves. Nevertheless, the Baby Devils overcame this handicap and, by season's end, were playing well together as a team.

SOCCER

Duke's soccer squad began the season with the obvious disadvantage of having many of the nation's top-ranked teams on its schedule. Unlike Duke, these teams, such as Navy, Maryland, and Bridgeport, have extensive recruiting programs, which award scholarships to top players across the country. Nonetheless, the Devils managed to kick out several fine performances. The 3-1 victory over Virginia and a tie with highly regarded U.N.C. in the season's finale highlighted the year.

The strong, aggressive play of captain and center halfback John "Jelly Roll" Morton paced the attack, and won him the Most Valuable Player award. Halfback Bob Holt and Goalie Bob Mueller consistently stood out on the field. The team was hurt by the loss of fullback Bo Hitchcock at mid-season, but sophomore John Hallowell did a good job of filling in.

For the first time in history, the Iron Dukes finished below second place in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Burdened by injuries and a lack of experience, the harriers compiled a 2-4-1 record in dual and tri-meets.

The Iron Dukes began the season strongly, but slumped at the finish. Coached by Al Buchler, the runners opened with a 15-46 victory over N.C. State and fought to a 28-28 tie with Wake Forest in a tri-meet held in Raleigh. The following week, depth played a large part as the Blue split a tri-meet with Clemson and USC, beating the Tigers 25-36, losing to the Gamecocks 32-24. The first five Duke runners, paced by Jim Robinson, finished within 70 seconds of each other.

The harriers lost their next two away contests on cold, rainy days. Maryland won handily, 15-50, taking the first eight places. With Captain Art Jackson injured, Duke fell to Virginia by 17-39; Steve Iceland and John Hoy battled to fifth and sixth place finishes. In the final home meet, UNC soundly defeated the Devils 15-50.

The Dukesters ended the season with the fifth position in the State Meet at Raleigh and seventh place in the conference meet.

Robert L. Chambers was known and revered throughout the University community for the contributions he made in his official capacities in the Athletic Department. A member of the Duke staff since 1933, Doc Chambers served as Head Trainer, Head Track Coach, and instructor of physical education. His concern for Duke athletes was mirrored in his constant efforts to make his training methods the best and their equipment more serviceable, the unique Duke helmets and the "hot-weather" suits being the products of one of his many fields of endeavor. Fair but firm, Mr. Chambers won the respect and admiration of all who dealt with him. Here, perhaps, lies his greatest contribution—Robert L. Chambers was a big man who gave of himself, by being himself.

WINTER SPORTS

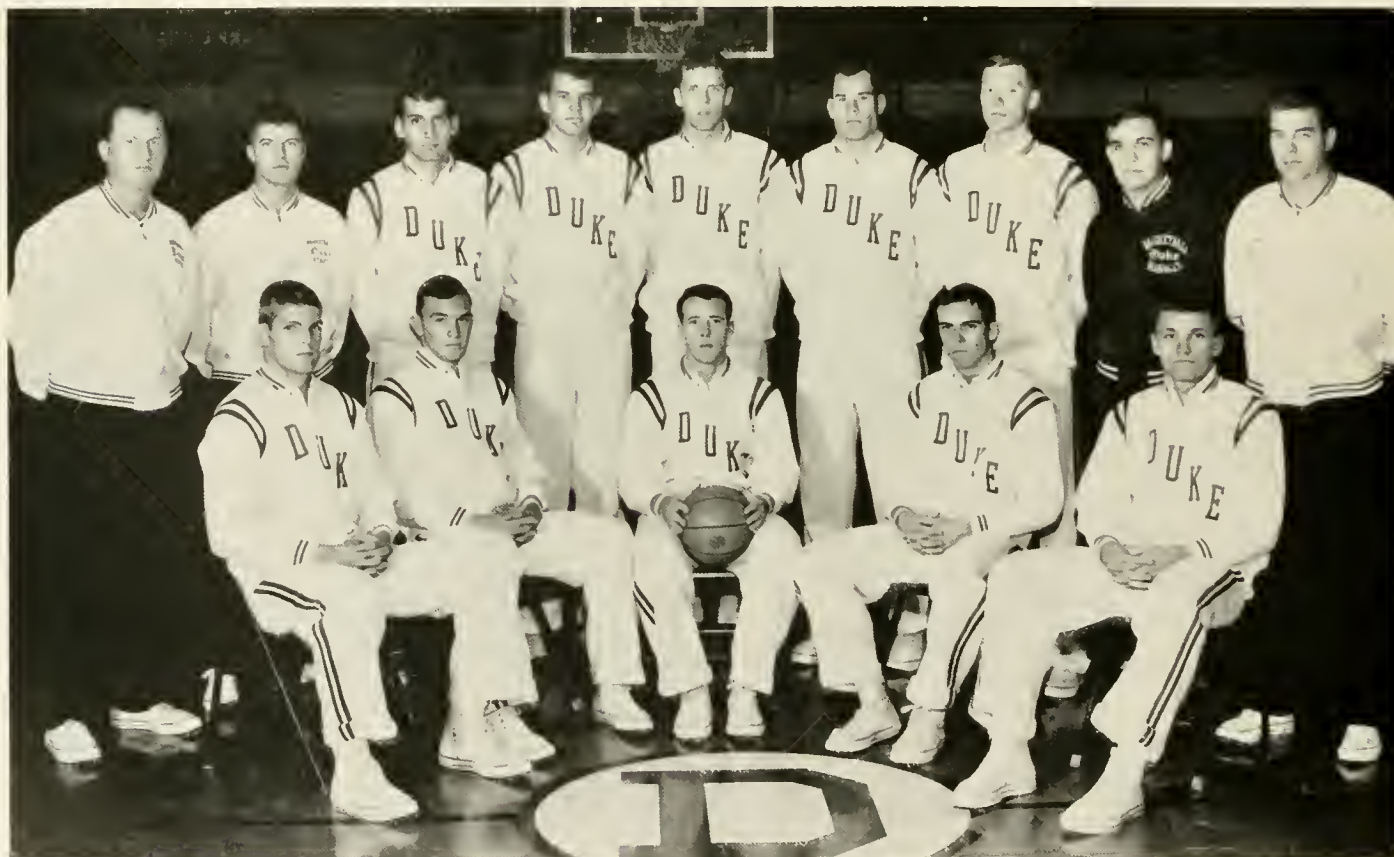

BASKETBALL

Duke has recently been highly consistant in producing exciting power-house basketball. Two seasons ago Duke's Player of the Year, Art Heyman, and Co. led the Big Blue to the country's third-place honors. And after last year's second-in-the-nation squad graduated top-notch Jay Buckley, Buzzy Harrison and one of the finest in the land, All-American Jeff Mullins, the Blue Devils have once again fielded a strong and successful team.

Coach Vic Bubas molded the returning Dukes and newcomers into another 20-game winner. Slender, 6'10" center Hack Tison knew defense and his shots were hard to stop. A trio of scoring balance, Steve Vacendak, Jack Marin and soph Bob Verga could hit with deadly accuracy. And two quick seniors, Ron Herbster and Captain Denny Ferguson, as well as the other starters, were experienced ball-handlers with agressive defensive talent and determined leadership. These, and the bench depth, led by big Brent Kitching and Bob Reidy, provided varying blends of power in speed, defense, rebounding and high-scoring for the 1965 Dukes.

The Blue Devils opened in Greensboro and mastered VPI with play that would be characteristic of Duke all season. The Big Blue exploded with a pressing, devastating defense and hot shooting (after intermission 62% to

Then the spirited Devils met Michigan—ranked first in the country. The huge Wolverines were ahead by 13 points until late in the contest when Duke started a comeback with the scoring punch of Vacendak and Verga and a tighter defense. The rallying Blue Devils caught the visitors at 69 and 71-all; Duke's momentum and the crowd's ear-splitting roar forced a time-out from Michigan. However, with a few clutch baskets, the nation's top-ranked team escaped 86-79, interrupting a two-year home court winning streak; the Big Dukes were justly proud of the show of determination.

Traveling to Annapolis, the Devils took Navy too lightly (after last year's record score of 121-63) and relied on 21 rebounds by Marin, 24 points and two nifty overtime-steals by Verga for a 93-87 win. Back home against ACC competition, the pressing, fast-breaking Blue Dukes bolted into a 17-4 lead and trounced USC 111-72.

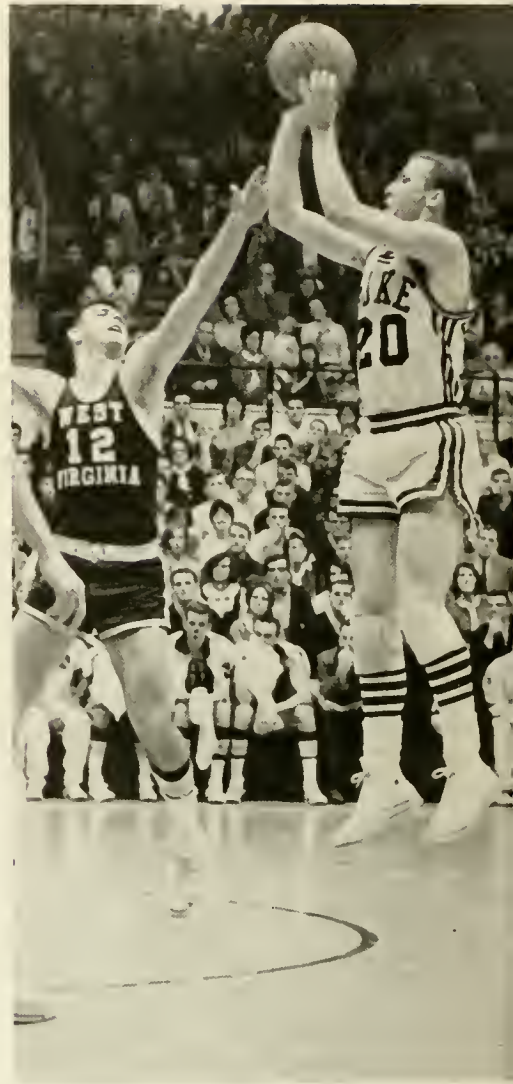

A series of road games began at Clemson, where Vacendak came through with the Devil's last 10 points, the final 6 on 1-and-1 foul shots: the Blue finally triumphed after being down 11 points. Va. stayed close for 3 periods until the rebounding of Tison and treated similarly as the Devils set the pace with a pair of 22-point performances from Marin and Vacendak. Pounding out a 107-77 win, the Big Blue stuck for the 40th win in the last 42 ACC games. To help the Dukes soar over the century mark for the fifth time in the season, Brent Kitching came in and hit his first 5 of 7 shots.

Maryland was polished off 82-64 by Duke's fast start and hounding defense. Continuing his deadly accuracy, Bob Verga chipped in 20 first-half points; and Hack Tison showed some alert defensive ability. Always tough NCS threatened in Raleigh but couldn't contend with the amazing Jack Marin, who pumped in 14 of 17 and 32 points to topple the Wolfpack 84-74. Repeating his 32-point showing against West Virginia, Marin was torrid from the floor and consistent as ever from the foul line, dropping in 10 of 11 attempts. Duke thundered past the Mountaineers 109-89 as Verga also had the range for 28 points. Then NCS again for a hard-fought battle which found the Big Blue behind at the half 34-28. The determined Dukes roared back and quickly put in 20 points to 7 for the Pack though the contest was ultimately sent into overtime. the three-pronged scoring of Verga-30, Vacendak-25, and Marin-24 prevailed for a 104-91 victory. A narrow contest at Ohio State was tied 12 times before Duke won in double-overtime 94-87. The Dukesters, paced by 32 from Vacendak, turned back WF's bid with some fine shooting (58%).

Then for a slate of five at the Indoor Stadium. Encouraged by signs of true greatness in Jack Marin, who sank 13 of 14 from the floor, the Big Blue galloped (121-88) past the Nittany Lions for the 7th straight win. But then a scrappy UNC team, after 4 years of losing to the Dukes, upset the cold (38%) Devils in the final minutes 65-62. Carolina's slow, deliberate play and close defense kept down the nation's best offensive average of 96.8 points. Duke quickly began playing like Blue Devils again and stormed past Clemson 106-81: ahead once by 41 the mighty Dukes were right on target as Verga zinged in 13 of 17 and 29 points and Bob Reidy 7 of 10 and 19 points. win. For the final home game Duke shot past Virginia with a record shattering 136-72 blistering. The Big Blue started fast, racing to a 64-29 lead at the half. The regulars left with 10 minutes remaining, and the reserves accounted for the last 36 points. Besides out rebounding the Cavs 57-28, all 14 Devils were hot from the floor (59%) and especially the foul line (26 of 31.) The Glenn E. Mann Memorial Trophy for the Reserve Contributing the Most to Team Morale was presented in tribute to the Duke senior who lost his life in August 1964.

Next for the Devils was a convincing 93-80 win at WF after a 40-40 tie at the half, as 26 points apiece for Marin and Verga brought the victory. Then the fifth-ranked Dukes whipped USC by 26, followed by a 101-88 romp of Notre Dame where Marin and Vacendak collected career highs of 36 and 32 points. But at Md. the Big Blue suffered the third loss in 50 ACC starts, and played sub par ball and fell at UNC. A fleet hustler—Ronnie Herbster leaps against USC for a tap over to the poised Tison.

Defensive ace Denny Ferguson pressures the Wake Forest ball-handler.

The defending Conference-Champs first met South Carolina slow-down tactics. Despite making but a third of 78 shots, while USC hit 70% of only 45 tries, the Blue Devils with Bob Verga loose for 25 pts. forged ahead by 11 to later win by 2 after a cold spell.

Bounding out of the slump the Big Blue plundered Wake Forest defenses with hot (58%) shooting. The explosive Dukes raced off to a 12-2 lead and sank 14 of the first 15 second half shots en route to a 101-88 triumph. The dependable Vacendak and Marin bucketed 25 and 20 pts. as Hack Tison (8 of 9) played superbly on defense and added 19 points.

In the finals with N. C. State, the pace was fast and Duke maintained a slim margin; but the scrappy Wolfpack closed the gap at 67-all, after 11 previous ties, and won 91-85. Though Verga and Vacendak had 25 and 19 for our cause, a NCS sub, Worsley, was devastating with 30 points as was Marin's foul trouble. To the disappointed Blue Devils, Coach Bubas stated "that anyone who really lives is going to feel the sting of defeat at some time in his life."

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The Baby Imps completed one of their most successful seasons by compiling an outstanding 13-3 record. Led by 6'8" Mike Lewis, Duke suffered defeats only at the hands of Carolina and State. Until the unfortunate loss of two of its starters at midseason, the Baby Imps were undefeated and probably the best Freshman team in the country.

Starting Ron Wendelin, Tim Kolodziej, Lewis, Joe Kennedy, and Warren Chapman, the Devils trounced VPI in their opener 91-57. Facing the powerful Davidson Frosh at home, the Imps won handily 87-68 behind Mike Lewis' 19 points and 26 rebounds. The Blue Devil express rolled to victories over Wake, Richmond, East Carolina, and Davidson again. The crucial test came at home against UNC. Kennedy, who had been superb in guarding Carolina's great Larry Miller, and Lewis fouled out early in the second half. But with Warren Chapman hitting soft jumpers from around the key (for 31 points) and Ron Wendelin freezing the ball against the Tarheel press, the Devils prevailed by a score of 100-90. Victories over State and Wake enabled the Imps to finish the first semester with a perfect 10-0 mark.

The loss of Kennedy and Kolodziej hurt the Devils when second semester play got under way. The Imps suffered two close defeats at the hands of Carolina (67-62, 103-90) and lost once to State (63-52). However, the hustling Blue Devils achieved wins over Wake Forest, N. C. State, and Edwards Academy to break even for the second half of the campaign.

Diminutive 5'8" guard Tony Barone thrilled Duke fans the latter part of the season. Out the entire first semester with an illness, Barone sparked the Devils with his sharp passing and clever ball handling. Reserve guard Dick Warren and forwards Bill Stephenson and Andy Beath also performed well for the Blue Imps.

FENCING

The Duke fencing team, still operating under non-varsity status, had an extremely successful season this year. By the end of February, the fencers were undefeated, sporting a 9-0 over all record.

The season's first action saw Duke defeat NCS 16-11 and the Winston Salem Fencing Club 19-8. The team was led by Dudley Houghton who was 6-0 in sabre for the two matches. A two day tournament in February resulted in Duke victories over Clemson (18-9), VMI (14-13), Citadel (19-8), and Ga. Tech (14-13). A last bout foil victory by Doug Simmons which broke a 13-13 tie gave Duke the win over Tech. But it was the sabre men that made the difference in the tournament results. Led by Greg Perett and Dick Mikesell, sabre victories totaled 8-1 against the Citadel and 7-2 against Ga. Tech. Later in February the Duke fencers defeated previously unbeaten UNC by a 14-13 score.

Volunteer coaches for the team were Head Coach Dave Evans, foil coaches Steed Rollins, Hart Kait, and Hal

Walker, and sabre coach Vince Farome. Success has raised hopes for varsity status in the near future.

WRESTLING

The only factor that kept the 1964-65 wrestling team from a winning season was misfortune. Launching the season with three straight victories, the grapplers seemed to be headed for their first winning record in several years. However, a shoulder injury to Malcom Darling and the illness of Mac McAlpin, two of the top three men, were heavy blows.

Nonetheless, under the guidance of Coach Carmen Falcone and Captain Dick Lam, the team displayed a steady, high-caliber of wrestling which won them the respect of every opponent. The final 3-5-1 record does not reflect completely the performance of the squad, as two of those losses were one-point heartbreakers.

Alternate Captain John Holder also deserves special praise since his reliable performances and consistent points were the mainstays of the team. Other valuable members were Pete Diltz and Pierre Holbert, both of whom placed high in the ACC Tournament, startling nationally ranked Maryland. Rounding out the varsity were Ed Johnson and Dave Kerman, each contributing well-fought matches on the mats.

SWIMMING

Duke swimmers finished an exciting '64-'65 season with a 5-4 overall record and a 4-3 conference total. The season was climaxed by four victories in the last five meets and a fourth place in the ACC meet.

The team had one of the best freestyle relay teams in Duke's history composed of Jim Burwell, Spike Narten and co-captains Cal King and Jim Carraway. Other standouts among the tankers were divers Steve Porter and Dick Houyoux, backstroker Jerry Keller, breaststrokers John Steuben and Steve Castles.

The tankers scored victories over Virginia, Georgia Tech, Clemson, Wake Forest, and South Carolina. Early losses were to Navy and the top three finishers in the ACC—Maryland, North Carolina and N. C. State.

BASEBALL

Duke baseball in 1964 experienced a disappointing season. The failure of several outstanding players to repeat their 1963 performances, plus key physical and mental errors brought defeat to the Blue Devils in several tight contests. And the important loss of Capt. Dave Uible, an All-Conference first baseman, through a knee injury hurt the Duke team. Coached by Hall-of-Famer Ace Parker the Big Blue found the season's strong point in the consistently fine pitching supplied by Jay Hopkins, Charlie Young, and Stan Crisson. Alternate hurlers Gary Stevens and Jim Liccardo showed rapid improvement and promised formidable performances for the Blue Devils' forthcoming season. In addition top-notch sophomores Scotty Glacken, catcher, and Johnny Gutekunst, centerfielder, both played well throughout the year. The leading hitter was third baseman Tommy Taylor, a superlative batsman for Duke.

TRACK

The 1964 Track season was filled with successes despite the final 4-5 record. Bob Fogle's fast pacing in the 120-yard high hurdles brought him an ACC Championship and new Duke records. Steve Barnes set a new school record in the high jump and Nick Homer broke the previous mark in the pole vault. The two-mile and distance relays, with Art Jacobsen, George Flowers, Nick Gray, and Richard Newton, well-represented the Blue Devil thinclads at the Florida Relays and other occasions. Sophomore Rod Stewart emerged as a top prospect with his consistent performances in the shot-put.

These many outstanding individual showings may be attributed to the fine work of Head Robert Chambers, now deceased, and Al Bueler. Both labored extensively in helping the track and field members develop their potential into dangerous performers. And the Duke tennis teams had never in 25 years a losing season, the 1964 squad almost proved to be an exception. Coached by Robert Cox, the Blue Devils fielded a strong and balanced team, paced by a trio of seniors. The Dukesters opened with losses to good squads from Indiana and Mich. State before taking Williams.

TENNIS

Traveling for a series of matches in Florida during spring vacation, Duke initially sustained a pair of defeats at the hands of Florida and Rollins. But the Devils bounced back to take lopsided wins from Stetson and Florida Southern and break even for the trip. Returning to Duke each of six singles players and three doubles teams triumphed over Virginia for a shutout. And then after dropping one to powerful Maryland, the Blue Devils whipped Davidson in an away match. Visiting UNC—the ACC Champs—defeated the Dukes on the home courts. Bounding back the Big Blue trounced N. C. State at each position and then Wake Forest at all but one. Prior to the 3rd shutout of the season for Duke, at the expense of USC, the Devils went down before Clemson. With the record at 8-7, the Dukes lost to Presbyterian. In the ACC Tourney Duke placed fourth.

GOLF

The Duke University Golf Team, coached by Dumpy Hagler, had another highly successful season in 1964, winning 7 against only 3 setbacks. With eleven lettermen returning, the Duke linksmen lost only to the University of Georgia, Wake Forest, and North Carolina. The golfers also played a series of three stroke play matches with Wake and UNC. The Devils won once, and finished second and third on the other two occasions.

The Dukes opened the season with a Southern tour, whipping Georgia Tech and Georgia Southern after suffering an initial defeat at the hands of Georgia. The golfers, who finished with a 5-2 record in the ACC, had three exciting conference matches during the season. They prevailed over Clemson $12\frac{1}{2}$ - $11\frac{1}{2}$ and edged Maryland by a score of $11\frac{1}{2}$ - $9\frac{1}{2}$, aided by the fine clutch play of Dan Hill and Fred Ewald. The Dukes were not so fortunate against Wake Forest, bowing narrowly 10-11.

The linksmen had high hopes for winning the ACC Tourney, but they finished a disappointing fifth.

LACROSSE

After an unfortunately dry 1964 season, greater emphasis is being placed on Lacrosse by opening play to the entire University. This policy allows all students, including graduates, to participate on the same squad. Interest is increasing and more experience being gained by some fine frosh, outstanding soph prospects, and returning veterans.

INTRAMURALS

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

Duke's Intramural Program, managed this year by Bob Verhee, provides an organized and highly competitive outlet for those who don't compete in varsity sports. This athletic interplay is open to the whole University with teams from professional, fraternity, independent, and freshmen dorms competing in leagues set by group size for the gridiron or the hardwood.

The fall IM season was climaxed when a rugged Law team edged Phi Delt in a playoff football game but the undergraduate corpus was redeemed when KA soundly trounced Law A in a close battle over the hoop. The strains and pressures built up in the day-to-day academic grind are relieved, often removed, in these spirited contests.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS

Women's Intramurals gave those from East a chance to show their prowess in a variety of sports. Tournaments in basketball, softball, tennis, volleyball, and badminton were sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association.

The fall began with a splash as Southgate swam to first place in the swimming meet. Freshman Luray Lindgren was the mainstay of the Southgate team while Kathy Murray's diving helped Giles to obtain second place in the meet.

After a short period of recuperation, a volleyball tournament was held with Southgate once again victorious, defeating Gilbert in two close games by scores of 9-7 and 15-13.

Starting a new spring semester, a basketball tournament gave the dorms a chance to retaliate against Southgate. Another swimming meet, as well as softball, badminton, and tennis tournaments, was held in the spring to end another year of Women's Intramurals.

CHEERLEADERS

In generating enthusiasm from Duke supporters the "scream team" helps to boost school spirit. Elected by both campuses, this energetic group is vigorously on hand at football and basketball games, pep rallies, bonfires, and sendoffs to urge the Blue Devils on to a shining performance. The lively Pep Band arouses the student body with the Fight Song and loud accompaniment to the cheers; five vivacious co-eds in Blue and White increase the interest with their dancing talent. And the Blue Devil is a delight to the crowd with his antics on the goalpost and mischievous provocations to opponents.

The spirited dancing girls delight the crowd with one of their exuberant routines.

PEP BOARD

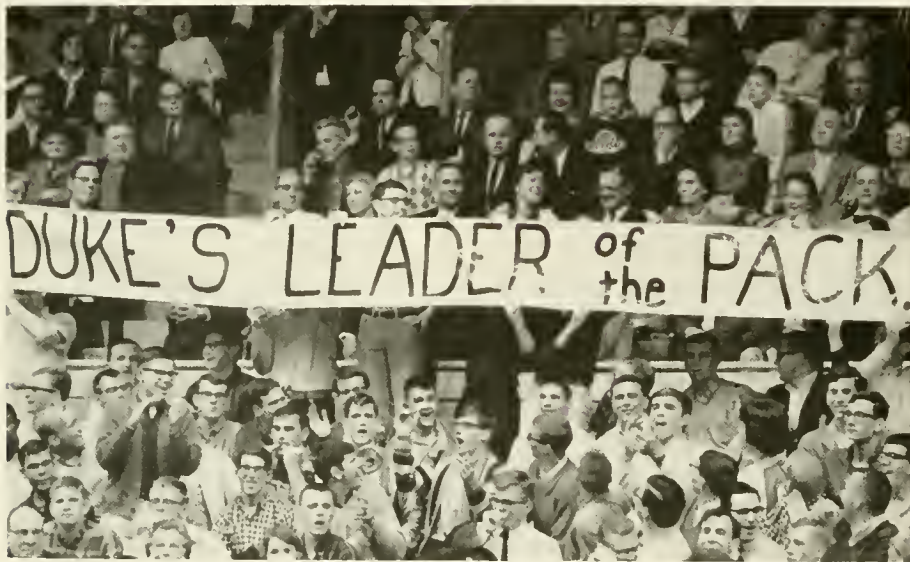

To the Pep Board falls the responsibility of promoting school spirit and fostering team support. The group organizes pep rallies, publicizes athletic events, and supervises the selection of cheerleaders.

The Board is composed of a representative from each dorm on campus and is divided into several committees. An executive board, composed of the Co-chairmen from East and West, the secretary-treasurer, the head cheerleader, and the chairmen of the various committees, coordinates the activities of the organization.

Enthusiastic rallies were held periodically throughout the football and basketball seasons to spur the teams on to victory. This year for the first time, Chapel send-offs were used to display spirit prior to important away football games. Another innovation was the closed circuit television broadcast of the Army football game.

And that we are!

Telegrams of encouragement promoted by the Pep Board and signed by the members of the student body served to boost the Devils' spirits when they played away from friendly home grounds. Painting the bridge with encouraging slogans and plastering posters conspicuously around campus publicizing athletic events helped to enliven the student body.

The efforts of the Pep Board were not simply the support of that group for the teams, but were designed as a catalyst to foster and promote enthusiasm among the entire student body and to give the University's athletes spirited backing in all their efforts.

Chairmen: Ted Benjamin and Judy Cawley

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

The Woman's College Panhellenic Council faced a host of projects when its members returned in the fall. Led by Sue Persons, this group of Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors is comprised of two representatives from each of East Campus' twelve national sororities, the president and vice-president of the council not being included in the individual sororities' quota of two.

Each girl who is elected to the Panhellenic Council by her sorority is automatically placed on one of eight committees. It is through these committees that Panhel manages an effective pursual of its projects and duties. Such activities in 1964-65 included Fall Rush, the new and very successful Greek Follies, promotion of Derby Day, and co-operation with the I.F.C. during Winter Weekend, Greek Week, and Joe College. The Council and its committees also worked on the fund raising service of ushering at sporting events and awarded its annual scholarship of $200.

The Rush Assistance Committee, headed by Gail Burgess, had as its primary function the aiding of Libby Snider during Fall Rush. Sally Brown led the Publicity Committee in its attempts to advertise any event in which Panhellenic took part.

The major project of Carol Southmayd's Housing Committee was the promotion of sorority facilities on the Duke campus. Any funds to be directed to this project, such as the proceeds from the volunteer ushering at sports events, were placed in a housing fund, the purpose of which will hopefully be realized in the proposed Student Activities Center. Barb Haskett guides the Public Relations Committee, while Mary Wilson heads the Special Events Committee which helps to coordinate the activities of major week-ends.

The Scholarship and Service Committee, with Sue Bowers as chairman, plans various charity projects as well as the Panhellenic Scholarship Trophy. Chris Evans heads the Publications and Elections Committee, while any mimeographing and typing is channelled through Barb Nichol's Dirty Work Committee.

Duke's Panhellenic spirit is sparked by an enthusiastic Junior Panhellenic Council, whose aim is to co-ordinate inter-pledge class relationships. The Council made up of one member from each pledge class is headed by President Sally Court and guided by Ann Dodds, the president of last year's Council.

Both the Senior and Junior Panhellenic Councils have as their objective pleasant relationships among the individual sororities. It is through the combined efforts of the sororities on various projects that the Councils have realized their goal.

Before Christmas we had whirled through a Homecoming poster, a retreat, a Christmas party for the pledges, and several wonderful programs and speakers. For the Follies Gloria substituted a flute for our lyre, and the rest of us added some Southern-style lyre birds of our own. The dreams created by our semi-formal Christmas Dance were almost as good as those made by our Dream Cake. Then came

ALPHA DELTA PI

Still glowing with memories and sun-tans, excited Omicron ADPi's returned in September all ready for another great year. Enthusiasm, high spirits, and merriment radiated from each Pi throughout Rush, which brought us twenty-three very special pledges. In no time our new pledges joined in the Pi spirit through weekly visits at the Cerebral Palsy Hospital, the Pledge Banquet, Derby Day, and our Halloween spaghetti supper party. The international scene invaded everyone as we donned French clothes for our combo party and Russian attire for our Follies skit. Before departing for the holidays we gave a tea for the faculty, and a heartwarming Santa Cerebral Palsy party along with the KA's.

A lady in distress?

Rush: tote that barge, lift that bale.

I seem to be getting pain in my left ear.

Thoughts of spring activities were temporarily suppressed, as we reluctantly headed back to school to begin an ardent siege with the books in preparation for exams. Semester break was not only a great time for parties with fraternity rush in full swing, but also a perfect opportunity for relaxation and much-needed sleep.

Soon we all began the new semester with visions of the meaning of true sisterhood, as the Pledge Dance, Initiation, and Friendship Week approached. Highlighting the year was our Spruce Pine Lodge Retreat, where we relaxed before Joe College, Greek Week, Senior Banquet, and final exams. Before long, however, we were heading for Pawley's Island with thoughts of a glorious year and hopes of many more to come.

ALPHA PHI

Reconstructing Atlanta.

The loser gets the limburger.

gets more heerie, but a spooky party for the pledges, roses for the scholars, and pins and diamonds keep us cheerful all the way through Christmas caroling and parties with the west Greeks.

The silver ivy leaf turns to gold in the spring, as the pledges learn what it means to be an Alpha Phi. The dance is perfect, and the pledges look lovely. The rest of the year is filled with parties, not-so-solemn formal meetings, Greek Week and Joe College float-building. We sadly say goodbye to our seniors at a party in the summer house and make plans for a week of sunshine and fun at the beach as a wonderful year ends and another is yet to come.

It's fall again: suntanned Alpha Phis are on the qui vive as they unpack, straighten out red tape, and at the same time keep an eye on the freshmen. The flurry of preparations for rush mean skit practice, new faces, exhaustion, and high hopes.

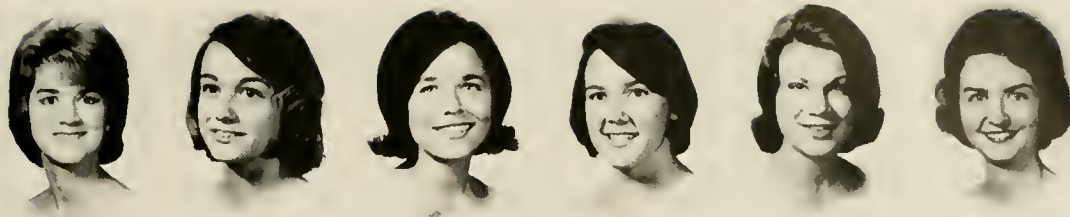

"You've got to meet her—she'd be a perfect Alpha Phi!" And they are, nineteen of them, their faces aglow as they receive the silver ivy leaf. Sisterhood seems especially warm as we relax with songs, laughter, and food at our district governor's house.

Later secret buddy week and then comes the banquet for big and little sisters. Those nights in the Ark basement working on the Homecoming poster pay off with a first prize. Work

Queen for a day.

Double, double toil and trouble, Rush oil did burn and bubble. Caloused knees and endless meals. Two long weeks of enthusiastic peals brought recruits for $\Delta\Delta\Delta$. Our cool, new pledges—twenty-three!

After this triumphant beginning, our social chairman Sally really kept us busy—parties with the Betas, the Carolina KA's, the Phi Kaps, and of course the Delt's at our annual Spruce Pine horror show. Hallowe'en found almost seventy of us invading the Rat for our traditional Big-Little Sister dinner.

Amid chickens, inner tubes, and many broken eggs, Tri-Deltas walked off with the greatest number of mugs at the Sigma Chi Derby Day. Again the athletics, as the $\Delta\Delta\Delta$'s and Zetas battled it out in a scoreless football game.

Our Founders' Day banquet with the UNC Tri-Delts at the Carolina Inn placed the emphasis on sisterhood—as did some of our pledges when they swapped boys with the actives. Tell us about it Sigma Nu's!

Christmas approached, but Deltas still made time for the Pine Party and carols at the Methodist Retirement Home. The return from Christmas vacation was met by finals; but soon our thoughts turned to initiation and the pledge dance. Afterwards, the White Elephant Sale raised money for our scholarship fund, and ever-busy Deltas turned out another fantastic Joe College float. The year's activities concluded with us en masse at Myrtle.

DELTA GAMMA

We brought in the fall with rush—and what a rush it was, complete with a scintillating new party and the fantastic pledge class it brought! But the was hours spent taping books for them. We eluded our Secret Buddies for a whole week, and almost hated to give our identities away at the slumber party in the gym—but what girl can bear to keep a secret anyway?

Christmas drew near and our hearts felt a tinge of homesickness, but it was good to be back again in January—even with exams to face. With the Pledge Formal to look forward to, however, who could be that discouraged by exams? The pledges made their bows at an exquisite ball complete with a tantalizing dessert and soon the golden anchor became a permanent part of their hearts.

There was the Big-Little Sister Banquet at the Festa Room where we filled our stomachs with lasagne and our November with fun. We thought up new ways to extend our foundation work helping the blind, and the result long white gowns. The K.D.'s can be elegant! All our new nurses were lovely, too—and so helpful in cases of emergency. Throughout the year, West Greeks had parties with the K.D.'s, and and all served to refute the legend about the East Beast that stalks the campii.

Spring brought warm weather, Joe College, Myrtle, and the final farewell:

K.D. made us happy,
It never made us sad.
It's about the only thing on East
That ever made us glad.
So bye-bye Allen, bye-bye Doug,
And so long dear Coach Bill.
If you forget our senior year,
The K.D.'s never will.

Kappa Delta returned to campus smiling and sober. They won academic honors by placing people in Phi Beta, Ivy, and Bean Birds; and campus honors by having Florence Cowan crowned the Duke Homecoming Queen. First place in the Greek Follies went to K.D. thanks to much work by Linda, Dee, and Jinie—and a grand showing in Derby Day thanks to everyone.

Second semester, the K.D. cabin party with the Thetas, some en masse trips to U.N.C., White Rose Week, and Winter Weekend kept the K.D.s' naturally studious minds away from academic pursuits. The high point of the year came in January. At the pledge dance held in the Sir Walter Raleigh Hotel, the freshmen stole the show in their

What better way to start the year back at Durham and classes than with a chapter. Happiness is having a new sister chapter!

And our happiness was compounded, for we initiated our own Gay and Polly the same day. Turkey time was marked by the annual Big-Little Sister Banquet and the Thanksgiving basket drive. Then the Christmas carols in the frosty air and delicious hot chocolate afterwards.

Phi Mu's kept the Christmas spirit up all year, as we gave to the mercy ship "Hope" and worked with the children in a home for the emotionally disturbed. Spring semester brought the pledge dance at the Blair House! We were so proud of the pledges in the long white gowns and rose carnations that we could hardly wait for initiation. Spring also brought the excitement of Joe College float building and the carnival booth at Greek Weekend —and the even more exciting mass exodus for Florida and Susan's wedding.

All too soon it was time to say farewell to the seniors. One last fling together at the beach and the sunburned Phi Mu's ended another year in the bond of sisterhood.

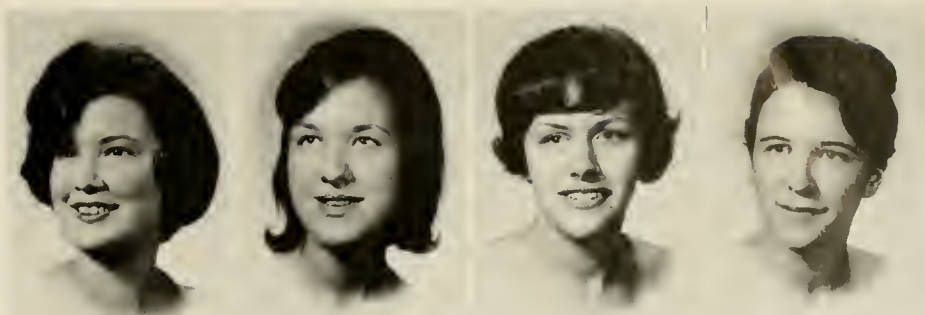

Phi Mu retreat? Then we began the tasks of hammering on the refreshment stand, caging in the circus lions, enjoying those teeny hordogs—Phi Mu's united in the work and play of Rush. Dreaming of the happiness we would share with our new sisters, we welcomed the pledges with a dream cake party.

Phi Mu will long remember other parties, too—the Halloween visitation by the "three ghastly sisters," Mary, Mary, and Martha, the Homecoming poster party, those ice-cream and folksinging get-togethers, and the exciting installation of the brand new UNC

PI BETA PHI

With autumn, '64, came sunny weather, tales of exciting summers, familiar faces . . . Pi Phi's greeted Rush Week with the best "Alice Party" ever. Our twenty-three new pledges were honored at the Cookie Shine and the Pledge Banquet. Then a variety of fun:

winning Derby Day, the Big-Little Sister Banquet at the Rat, the Phi Delt North-South . . . and the retreat we'd all looked forward to—sleeping bags, guitars and Joyce, skits, discussion, and frenzied football. Spurred on by Slocum, we sang and danced our way to second place in the Greek Follies in November, presenting "How the West Was Won."

After initiation, our new sisters were presented at the Golden Triad amid excitement of long white dresses and red roses. Spring Days arrived, and we worked off energy on the Greek Week booth and Joe College float, celebrated Founders Day with the Alpha girls at UNC, and joined the Kappas in observing Monmouth Duo Day.

Too soon, it seemed, we were bidding farewell to our seniors at the Senior Banquet. Even exams seemed to pass quickly with welcome Pi Phi study breaks. At last we headed for Myrtle Beach to relax in the sun. Graduation brought a final realization that the year was really over; we left amid confusions of trunks, anticipation of summer fun, a sense of fulfillment of friendship in Pi Phi—and many good-byes.

SIGMA KAPPA

Do you think this will ever look like a kangaroo?

September arrived and the Sigma Kappas did too—finding themselves knee-deep in suitcases, piles of boxes, a fall retreat, and Rush. Bright smiles, new songs, as well as a great new luau party brought seven new pledges our way; bidding night ended with a pizza banquet at the Holiday Inn. With Homecoming just a few weeks away, we set to work on our yellow jacket poster. After a brief Thanksgiving respite, the pledges surprised the actives with a country party, to which everyone came in costume.

Starting the Christmas season a little early, we set our hands to the task of decorating ornaments and stockings for our annual sale. After a gala Christmas party and a well-earned vacation, the New Year brought exams and, as we all worked hard for those q.p.'s, an exam break party was a welcome event.

Finally completing their pledge period, each pledge was presented at the Valentine's Day pledge dance at the Jack Tar. Then every active became a secret pixie to her little sister during Friendship Week, which ended with the long awaited initiation on a beautiful spring afternoon.

The rest of the year was spent in the myriad of spring activities—building the Joe College float, a steak and beans dinner, and the senior farewell banquet. Too soon it was time to leave for the summer, but one last jaunt to Myrtle Beach; then it was goodbye again until next fall.

Rush? Purity? Or what?

Fall activities for the Zetas began with the usual hustle of rush. Twenty-three pledges survived the Chinese skit to begin to absorb the traditions and experience necessary to become active members.

First post-rush activity for the group was participation in Sigma Chi Derby Day, and the next week a banquet in honor of the new pledges was held at the Holiday Inn.

Pledges underwent a period of training, and they worked to gain necessary pledge points and paddle signatures. Among projects sponsored by the class were a Halloween party in honor of the actives and decoration of little sand buckers for easier transportation of soap and toothbrush.

Events such as Big-Little Sister ceremony, ordering pins, secret buddy week, a party with the Sigma Nus, and the scholarship banquet highlighted the first part of the year. It was an off-year in football for the Zetas, but the skit spoofing the "fraternity images" at Duke placed in the finals for Greek Follies.

Zeta Week in February began with the pledge dance and ended with initiation. The formal dance was held at the Plantation Inn in Raleigh and featured the presentation of the pledges. Secrer buddies were again drawn for the week.

Election and installation of new officers, the annual spring retreat, and participation in Greek Week and Joe College weekend festiviries finally rounded out the year.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

The important job of furthering relationships among Duke's eighteen fraternities, unifying their aims, and acting as a liaison between the University Administration and the system is the task of the University Interfraternity Council. Headed by President Phil LaMotte, the I.F.C. is composed of a Council of Presidents, an Executive Board, six committees, and this year a newly created Junior I.F.C.

The Council of Presidents made up of the eighteen fraternity presidents, not only elects the officers of the I.F.C., but all legislation considered by the I.F.C. must pass this council before it can go into effect. The Executive Board is composed of nine senior fraternity men. The function of this arm of the I.F.C. is administrative, and, at present, it serves as the judicial branch of the organization, trying any violations of the Penal Code.

The executive officers of the I.F.C. are elected by the Council of Presidents, and the President, once elected, heads both the Board and the Council. To the vice-president falls the task of coordinating the plans and projects of the I.F.C.'s six committees.

This year was marked by innovations and revamping within the I.F.C. as a committee was set up to review the constitution and propose revisions. Under proposed changes the Council of Presidents would be given more power, the rules of the I.F.C. Penal Code would be clarified and changed somewhat, and most important, a separate Judicial body would be introduced into the structure of the organization.

The newly set up Junior I.F.C. is composed of the presidents of the eighteen pledge classes. Together with its senior partner, this body will work toward unifying fraternity aims and actions.

Though the nominal leadership was in Foiling's quietly incompetent hands, we knew that Kink pulled the strings from his vantage post atop the money bags. Jonesie amply filled Groundhog's shoes on the gridiron, while Mink, Vag, Grundy, and Guido Malfitano dominated the splinter squad. Though the intramural team just missed repeating last year's championship effort, we did humble the neighbors. At Homecoming, State's four story derrick staggered

BETA THETA PI

Goaded to new heights by words of inspiration and pictures sent by recent graduates, the Betas returned to campus in September. After a near tragedy during the first of many successful open houses the Brothers embarked upon a variety of strictly personal pursuits.

Fall pledging featured the talented Breathettes, who heralded in the holiday season. The season was highlighted by Lead's jump from the sky and his virtual plunder at the hands of the Edgemont kids and the Pi Phis.

It turned out to be a particularly cold winter; and, as Cloid and Arty informed us that fur-collars were "in" this year, other brothers began the search for more suitable apparel in anticipation of Rush. Rush proved to be a total success due to the persuasive air and "laugh now-pay later" smiles of Turtle and Ford. Winter ended with a continuing rise in grade averages, and the Betas faced spring optimistically.

Ho! Ho! Ho! Yourself!

Triad? I thought this was a Beta party!

Life!

Soon the pledges became brothers. Then Greek Week, Joe College, and the infamous Jungle Party were taken in stride, while the cry of the lunatic fringe fell upon deaf ears.

The year flitted by, and progressively more intent sessions of the Jiminy Cricket sipping and singing society convened. Meanwhile the Brothers became virtually crippled by a heavy academic load. Now on the beach solemnly they are singing, "When there are no stars . . ."

Shipwrecked in the section.

After getting off to a bad start (we missed the first episode of "The Fugitive" because our tube, along with everything else, was still in summer storage at that time and for some time to come) AE chapter came from behind to finish a remarkably good and entertaining year . . . finished second in fraternity homecoming displays by "shipping the wrecks back to Tech" . . . tied three intramural football games (we won't mention the other games) . . . had a North-South Booze Bowl football game which almost evicted us from the campus Union . . . and decorated for a Shipwreck Section Party that turned out to be the year's most successful social event.

Individually, "Flower" continued to

twenty-two top frosh. "Does the Low ever let you down?" Spring saw our fancies turn toward a more intense academic pursuit. All was not work, though, as we enjoyed Winter Weekend, a Spring Rites Party, and a "Surfing" Beach Weekend. As the year drew to a close, we praised Sphinx for a time well-spent.

17 freshmen and 11 upper-classmen, but soon enough they were full brothers. Meanwhile everyone enjoyed the Spring's social life, basking atop Wannamaker when the air turned warm, and later at Myrtle. We ended another great year with the Delta Queen Dance and headed for the surf and summer jobs.

Steaks at Charlie's . . .

Thanks to the efforts of "Serooge," the Delts enjoyed a large and sound budget for '64-'65, which resulted in a great social schedule headed off with a party with the Tri Delts at Spruce Pine. Homecoming soon followed, with Benoni's creative leadership culminating in a fantastic (?) display. Delts were there en masse for the cake race, and took six of the top twenty places. The end of Fall saw us at Charlie's for steaks, studying, and a friendly beer or two; the Voodoo party with the Thetas and the ensuing sacrifice of the Virgins; and the initiation of the biggest intra-fraternity sport of the year—the first annual Delt Waterbasketball Tournament at the 125 Club.

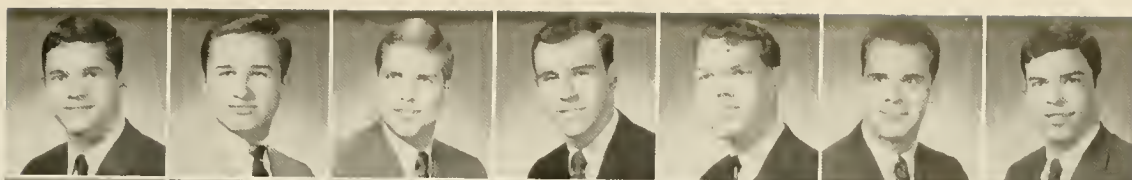

With the Christmas season came the highlight of the first semester—the Christmas dinner dance. Then came the traditional caroling on East, followed by the GROSS Christmas party.

Scott Salter led the way through Rush, with its five days of parties, open houses, 2 am meetings, and standing around Frosh dorms on 26° mornings. But the result was worth it—25 great shakeups! The spring semester was enjoyable, with 28 pledges at the brothers' service:

KAPPA ALPHA

After returning to campus, the KA's again began the great task of maintaining an enviable reputation. Porky having retired, Frank, Thandy, and Oedipus Poopsy paid a memorable visit to W.C., while Hayes and Aristotle spent many nights straightening out Zero.

The new semester found everyone well organized for Rush which ended with many new KA's proving themselves worthy of the Grand Old Gang. The highlight of the social year was Old South Weekend, although it did not rank with Richmond. However, as usual, Greek Week was the low point on the list of achievements, with Lawrence presiding over the annual chariot race disaster.

The ADPi's, having recovered from last year's softball spectacular, consented to give the KA's one more chance.

KAPPA SIGMA

Another September brought the Kappa Sigs rolling back to campus in their new GTO's (check it out) to continue their eternal quest for Truth, led by Bovie, Spook, Bubbles, and Don. After convocating on the benches to rededicate ourselves to serious tasks, we found all our luxurious renovations done just the way we wanted them

(by April). The New Look was the watchword, and we almost became civilized, while the fraternity average climbed to dizzying new heights. There was even a new emphasis on morality, highlighted by the Purity Test Purge and the J.O.P.

Zan and Crompt both had big years; and, even though we couldn't renovate Tech, the Jolly Green Giant paid us a visit to keep the old flames burning. Keeping in sight our ideal of building the whole man, we let the athletic supporters have their day, and our hopes were high for IM football when Booger and Skull found an expert ball handler in a night practice session. After Oink got blackballed by the Law School, we eagerly moved on to B-Ball and saw Spook, Java, Bobo, Licco, and Zim on the courts.

The Christmas party filled us with good spirits, but we sobered up enough to shake up another group of studs in rush. Joe College and Beach weekend kept us from snapping completely in the spring. The year being over, we staggered home, our thirst (for knowledge) satisfied until next year.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Brothers to the end.

Once again as summer ended, the clarion call of knowledge went out from the rockpile. At this beckoning, Lambda Chis from Alaska to Florida formed their ranks for another banner year at Duke. Under the leadership of "Torpedo," new heights of glory were reached, as evidenced by Nurmi. "Slopper" provided a varied social program featuring screams and beer. "Fluto" couldn't decide between Amazon and Toni the Tiger. Follard managed to stay away from Watts, but Furb didn't. "Smiley" fell in love but had a problem. Bond continued his reign as UMOG. "Madman" got sidetracked by the Atlanta flash, while "Green" and "Oilcan" endured each other for the third straight year. Lawyer went berserk on November 3.

Furb led the troops through another fantastic rush. Flovender lived in his own little world surrounded by his eleven pictures. Linus refused to cut his hair, as did Foy. As snow fell, skiers took the week off to hit the slopes, then blew it out at the Mardi Gras. Sammy F. started his laundry in a brotherhood of nations project, while José played his guitar. Spring vacation saw the annual migration with the usual number of sentences.

Then came Greek Week, Joe College, and the final piece de resistance—the complete horror show at Myrtle Beach. After exams, battered, but unbowed, the Lambda Chis dispersed for the summer. It was a year in which we did it all!

That's not a microphone—that's a pipeline to the keg!

In possession of three proud spoils of combat from the previous year—the Turkey's Help Week Trophy, the Phi Kaps Citizenship Award, and the trophy from I.F.C. for Greek Week participation—the Noble Band embarked on an adventure into another academic year.

Their abode, devastated by the agents of University Progress, was quickly restored to a condition of inhabirance worthy of the Phis. With Brother Spencer in command, the hearty crew of Greeks sought new horizons to conquer. Internal difficulties were quickly solved by the inner evaluation of the Order of the Sphinx, and the Phis were on their way to new heights during the fall term.

Early notoriety befell the Phis as they gained the top five places in the backfield of the Blue Devil team. The Blue Owls again emerged victorious on the internural battleground. The fame of Sheffield's parties spread across the campi and the Phis and their dates enjoyed combos on Saturday afternoons, the well known Homecoming "Harry Buffalo," Carolina weekend, and an elegant Christmas formal.

With the journey half over, and under the guidance of new leader Kirwan, the Phis embarked upon a rush that brought a group of Frosh to the Noble Band, noted especially for their quality. Spring semester was marked by a lively Greek Week, Joe College and another great float, and finally a spirited encampment on Myrtle's sunny shores. Then a summer's farewell to the Brothers of the Bond.

PHI KAPPA PSI

The distant cousins of House F, perhaps better known as the Psi slum dwellers, returned with their usual ties. Chell and the trailer dweller made their perennial appeal for apathy, but J.B. and the Mantis maintained that the best way to forgive is vengeance. The Flog flamed still, all you can skin and eat for a dollar, while the shrieking turtle massed out on the poor toe with a garden rake. (Warren is hell.)

Despite excellent entertainment by Buffalobreath and the Hairhattedpowder breathers, the Second Annual Octoberflop marked disaster; but the rites of spring came in September and stayed all year as the young zorted cherub explained J.B. and Boomer's zealous attitude, but were understandably dismayed to find the house fire-proofed, the coal taken out of the bathtub, and the rats, bats, and buffaloes brutally evicted. Under the skillful leadership of Vines-Keim, the fraternity adapted to the new urban renewal environment engaging in the All-American sports of waterbombing and skateboarding. Through the spiritual leadership of the Great Commuter and Father Time the Psis were reminded that gaping is not that big; and all set out to enulate Paul Hornung.

But then why so wan and pale young Owl, we have always enjoyed being helpful. Thus ended another year for the Psis. Remember the Grange.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

"Joy and bliss, lust and passion, and the big 'O'." The Earth Woman gives us our motto for the year. The fall found most furthering the tradition on the skull gentleman: Pinky beginning to shine on East and Flash in Hanes, Fireball's flying tackle, and Taylor helping his date down the stairs at Twin Lakes. Football season gave us a chance to wonder at Fang's flair, Zero's miraculous run, and Thomas' pacific nature. Other remarkables of the fall and winter: the advent of the "Rug Merchant," "Daddy-Dick's" paternal talents, Toby's record setting falls from the saddle, and Gross Grave's and Lust's development as true gentlemen and scholars.

Who's palm is doing the moisting?

Dear old Duke, thy name we'll sing.

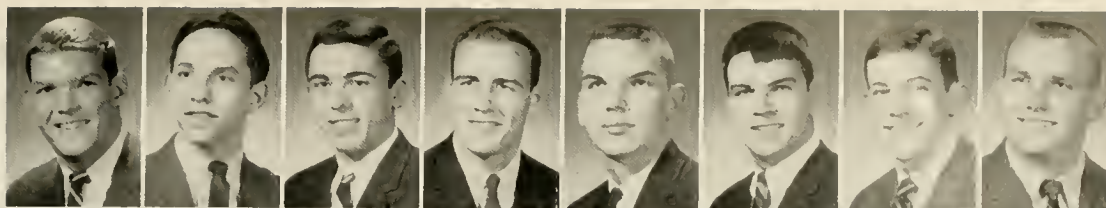

When last seen, the ball was heading for downtown Durham.

When B-Ball time rolled around we were treated to Wonder's reticence and finesse, to Herbie-Mon's command of popular Anglo-Saxonisms, and Lurch's great hands on the court and in the stall.

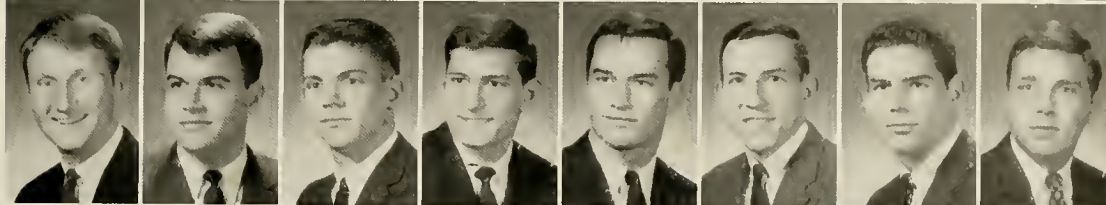

The battered old gavel was wielded by Fog Calias and another even-tempered academic wizard. The mystic Samohr led us through a fantastic rush, and, as usual, Boss-man knows all.

Mourning and tears followed the final dissolution of the old stench house, but the memories are still here and the tradition will continue. What's the pressure Harry? and Earl for President. With Spring came sun and fun weekends with a final trip to the surf before saying goodbye to the brothers and to another red-letter year.

The poetic big E's returned to Duke to look for their new section, only to find it with the Lizzards of Craven

We went into rush optimistically, but the fickle finger of Fate surprised us this year and 19 of the shakeups were able to pledge. Obviously the Fuse was lit. When the second semester reopened so did the tube room where Amos 'n Andy remained the top at-

We booked it until 33% made the Dean's Team, while the rest of the brothers went off to Horn's Hollow, or got pinned or engaged, or learned to do the mad twist or the motor cycle stomp, but all of them showed up when our gang-tackling football team hit the field. Shortly after the football season, we retreated from Aycock house, and counter-attacked at Pegram.

This was the year that was. With Consul Tom Melchior in charge, Beta Lambda forged out an unprecedented year. Under Hub's care, we held our first Derby Day, which was an unparalleled success.

Studies notwithstanding, it was a prime social year, with the parties and openhouses being highlighted by the Sweetheart Weekend at Southern Pines and the annual spring migration to the Grand Strand. Herd showed the way for a great Rush, and second semester was with us.

Despite the books, we found our way through Greek Week, Joe College, and the traditional Hawaiian Party. The semester finally ended—to the amazement of the pledges—taking with it Taylor's scholarship dynasty, the old Chris Miller, one-third of the Spitton, and other losses that we may be able to recoup. It was a year of the old and a year of the new—a year leaving great expectations for the next. This was the year that was. And how!

SIGMA NU

Is anyone down there?

The Nu's returned to a newly renovated section this year -- Duke style, that is. Sam and J.B. got our curtains and intercom while Wheeler, Blick, and Baer added our beautiful bar. "Senor" Pig-Pen controlled the fraternity, the Chronicle, and his Saturday nights, but he and J.B. had very little control at the General Sherman. "Philsie" Lamotte, in general, led the IFC, and Simpson commanded the Duke Air Force, although Peter Pan's second floor squadron got in much more flying time. Waldchen's car miraculously, is still around. "Honda" Hoffman returned, as inconspicuous as ever. Gooch's golden arm led us to staggering heights in football. "Lover Boy" Forth kept tight hold of the books, but he lost his Chow mein to the Arab. Despite Sandi's good cooking, Kraftie maintained his position as our top jock. Although "Tummy" Ake put up a good fight, the Swede took Santa honors and put on a spectacular, if not sober, show. FF lost a snowball fight, although the Nu's did sustain casualties—a few brothers and twenty-four windows.

We brought in a fantastic pledge class, and "Woff-Woff" Wolbert continued his four year pledge program. Spring Semester was tops in every respect from Joe College to the Z special, as we all lived for those wild and wonderful week-ends. And then the beach and the end of another wonderful year—and high hopes for the next.

protracted, and M.J. found a last ray of hope.

We again placed high in academics. A Christmas party and work at Lincoln Hospital highlighted our community projects. Spectacular parties, pledge dances, and banquets completed a year of fun, brotherhood, and hard work for TEP.

Is the East Campus file in order?

This was a year of consolidation and growth for Tau Epsilon Phi. The Holy Model Rounders swept the Teps, and our own T.K. Duo lacked only a kazoo. Pledge activities were more original, including a treasure hunt for tube addicts. The Chancellor rented a room at Pattishall's in order to be near his car. Knarf found his pencils. Onion became the grossest narcoleptic in DU history. Zeller licked Schumer's problem. When Fegles became Fang, Stick's head must have been affected; for he took celibacy vows. Llums' attempt to reapply to high school was unsuccessful. Koff kept in touch with Reality. Nis finally got the Flaming Five on the court, and courting centered a problem in his magic toe. Even though Trots' J.R. is the only EZB nurse, Wilt is going for an A.D. in Annex care. Although the rambling redbreasted Minor was on the sly, Sly spurred his wagon to victory. ZETA BETA TAU

It was unfortunately a year like all years for ZBT . . . Bluto began it as usual by injuring his knee and picking up a bad boil. Zeus forgot East Campus, while Grape made East forget him! Over at Hanes, Q caged Godzilla. Pixie led us—sometimes—until Noodle's “bloodless coup.” Fog didn’t behave like an engaged man, while Flesh didn’t act like a campus leader. Zard found a friend in a tree, while Art found one in “Smiling Bill!”

Porky broke his three year famine, and Blitz took Gar to Bullock’s—once! Blade insisted Spartanburg held all the action, but the Wit moved up to Mason City. Tricky Dick directed

The Hot Nuts entertain . . .

If you can't cover your bet, then stay away from the table.

Rush, among other things, while Plow-boy was harvesting lox and bagels. The Lecher set everyone up, especially himself! Momstein helped Rabina keep the chapter room tidy. Agile constantly was in BIG trouble, and Big John led the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade. Holly hung a coat on Hook's nose by mistake, while Stumpy was mistaken for a fire hydrant by a dog from Philly. The Sophomores showed they had a lot of class—all low!

Group activities for the year proved most successful, although the entry for the chariot race performed as those of past years had. Our mock election in November was perhaps overshadowed by the fierce competition of the ugliest men on campus, but everyone noticed our first place in the Follies. Was it a good year? Does it rain in Durham?

On April 9, 10, and 11 the Greeks of Duke campus combined forces to present another spectacular Greek Weekend. In the evening of April 9 Mary Wells was the featured entertainment, and during the following afternoon the annual Greek games and carnival were presented.

Again this year the games were highlighted by the fraternity chariot race. Other games, such as the greased pig race, gave the sororities of Duke a chance to display their athletic skill. Following the events, the fraternities and sororities put on a full-scale carnival with everything from a pie throw to a roulette wheel. That night the frats had parties as a climax to the weekend.

Committee Co-Chairmen: John Holder, Tom Sherrard.

EAST CAMPUS HOUSES

The basic living group for the Woman's College and for the School of Nursing is the dormitory. Greeks and independents, and, on East Campus, upperclass and underclass women live together in an atmosphere of acceptance and exchange. House activities are numerous and diverse, ranging from a welcome for incoming freshmen in the fall, dorm parties and Sunday breakfasts, business meetings, to cultural programs and teas with Duke professors. Dorm life has other salient features too—the switchboard and mikes, which announce phone calls and callers, the end board with its daily notices and its mascot, and, of course, the growth in personal relationships resulting from living closely with roommates and suitemates.

Each East Campus dorm is governed by a House Council elected annually.

HANES. Counselors Georgia Tweedy, Dorothy Wilkinson, Sondra Scott.

The council of students concerns itself with new suggestions, problems, and programs for the house. The house counselors serve as advisors and coordinators between students and the administration.

ADDOMS. Counselor Carol Garris and President Sally Middlebrooks.

JARVIS. Counselor Lynn Lanham and President Terri Patch.

GILES. Counselor Joyce Harris and President Dolores Fincher.

SOUTHGATE. Counselor Ella Jean Shore and President Patti Adams.

ALSPAUGH. Seated: Counselor Barbara Shephard. Standing: President Susie Smith.

PEGRAM. Counselor Mac Braswell and President Peggy Pauley.

BROWN. President Becky Frank and Counselor Mrs. Mildred Durden.

GILBERT: Counselor Evelyn Shakir and President Susie Cunningham.

BASSETT. President Sandy Allen and Counselor Eva Poythress.

AYCOCK. President Paddy Moore and Counselor Nancy Carroll.

ASSOCIATION OF INDEPENDENT HOUSES

The Association of Independent Houses was formed last year as both a conciliatory and an executive body and also as spokesman for the residents of the seven independent houses.

Replacing the Independent Dormitory Council as the representative body of the independent houses, the Association functioned this year under the leadership of President Eugene Garand. During the year the Association played an active part in providing the campus independents with an avenue through which they could obtain their political and social objectives. In conjunction with the program outlined by the University Weekend Committee, the Association supervised the "open houses" during the Saturday afternoon of Winter Weekend and house parties during the other major weekends. In March, at the first Duke University Nominating Convention, independent representation was made possible through the cooperation of the Association with the individual house delegations.

As stated in its constitution, the Association serves a double purpose.

In essence, it is a spokesman for the independent living groups in matters concerning all independents and arbitrates disputes arising in the independent community.

In order to be represented in the Association, a group must have at least 35 members or occupy any of the seven independent houses, halls, or courts on West Campus. At least one third of the students of Trinity and Engineering Colleges are represented through this organization.

HOUSEMASTERS

The housemaster program at the University is designed primarily to provide advisors for the freshman dormitories. Each freshman house is supervised by a housemaster and a staff of several assistant housemasters, the number of staff members determined by the size of the house. The housemasters are graduate students who have had at least a year of work at Duke, and their assistants may be either undergraduate upperclassmen or graduate students. All the advisors are expected to have maintained a cumulative scholastic average of 2.5 in their academic career.

The duties of the housemasters and assistant housemasters fall into three general categories: administration, counseling, and discipline. Their administrative duties include conducting house meetings, supervising room exchanges within the house, sponsoring the intramural program of the living group, and co-ordinating the activities of other freshman counseling groups, such as the Faculty Fellows and the YMCA Freshman Advisory Council.

Much of the housemasters' time is spent in dealing with disciplinary problems in the dormitory. In this respect the housemasters frequently coordinate their action with the Dean's office and the MSGA Judicial Board.

In the area of counseling, the housemasters serve as intermediates between the students and the administration. They are available for discussion of the freshmen's academic or emotional problems, and freshmen receive their mid-semester grades at a private conference with their housemasters.

Dr. Richard H. Leach and the Publications Board.

Mr. William F. Griffith, Mr. Allen Parrent, and Mrs. Margaret Wilkins of the Office of Student Activities.

Mr. Stephen C. Harward, Comptroller and Internal Auditor, for financial and practical advice.

Mr. W. F. Strayhorn and the staff of the Information Desk.

Mr. Price Coursey, Charlotte Engraving Company, for his patient, skillful, and guiding hand in coordination of the many facets involved—aid which often transcends his specific function as merely a professionally interested engraving and yearbook specialist.

Mr. Joseph F. Phelps, Edwards &

Broughton Company, and his wife Lucy for professional help and a wonderful working vacation in Charlotte.

Mr. Fay Smith, Mr. James Churchill, and Mr. William Judd of Smith Studios for excellent portrait photography.

Mr. Ralph Jordan, Wimby-Kincey Service, Mr. Herman Kass, Universal Pictures, and Mr. Tony Randall, Universal Pictures, for prompt response in our hour of need.

Vantine Studio for excellent fraternity and sorority portraits.

Mr. A. F. Murphy, Jr., for photographic coverage of the Army Game.

Mr. Don Rice, New York Herald Tribune, for away-game football coverage.

The yearbook of Tulane University.

Mr. Thad Sparks, University Photographer.

Joe and Arabella.

The Archive for turning the radio down when we asked.

The combined Editorial and Business staffs for their consistent and loyal help throughout the year—most of the book belongs to them.
